Animals Play Around

The animals of the state of Franklin have all returned to their school and are diligently studying. Along with their studies of the various languages—Horse, Cow, etc., the students are allowed to take one unit of Playful Education, commonly known as P. E., in order to survive through graduation time in May. This course enables the animals to exercise and to build up strong bodies. This course empowers the young animals to learn games such as golf, tennis, and badminton, which they can continue participating in throughout life. The young animals are encouraged to sign up for one of many activities which will interest them. This semester they can take either golf, social dancing, ping-pong, or nearly any subject they desire. Each instructor has a full load of different courses from which a student can choose. The animals are all content and happy with the courses they have chosen for the present semester.

Female animals have chosen track, boy's 9:00 a.m. tennis class, conditions and weight lifting. Oh! The other herd, boy animals, are faced with the opportunity to sign up for such wonderful and exciting classes as slimnastics, archery, and tumbling—because their schedules allowed no other choice.

Lack Of Space

Many of the students have been upset by the schedules of physical education for this semester. They have several complaints to which they feel are just. The students want to know why more P. E. subjects aren't being taught? They also want to know why golf isn't being taught this semester, along with tennis for girls and social dancing. These subjects have been taught in the past, so why not now?

After a thorough investigation of the situation, Columns found the answers to many of the questions. If the students would take the same course of action, they too might find some answers.

The major answer which answers all questions is the lack of space. The one gymnasium is not large enough to accommodate more than two P. E. courses at the same time. Even then, only one course can be held upstairs on the floor while the other one is downstairs. This is the reason that as few courses are being offered as there are. Even so, there are more than ten P. E. courses being offered for men students this semester.

The reason golf is not being taught is the weather. Golf cannot be taught in mud, snow, and rain. January, February, and part of March are very undependable months as far as good weather is concerned. Classes cannot be held outside while it is raining and snowing. Weather is the reason girl's tennis is not being offered also.

Social Dancing is not being taught this semester simply because it could not be worked into the schedule. Miss Cooke was scheduled to teach one course in dancing; however, at the last minute she had to teach several extra courses in hygiene.

Congratulations

Early in October, a committee was selected to rewrite the drinking rule. After several months of tedious work, the committee came up with a new rule. Columns would especially like to commend Mary Ella Nelson and Mr. Snyder for their dedication and determination in seeing the project through. We urge the students to give the rule a chance to take hold, and to support the rule.

Fenced Out?

Dear Editor:

We, the young men of Louisburg College, would like a good explanation from the person or persons responsible as to why the gym is not open at all times during the weekend, so that we could play basketball when we chose. As it is now, we have to go through an act of Congress to get in the gym to get some exercise during the weekends. When we get ready to play, and find the gym locked, we try to find some member of the Athletic Department to open the doors, but when we ask someone they just refer us to someone else, and we usually don't get in at all.

We would like to request that the gym doors be opened on Saturday and Sunday afternoons at 1:00 P.M. and not closed until 7:00 or 8:00 P.M. We feel that there should be some member of the Athletic Department responsible for opening the doors at this time. The time that the gym is to be open should be posted in the Post office Lobby.

New Faces On Campus

Everywhere you go on campus these days, it seems that there is someone you haven't seen before. The reason is simple. There are forty-five new members added to the freshman and sophomore classes this semester.

It is hoped that all the new members of the Louisburg College student body enjoy themselves as they get to know all the people around them.

Louisburg College extends a warm welcome to each and everyone of you and hopes you will like your stay here.

Norman Barrack

Dear Editor:

It may seem strange for a boy to step over and request that a girl's rule be changed, but first consider the change that is being requested.

Our request is: Any girl going on an out-of-town date should be entitled to a one o'clock curfew one night a weekend with her parents' permission.

We realize that a one o'clock curfew is unnecessary for an in-town date because Louisburg has nothing to offer after midnight.

As the curfew now stands, one must leave Raleigh, as well as any other city, the movie is not over until after eleven, and no dance is over before twelve. Therefore this is the basis for our request.

We hope that the students will show enough dissention against this unrealistic rule to have the proper student leaders see that the rule be changed.

Sincerely concerned students,

Letter Of Appeal

Dear Professor:

Would you please have a little consideration for your students. You might not realize this, but some students have many classes, several of which are together—one following the other.

We would like to ask you to please let your students out of class on time so they can meet their next class. Teachers complain because their students do not get to their classes on time. Well, now we know why, the teachers before did not let them out and a student cannot make it across campus in three or four minutes. So from now on, professors, would you please let us out on time—We have a class in ten minutes!

Sincerely,
Late-as-it-is

Happy Anniversary L. A.
