

Spring Fling Tops Events

Everyone get your dance shoes polished up and your Saturday duds to the cleaners because it's Spring Fling time! The weekend of May 1 is the late and the entertainment promises to be great.

Friday night, April 29 starts the proceedings with Ronnie Hess and the Rythm Kings playing a formal dance in the student center. The attire is formal or anything appropriate and girls have late permission until 12:15. The dance is co-sponsored by The Lance and the girls of Concord form. This dance was conceived among people for people. It is without charge, get that again, no charge, and promises to be a real swinging affair. Ronnie and the Rythm Kings have played at numerous place including Duke, State, W&L, The Blair House in Durham, The Plantation Inn in Raleigh, and others. The remarkable success of this dance is to their brilliant and wide-ranged repertoire. Specializing in all types of music, they play popular jazz, dixieland, rock n' roll. Ronnie and his band are not charging for this dance as their contribution to the Spring Fling.

Saturday afternoon brings us one other than the Four Preps. The concert is slated for 2:30 at the National Guard Armory. The Four Preps have made hit songs such as Twenty Six Miles, Two Wrongs Don't make a Right, and others. Tickets are $2.50 plus tax in advance, and $3.00 at the door. The Four Preps need no introduction, they have pleased night club and college audiences all over the nation. Due to the tremendous cost of this group, the concert has been opened to the outside also, so get your tickets now.

Patty and The Emblems will be on campus Saturday night. They are famous for their hit "I'm a Mixed Up, Shook Up Girl." Girls again have late permission, this time until 1:00. Dress for both the concert and the dance Saturday night is usual.

Dr. Altman Appointed At St. Andrews

LAURINBURG, N. C. — The appointment of Dr. W. Forrest Altman of Greensboro as an associate professor of English at St. Andrews Presbyterian College beginning next fall has been announced by Dean Robert F. Davidson.

Dr. Altman is currently an associate professor of English and acting head of his department at Guilford College. For four years he was an associate professor of English at Earlham College in Richmond, Indiana, and had previously taught as an instructor at the University of Tennessee in Knoxville.

Dean Davidson noted that the new professor is a specialist in the field of American literature. He has directed workshops in religious drama, and has worked with campus groups in drama, journalism, and creative writing.

A graduate of Earlham College, the new St. Andrews faculty member took his masters degree at the University of Pittsburgh, and earned his doctorate in English at Florida State University.

Dr. Altman's religious affiliation is with the Society of Friends. He and Mrs. Altman have two children.

St. Andrews Hiring English Professors

LAURINBURG, N. C. — Dr. W. D. White, an assistant professor and director of undergraduate studies in religion at Duke University, will join the faculty of St. Andrews Presbyterian College as professor of English in September.

Before coming to the Duke faculty in 1961, Dr. White had been an assistant professor of English at St. Olaf College in Northfield, Minn., and at Baylor University in Waco, Texas.

In making the appointment, Dean Robert F. Davidson of St. Andrews noted that Dr. White has given lectures and addresses at 14 colleges and universities in addition to papers at major state and regional professional meetings in the past three years.

In March Dr. White addressed the Missouri-Kansas Faculty Christian Fellowship at Kansas City and lectured at Park College, Missouri.

At Duke, Dr. White has been active in the American Association of University Professors, the Modern Language Association, and the American Academy of Religion.

A graduate of Baylor University in his native Texas, Prof. White took his masters degree at Princeton and his doctorate in English at the University of Texas, with a minor in German language and literature.

During World War II, the new St. Andrews faculty member saw two years of combat with an infantry division in Europe, becoming a first lieutenant after a battlefield commission. He and Mrs. White are Baptists, and they have two children.
