fun, too.

He went on to say, however, that these stellar activities were unfortunately, inadequate. In a few years boredom would set in and sports would be in danger of vanishing altogether.

Dont' despair. There is hope. There is, he tells me, a new game to replace all the older, complicated, and obviously outdated ones. The name of this new game? That's right Centrifugal Bumble Pubby. Let me explain, as best I can, how this game is to function.

The game centers around, as do most things in this modern world, a machine. A centrifuge, to be exact. It is to stand about eight feet high, be four feet across, with slots cut in its side and standing against a wall. There are six lanes corresponding to the slots radiating from the centrifuge. The players stand in these, in this order: immediately in front of the machine, the center; to his right the right bumble and the right puppy, with the puppy closest to the wall. It is to be the same on the left side, the left bumble and the left puppy. Once the players take position a ball is thrown into the centrifuge, is whirled around, and thrown out one of the slots. Points are scored in catching the ball, straight or on the bounce, and points lost in missing it.

That clear? The beauty of the thing is that anyone could play. Being a machine, it could be slowed down for children,

Knights Show Potential In Losing Cause

Defeated by Fredrick 67-54
Cecil Chewning Topscorer

The Knights of St. Andrews, making history by ushering in our inter-collegiate athletics, went down in a viciously-fought game at the hands of the Fredrick College Tigers to the tune of 67-54.

The Fredrick College team from Portsmouth, Va. entered the game with an excellent record from last year and last year's complete starting lineup only to find that they had to fight for their lives through-

Coach Rufus Hackney's starters Cecil Chewning, John and Joe Speaks, Doug Maxwell, and Joe Buckner quickly ran up a nine point advantage in the first quarter. This lead, however, disappeared during the second quarter with the Lions holding a four-point edge at the half-time buzzer.

The Fredrick boys poured on the steam during the second half and at one time held a lead of 12 points only to see the knights, who were never out of contention throughout the game, fight within five points of the lead. Nearing the end of the game the Lions executed several successful fast breaks and managed to pile up an 11 point advantage at the final buzzer.

Cecil Chewning who shared top scoring honors with the Lion's Tex Murray, scored 16 points. He was followed by the Knight's Joe Buckner with 15 points and Jim Bunnell and Joe Speaks tied at 7 points.

Imagine the effect this would have on our everyday lives. Centrifugal Bumble Puppy centers. A tired businessman stopping off at the club for a quick game of Centrifugal Bumble Puppy before he goes home. Taking the family out for a night of Centrifugal Bumble Puppy. Impressing your girl with your skill at Centrifugal Bumble Puppy. Not to mention intercollegiate and professional Centrifugal Bumble Puppy.

And imagine that someday your son, or even your daughter could be the all-star left puppy for his high school team. I think back on my inspired expert with that crooked grin and that wild gleam in his eyes, and I can't help thinking you never can tell!!!!

Freshmen Feelings

by REBECCA CARTER

The files at St. Andrews produce some original and unusual names that strike our imagination. We have students whose last names begin with the letter A, and continuing all the way down to the Z's with Bob Zeh.

In all circles Carolyn Best can't be beaten. Although we don't have King Arthur's roundtable, we do have Jaquits Roundtree. The Freshman Class is loaded with such craftsmen as Patricia Potter, Elizabeth Hunter, and Carol Gardner. Jimmy King is the only royalty the school has to offer. Naturally, in every crowd there has to be one nut, and Rita Almond fills the bill.

Lynda Holland represents our foreign countries. James Steed would make Gene Autrey a good traveling companion. Tom Dooley must have met up with Walter Lynch on the fateful day he learned "crime doesn't pay!" During World War II Sandra Bond would have been very popular.

Girls, don't despair! We have at least one male in the crowd — Lonnie Mann. Christianity and Culture students should know a lot about Gerald Temple. George Hooks is a good example of the feelings after mid-semester grades.

Since St. Andrews is lacking in shrubbery, Charles Crabtree may come in handy. It is good to know we have one cool kid on campus — Margaret Sharpe.

Now, all we want to know is how John Redhead got his name!
