

It's Coming Up

The Black Student Movement will have an awards ceremony in the Upendo Lounge on Tuesday, April 15 at 5:30. Anyone is invited to attend.

The Alpha Kappa Alpha Sorority will have a step-show on Thursday, April 17 in Great Hall.

The Delta Sigma Theta Sorority will have a step-show on Tuesday, April 22 in Great Hall.

The Kappa Alpha Psi Fraternity announces the Krimson and Kreme Ball to be held on Saturday, April 26 in the Sheraton Center in Durham.

Women and Minorities Business Networking Seminar will be held on April 18 from 2-5:30 in Great Hall.

Zeta Phi Beta Sorority will have a stepshow on April 23 in Great Hall.

Omega Psi Phi Fraternity will have a stepshow on April 24 in Great Hall.

Women and Minorities Business Networking Seminar

"Networking for the Future"

Fri., April 18, 1986
2-5:30, Great Hall

Hanes Knitwear, Inc.
Carson Products Company
Proline Corporation
North Carolina Mutual
Monarch Temporary Services
Garrett, Sullivan, Davenport, Bowie & Grant, CPAs P.A.
Ben Sheftall's Distributing Company
National Association of Women Business Owners
Public Relations Durham Company, Manager's Office
Research and Evaluation Associates, Inc.
Systems Research and Evaluation & Development Corp.
Orange County Women's Center
Career Planning and Placement
Johnson's Products
Central Carolina Bank
IBM
Dudley's Products

Panel Discussion
Career Fair.

*Bring Resumes
Refreshments will be served
933-4574

After heated debate the UNC shanties were torn down by University officials and several students were arrested in protest of the shanties coming down

In Perspective

by Marjorie Roach
Assistant Editor

The somber faces of a crowd of nearly 300 people stood in two large circles quietly holding hands in the misty air of the early morning.

A sharp snap of wood and rusty tin broke the silence, as the destruction of the symbolic anti-apartheid shanties began.

Although the end came for the shanties erected as a silent protest for the Trustee and Endowment Boards to divest UNC funding in South Africa, the cry for justice intensifies.

One student said tears came to her eyes as she watched the shanty where she had spent the night before destroyed.

She describes her experience there as harsh. "It changed my life she said, you get a true sense of the South Africans' hard, cold lives."

Yet, UNC students can only imagine the realities faced by South Africans everyday.

While the administrators sat comfortably in their plush offices, paid black workers, ungloved were sent to do their dirty work.

Hell no, we won't go! rang from the students as undercover cops came to arrest five students, Herman Bennett, Robert Pharr, Marguerite Arnold, Graham Entwistle and Helen Moore.

On the steps of South Building another crowd heckled and cheered and blared songs in opposition of the anti-apartheid demonstrators.

But until justice is met, the struggle against apartheid will continue.

One Year at UNC

by Richard White
Staff Writer

August 17, 1985 was a day many recently graduated high school seniors had long awaited. It was the "thrill of victory" because they completed successful high school careers and stood ready to conquer the world. Well, college. UNC to be exact. This is a quick look back.

After arrival, students were immediately introduced to university lingo like Pre-O counselor, O.C., M.A. and the "U.L." After freshmen deciphered those abbreviated titles, they had to learn the location of "the Yard" and the purpose of "the Wall."

Even their enunciation was affected especially after making the dreadful mistake of asking an upperclassman, "Where can I find 'Day' Hall?" After going out in the community, they discovered that Kerr Drugs was not synonymous with "Carr" Drugs.

Deciding on a major has been difficult, too. One could be an Afam, Poli-Sci, Psyc, or Econ major and on it goes.

Drop/Add...

It was time for transition. For many freshmen, like Amanda Thompson of Charlotte, a psychology major, the transition from high school to college was "...frightening at first. I thought, how will I get through it?" she said.

continued on page 3

Black Ink

Laurie Denise Willis
Editor

Marjorie Roach
Assistant Editor
Kenneth A. Harris
Special Projects Editor
Sharyne McCombs
Business Manager
Julio Penasoto
Distribution Manager

Shirley Hunter
Managing Editor
Denise Moultrie
News Editor
Barry Carson
Advertising Manager
Tammie Foust
Photography Editor