What Do You Think?

"At times it's uncomfortable. Because once in my class we were discussing black-white relations. It doesn't affect my grades." Darrick Woods, Freshman, Biology

"I'm used to it because my high school was predominantly white. I was the only black in all my college prep and advanced courses. In my whole school I was the only black honor student. I'm used to it at Carolina." Paulette Jones, Sophomore, Business Administration

"It makes me uncomfortable. There are 26 people in my class. I feel paranoid because everybody stares at me when I speak as though I'm not supposed to speak French in a French class." Yolanda Woodhouse, Junior, International Studies
