

3 Games Remain In Season

By BILL CAMPBELL

When St. Andrews resumes its first season of intercollegiate basketball after a two and a half week layoff for exams, they will face two teams that will be familiar and one new team. Coach Rufus Hackney and his staff will be working hard to bring the Knights up to their pre-exam condition and strength.

On Feb. 7, the Knights will journey to Wilmington College to do battle with the strong "Seahawks" who boast wins over many of the top university freshmen teams of the Carolinas. So far this season, the Wilmington College Seahawks have a 6-2 record, including one conference win over Charlotte College, 76-47. The Wilmington team lost two ball games to the Citadel Bullpups, 70-68; and to the UNC freshmen 79-73. Even still they managed to hold their opponents to a 67.1 scoring average per game, while the Seahawks maintained an 84.6 average.

In the first meeting between these two teams St. Andrews played one of its best games in losing by some 20 odd points. The improvement of Bill Clarke and Joe Speaks under the boards along with the shooting of Cecil Chewning, Joe Buckner, and Jerry Dawson should give the Wilmington five something to be concerned about; but the Seahawks still front a strong counter in their swift ball handling offensive and average player height of 6'3".

The 9th of February will find St. Andrews host to the fine team of Georgia State College.

St. Andrews started playing its best games of the season against these five from Georgia State. The "Businessmen" will be on a tour of North Carolina and Kentucky and will be ready to prove that they are better than the four points they used to ease by St. Andrews in Atlanta earlier this year.

A two day trip into the Palmetto State will find the Knights at Charleston, S. C. on Feb. 10 for the final game of the season against The College of Charleston. A fast team with plenty of experience is in store for the Knights who will probably shoot the works in this last game. The game will be decided by the backcourt of both teams. St. Andrews will send five guards in at different times in order to put the pressure on the guards of the College of Charleston. Seeing action will be George Britt, Joe Buckner, Doug Maxwell, and Jerry Dawson.

Sunday Reading

The Faculty Executive Committee has approved the Student Council's request that the library be open on a trial basis between the hours of 2 and 5 p.m. on Sunday for the next few weeks. The need for the library to be open on Sunday will be determined by the use made of the library during this trial period.

Brinner Organizes Radio Station; WSAP Broadcasts From Dormitory

Last Tuesday the voice of St. Andrews came on the air in the form of WSAP. This radio station was organized by Bill Brinner, president of the Radio Club who is also chief announcer. Joe Chandler, of WEWO fame, is the vice-president and will have his own show. Ed Hunt is secretary-treasurer. Professor Maurice Stirewalt is faculty advisor to the club.

WSAP broadcasts from a transmitter set up off the main lounge of Mecklenburg Dorm. The equipment belongs to Bill. Radio announcing has been Bill's hobby for a number of years and he has accumulated much useful and valuable equipment.

The club's plan is to broadcast over the campus. Federal regulations will not allow them to go outside that area.

Beginning Feb. 1 the club plans to go into full-time operations broadcasting from 2:00-12:00. The programs are to be primarily built around standard and pop tunes. There will also be some programs of "easy-listening music," and some classical programs will be added later. The club also plans some special programs, and intends to put out some "music for study" during study hours at night.

This club was in operation last year as WPJC in Maxton.

WSAP announcers are seated Bill Brinner and standing Joe Chandler.

Freshman Feelings

By REBECCA CARTER

MURPHY REDHEAD HOLLAND

The first elected officers of St. Andrews' Freshmen Class are John Redhead, president; Kay Holland, senator; and Robert Murphy, senator.

Emotions among these three ran high.

John, native of Greensboro, N. C., said, "I am highly honored to receive this position. My deep appreciation goes to all who helped me in my campaign. As President, I am willing to listen to any individual requests, and am prepared to carry them out according to my ability." John's chief goal in the coming semester is to have an active joint committee made up of members of the faculty and students. This group would discuss various problems within the Freshmen Class in order to form solutions. He believes this will serve to better unite an already strong class.

Robert Murphy, born in Martinsville, Va., said, "Upon receiving the news of my election to the Senate, I felt exhausted but happy. I am resolved to uphold all the confidence placed in me."

Gastonia native, Kay Holland, was shocked and thrilled to receive her position. Kay said, "I hope to do the best possible job for the Freshmen Class."

Every student realizes that history is in the making at St. Andrews College. The Class of '65 is backing its new officers, to the utmost, in order to do our part in constructing a strong school for those who will follow us in the future years.
