

The Columns

Vol. 51 No. 3

LOUISBURG COLLEGE

October 1992

Talent Show Results

By: Kelli Freet

Last month the Student Government Association sponsored the 1992 Talent Show "Anything Goes." The show included dancers, singers, guitar and piano players, and a few wrote their own music!

The judges of the talent show were Rebecca Allen, Jay Dodson, Jean Fischer, Julia Quisenberry, and Ervin Williams. The judging was based on originality, creativity, and talent.

The $50 third prize was awarded to Vanesa McDonald for singing "Believe in Yourself" in Acopello. The $75 second prize was awarded to Brandon Williams for playing guitar and singing his own song, "Look Inside the Mirror." The $100 grand prize was awarded to Jason Richardson for playing his own classical piano composition, "Flight of the Raven." Congratulations to all of you!

Techmo Bowls

By: Scott "The Mack Daddy" Fleischer

As we all know, Nintendo has been around for a while. Professional football has existed for even longer. Athletically enthusiastic college students have the lengthiest history behind them. Somehow, when these three elements are combined, a great deal of excitement and addiction is formed.

A new craze has swept over this dusty collegic campus. It's called Super Techmobowl. This game can turn sophisticated mature students into crying, whining pansies. On the other hand, it can turn frail, weak little computer addicts into huge football gods.

This game has it all: good graphics (for regular Nintendo), incredible sound effects, injuries, play books, and just about every other element that is present in the NFL. Any amount of people can play. Single preseason games, or entire seasons, including the play offs and the super bowl can be played. If you don't like your offensive players, that's fine; they can all be replaced.

Super Techmobowl is being played throughout the entire campus. Nintendo football doesn't get any better than this. What other game can offer such a fast pace, an inexpensive price tag, the ability to play an entire season (and post season), and the capability to break a friend's leg without even touching them? Only one comes to mind...Super Techmobowl.

Treasure Island Review

Photos by Keith Roberts

By: Rita Miller

and mature. I try to make my students become more responsible. I encourage studying. I set up individual rehearsals to center around their study time. This helps the student to become more responsible."

Charley John mentions that the attendance to Treasure Island was not good. He encourages that students attend future productions because they could have hidden talent, and maybe if a student sees a production, they may want to act in one.

The technical staff of Treasure Island did an outstanding job. Back stage manager, Tyka Little, comments, "I enjoyed working with this production. It is easier to perform in front of a big crowd because of their reactions."

This year the Drama Department of Louisburg College presented Jules Eckert Goodman's Treasure Island. This presentation was directed by Mr. Charley John Smith, Professor of Drama.

When asked about the production of the play, he stated, "It was a monster to get ready! Treasure Island was difficult to put together because of the complexity of the scenes. There were ten scene changes in four acts. Costumes were done by out of town seamstresses and sound effects were done by some of the cast members. During opening night there were a few slow places in the play but the overall performance was good."

about the attitude of the cast. He replied, "The cast was a very responsible group. The rehearsal period for Treasure Island was pretty long, therefore it was a challenge for the actors and actresses. I enjoy working with these kinds of shows because I like to see new actors and actresses develop

Charley John was also asked

Parents Day

By: Sammy McKeel

Parents Day was held on October 26, 1992. This day was set aside so that students could bring their parents to meet with their teachers. Parents Day went well and was a big success.

The day's events were as follows:

10:15 - 11:15 am

Registration and Refreshments (Lobby of Auditorium)

11:15 - 12:00 pm

Parents Day Program (Auditorium)

12:00 - 1:30 pm

Parents Day Luncheon (Cafeteria - Student Center)

1:15 - 4:30 pm

Parents - Faculty and Staff Visitation (Offices & Classrooms)

1:30 - 4:00 pm

Men's Basketball
Intrasquad Scrimmage
(Holton Gymnasium)

10:00 - 4:00 pm

Art Exhibit Gestural
Marks: Drawings by Anne Haugh (Auditorium, Gallery A)

10:30 11:00 am

Bookstore open to students and their parents (Student Center)

The parents who came were impressed with the amount of information given about the college and its students.

Some said the presentation was a little too long, but most agreed that it was fun; right down to the President's jokes. Lunch went well and it allowed everyone to mingle and get acquainted with one another. The

cont. on pg. 2