

hions

duroys)... from what I've seen, UNC students are well-dressed... women wear jeans cut for women, not men's Levi's." Dominic Lewis, Manager, The Lodge

"Fashion is something that's gonna always stay in style... fad is something that goes in and out, like the Madonna look, or something... here (The Beach Connection), we sell the beach look — shell jewelry, pastels and sashes... we also have sweaters, unique accessories and fashions by names like Organically Grown or Ruff Hewn... I love surfwear; I think it's neat." Tina Levy, Sales, The Beach Connection

Lewis states that this year, pastels, earthtones and the color fuschia is in. He says that the shorter skirts with business suits are giving women a more feminine look. When asked for a key tip on dressing around campus, Lewis said that accessorizing one's outfit of clothing was the most important thing.

Certainly, what you wear is important, because to onlookers it creates an image for their initial impression of you. What you're wearing is the first thing they see. So, the next time you throw on those sneakers and sweats, and you're not going to Woolen to work out, dig out those sweaters and dress jeans or skirts. They might get you a second glance, a friendly "hello," some interesting conversation and a new acquaintance.

Nicole Neeks

Standing left to right: Tina, Gary, Darlene, Nicole.
Kneeling left to right: Michael, Ricky, Sean.

Darlene Hunt

