

What's ahead for the Spring of '93?

Well friends, it's a new year, a new semester, and a new start. But before we look ahead, I'd like to take a look back at Fall '92, an interesting semester indeed.

First of all, I'd like to recognize all those loyal BCC protesters for struggle after listening to Khalid X? Gee, who was the programming genius that came up with that one? My favorite quote: "Uh, we didn't know he was going to say all that."

Okay, how about inviting the Grand Wizard of the KKK for Race Relations Week? I wonder what he'll say....?

B-side myself.

I must commend the founders of BAC for getting involved and taking a stand. Better late than never, I always say.

We can't mention the movement without mentioning Malcolm X, that icon of that new-found blackness so many of us seemed to black robes and wielding gavels. There's a man who should be remembered.

Hey...whatever happened to the Kappa sweethearts....?

Anyway, on to Spring '93. My predictions: The administration will continue to dance around the BCC thing. I know; why don't we set another deadline—and wait until we actually get something before we call it off this time!

Campus elections will be their usual pain in the rectum. And what about the brother who's running? That's right. What about him? His platform: Race relations are his top priority, but he has no earthly idea what to do about them. But if you elect him, a black non-greek male, this university will look like it's come a really long way.

The sad part about it is that he actually said this, folks—I'm not exaggerating! Not only that, but let's see.... this university had a black SBP way back in the seventies. Race relations were hell then and they are now. Is having a brother who puts white people on his campaign posters really going to help the situation? I don't think so.

Secondly, what's up with this "non-greek" clause? Is that supposed to be a virtue, nowadays? Just what is he trying to say? That one has to be greek to be president? That's not true, Mr. Patillo. You just have to know people. Who the hell are you!?

The BSM presential election will definitely be a trip. Have you seen the nominees? Lord, let us pray. It's a choice between the militant, the military, the mental case, the mouth-almighty, and the Mack Daddy. Pick one.

I see the CNN is getting more and more up in people's business. So what else is new?

Get ready to welcome some new Greeks to the yard. I believe Spring '93 is going to surprise a lot of people. You know, people who think they know who's having a "line," people who think they know who's "on line," people who never thought certain people would pledge anything and people who just knew certain people were going over—including themselves. Ah...it's Spring again.

Well, that's all I can say for now. Keep on keepin' on—and I'm gone!

DON'T SWEAT THE TECHNIQUE

that long, hard, two weeks of protesting. Your support to the BCC Coalition, BSM and BAC was truly—half assed.

Q: What do we want?

A: BCC!

Q: When do we want it?

A: When it's en vogue to protest!

I guess it's just a little too passé these days.

And I was really disappointed by the loss of white students' support. I mean, after that truly inspirational BCC rally they should be down, right? What white person in their right mind wouldn't join the

As for Hardin's support of a BCC—Psyche! The world thinks we got a BCC. I'm sorry, we got gaffled. Excuse me, do we have anything besides a committee? Hello? "Oh, we're making some recommendations...."

I recommend that you wake up and realize that "Hey, let's form a committee" is the Man's way to say "Quick! Let's do something to shut these silly negroes up!"

A lot of good things did come out of last semester, though. A lot of B things. A BSM ball, a BGC party, a B.A.T.T.L.E., a B.R.A.C.E., a B-Glad, a BAC...I'm espouse. "Forget Martin Luther King! I am Malcolm X."

What can I say about Malcolm? He was a virtuous, learned man with an incredible talent for delivering speeches. And he did so much for our people when he...well he didn't actually do anything. Think about it. There should be a movie out about Thurgood Marshall.

Now there was a great man! Up there on the Big bench You can thank him for a lot—mainly just being here. Who litigated Topeka vs. Brown? Look it up. Man, we should all be walking around with big T's on our clothes wearing long
