The first annual Student-Faculty softball game proved to be a hit. The first game which included the women of both teams were led off with the faculty at bat first.

Kathy Paseur was the first up, but couldn't find the hole. Gene Newman started the excitement with a double and Troy Huntley drove Newman home with a single.

Gary Simpson and Candy Koone also hit singles to bring Huntley home to make the second run for the day. Don Killian and Dr. Scott didn't find lady luck near, but everyone knew that they just didn't want to come on strong early in the game.

At the bottom of the first, Sandra Albertson, Greg Hollowfield and Denise what's her name couldn't seem to knock the ball out of the faculty's reach.

The top of the second was three quick outs for the faculty and proved to the cheering crowd that the student team was ready to play ball.

Pam Robinson, Larry Cloniger, Greg Freeman, Lyndon Young and Sandra Allman all came in for runs making the score 5 to 2.

The faculty had one last chance to pour it on but came up short after three quick outs.

The student team brought in two more runs before the faculty was asked to admit defeat.

Don Killian's replied, "the game ain't over till the fat lady dances". Not pressing for more the game was ended with the score: 8-2, students the victors. "Viva la Fat Lady"!

The second game of the day was a very physical contest. The score stayed close and at the end of four innings the score was tied 5 all.

The students finished off the game with a two run spurt. Look at it this way, the faculty came in second place in both games.

While the coaches Ken Bridges and Joyce Fowler set up for the next game, several SGA members were heard to say that this year's SGA seemed to be doing a very fine job of planning activities.

Broadcasters Down Inmates

No, it was not the Yankees and Dodgers battling it out in the famous Subway Classics and it was not the A's and the Reds taking the "World Series." It was the beginning of the Battle between the Devils and the Angels.

It was a series of softball games being played between Bill Bamback's Music Class at the Dallas Prison Unit and the Broadcasting Class of Gaston College.

The Angels won the toss and the battle began. At the end of the first inning, the Angels scored five runs and the Devils only had one. After the Devils "fell from grace" so to speak. The Angels picked up speed and there was no stopping them.

Up until the last inning, the Devils had problems getting to base. They had no trouble hitting the ball, just finding the base. In the final inning, the Devils showed some sparks and tried to rally back in vane.

The Angels had succeeded in frustrating the fire out of the Devils in a 24 to 17 win.

Bambeck said he always got to choose four of the girls on the team and steal a kiss when his team lost. He was glad that he lost. He said that the guard would be proud of him because the boys would be silent when they went back inside.

On a serious note, Bambeck said that having the inmates play a team of civilians was good because it allowed them contact with the outside since they only got to play each other. It also takes them down a peg to two.

But folks they want a rematch. So come out and support your favorite team in the "Paradise Lost" Battle. For details check with WSGE.

The other players who contributed, to the victory, for the Angels were Alesia Guy, Mike Mosher, Lee Brockman, Cooter Workman, Lloyd Isaac II, Kenneth Hagan, Ned Eccles, Steve Grahl, Jeff Green, Richard Superman Cleveland, and Sis Willis, who was the coach.

Also, Suzanne Harmon was a cheerleader, Paul "in body not in spirit" Peeler, and Bill Holland who had one homerun, two triples a double and two singles.

Intramural Sports Shows Promise at Gaston College

The Fall Quarter schedule for Intramural Sports at Gaston College is underway with flag football and tennis taking the spotlight.

Our Tennis Tournament during the fall quarter is a singles tournament divided into three divisions.

Advanced, Intermediate and Novice divisions for men and women hopefully will encourage all tennis enthusiasts to participate on their own level.

Flag Football is also being played on our campus athletic fields on Monday, Tuesday and Wednesday afternoons. Four teams are currently battling it out for the GC championship and the right to wear the coveted Flag Football Intramural T-Shirt.

Teams include the Engineers, The Stud Men, The Macho Men and The Hustlers.

Later on in the Quarter, Dr. Gary Simpson will run his annual Fall Golf Tournament. Check with him for details.

Get involved and enjoy what Gaston has to offer in the area of Recreational Sports. Winter Quarter offerings include Basketball, Bowling, and Indoor Game Room Activities.
