BOILING SPRINGS, NORTH CAROLINA

PAUL HARVEY TO SPEAK FEB. 25

Shakespeare's Play Presented At GWC

Shakespeare's "A Midsummer Night's Dream" was presented January 30 in Hamrick Auditorium.

The presentation was given by the Repertory Theatre Company, a professional company of the Student Theatre Guild, Inc. of North Carolina. It was sponsored by the Distinguished Artist Series and the Department of Fine Arts.

The Student Theatre Guild is based in Raleigh and it travels throughout the state performing group and private schools as well as churches and civic groups.

In 1974, the program performed in 72 of the state's 100 counties, with an audience greater than 80,000.

Chorus Contest

Chamber Chorus Booked For Spring Semester

Dr. Perrin directs both the Gardner-Webb College Chorus and the Chamber Chorus. Both these choral groups have been booked for the spring semester.

The College Chorus will begin their engagements on February 12, 1975. From February 12, through the 16th, they will be singing in Winston-Salem, Durham, Elkin, Lenoir, Morganton, and Granite Falls.

The Chamber Chorus will be singing for the American Choral Directors Association Festival on February 14 and 15.

Some other performances for the Chamber Chorus will be Hayesville, Murphy, Andrews, N.C. and Greenville, S.C. on April 20 through 23. While at Greenville, they will perform on the North Greenville Junior College campus and First Baptist Church, Greenville.

All choral organizations will present a concert with the North Carolina Symphony, April 10, at Boiling Springs Baptist Church.

CHORUS CONTEST
On February 22, 1975, a high school chorus contest will be held at Gardner-Webb. This contest is the third annual event of its kind. Gardner-Webb College is the host to the various participating high schools in the western district. The judges will be from various colleges.

The high school chorus contest is sponsored by the State Music Department and The North Carolina Music Educators Conference. The purpose of the contest is to encourage quality and excellence in performance. The choral groups each contain less than twenty-four members. They range in size from solos, duets, trios to quartets.

The choral groups will receive ratings of superior, excellent, good, above average, average, and poor.

The high schools that will be participating range in location from as far south as Monroe and Charlotte, as far north as Salisbury and as far west as Asheville and Enka. Also included are the local high schools.

One of America's best known radio and television newscasters, Paul Harvey, will give a lecture on the campus of Gardner-Webb College, February 25.

Harvey will be honored at a reception and autograph party prior to a dinner before his lectures.

The day's activities will start with the reception at 5 o'clock followed by the autograph session. A dinner will be held in the Bulldog Room at the college and the lecture will be held in the Bost Physical Education Building.

All activities will be open to the public with a limited number of $25 sponsor tickets available which will include a ticket to the reception, a copy of his book, "The Rest of the Story," attendance at the autograph party, a ticket to the dinner and a special seat at the lecture.

GWC News Bureau

Paul Harvey is heard daily over hundreds of radio stations all over North America and his television program is beamed into millions of homes in this country. He addresses almost 100 groups each year and the sizes range from 100 to more than 15,000.

His broadcasts and newspaper columns have been reprinted in the Congressional Record more than those of any other news commentator, 92 to date.

He has been presented nine honorary degrees including those from St. Bonaventure University, John Brown University, Wayland Baptist College, Montana School of Mines, Union University, Parsons College and Culver-Stockton College.

He has earned 10 Valley Forge Freedom Foundation awards and has been awarded the "Key to the City" by more than 500 communities. He has been named "Radio's Man of the Year" and also "Commentator of the Year."
