ST. ANDREWS PRESBYTERIAN COLLEGE, LAURINBURG, N. C.

MARCH 19, 1965

Constitution Up For Vote

School Receives New Honor Code

The proposed honor code is now being considered by the faculty executive committee. It reads as follows:

The students of St. Andrews Presbyterian College, with the concurrence of the faculty and administration, have voluntarily assumed the responsibility of creating and maintaining an Honor Community to challenge moral complacency and irresponsibility. This Honor Community is based on mutual respect and trust, and therefore must function in an atmosphere of freedom and harmony. The individual fulfills his responsibility of maintaining this Community by basing his actions on the assumption that every person is worthy of respect and trust.

Cheating, stealing, lying, and any other actions which threaten this respect and trust, by their very nature, destroy the Honor Community. Everyone who becomes a student at St. Andrews is on his honor not to cheat, steal, lie or threaten the Honor Community in matters involving campus life or academic work and to do what he can to discourage dishonorable actions.

In order to encourage the growth of the Honor Community, the students of St. Andrews Presbyterian College have defined their responsibilities in this Honor Code:

If a student does cheat, steal, lie, or threaten the Honor Community in any other way, the offense should be reported to the Student Judiciary Board.

All Honor offenses are subject to review by the Student Judiciary Board. This Board has the authority to judge infractions of the Honor Code and to take whatever disciplinary action it deems necessary for the good of the Honor Community.

Peace Pilgrim Stops To Speak On Campus

PEACE PILGRIM

After 13 years of wandering the leathery skinned woman found herself on St. Andrews campus. Peace Pilgrim has walked over 25,000 miles on speaking tours trying to inspire others to do something about world peace. She is penniless, owns only what she wears, and has no organizational backing. She consumes only what is given to her and frequently sleeps in bus stations or even by the roadside.

Mankind, she declares, is drifting toward war and destruction out of pure apathy and only meaningful action by the concerned backed by inner understanding and harmony can ameliorate man's immaturity. This harmony must be introduced on the interpersonal, community, and international levels.

This is a challenge to St. Andrews Peace Corps.

We, the students of St. Andrews Presbyterian College, with the concurrence of the Board of Trustees, Administration, and Faculty, recognizing our fallibility and the changing context of our community, do nevertheless, by the forgiving grace of God in Christ, dedicate ourselves to the intense pursuit of knowledge and meaning as we challenge complacency and mediocrity in all phases of life and to the development of a maturity which faces both the ideals and the realities of our corporate life, and do hereby establish this Constitution for the purpose of more effectively accepting this perpetual challenge to share mutual concerns, obligations, and responsibilities with the Faculty and the Administration, and thus preparing us to participate in responsible and informed relations among all men:

St. Andrews Begins Spring Planting

The donation of fifty-five live oaks by Mrs. Hasty, dorm mother of Albemarle, and new equipment acquired by the maintenance department are helping to speed spring planting at St. Andrews.

The trees, taken from the D.A. Hasty farm at Hasty are live oaks and have been carefully planted around the campus. The oaks have been donated in honor of the late Mr. D.A. Hasty by Mrs. Hasty. Mr. Hannah, campus engineer, stated that St. Andrews is indeed grateful for the trees and that they would certainly add to the beauty of the campus.

The equipment in the form of a new auger attachment for the tractor and a new hydraulic crane are now being used by the maintenance department. The auger attachment, sometimes called a post-hole digger eliminates the need of digging holes for the new trees by hand. It looks like a giant corkscrew and can dig a hole twenty four inches wide and three feet deep. The hydraulic crane, the newest addition to the maintenance department is quite a machine. It is completely hydraulic, can go anywhere with four wheel drive, and has such features as electric brake locks, a wench, and a sixteen-foot boom. The crane is capable of lifting six thousand pounds.

Both the crane and auger have been used effectively. The crane is being used to bring the newly trees back to campus, to lift the new concrete picnic tables, and other jobs that require heavy lifting. It has also been used to drill drainage holes in the athletic field.
