Dean Decker Releases New Program

The Admissions Office has been conducting a very aggressive program this year according to Dean Roger W. Decker.

In addition to representing St. Andrews at various high school "College Days" programs in North Carolina, Dean Decker has been to a number of conferences - The American Association of Admissions Counselors held in Denver, Colorado; the College Scholarship Service in New York City; and The College Entrance Examination Board conference also held in New York City. These meetings provide an opportunity for others to hear about St. Andrews and its programs and for St. Andrews to learn about policies and procedures followed in other institutions of higher learning.

It is to be noted that at the Admissions Conference in Denver, St. Andrews set up a booth with about 400 other colleges. Our publications were thought to be superior to those of the other colleges.

Representing St. Andrews at high school "College Day" programs are Norman Foxworth in North Carolina; Robert Crawford in South Carolina; Mr. Vandersall in Virginia; and Benny Brockwell

Orange Grove to Be A-Go-Go Discotheque

"Orange Grove has the potential of being one of the most unusual and sophisticated school-sponsored events of the year," feels Lynne Pou, Orange Dormitory social chairman.

This year's theme for the event which has been sponsored annually by Orange Dormitory, is Orange Grove A-Go-Go. Set for November 13, the event will be held at Southern Pines in a home belonging to a large estate, which was once a Catholic school. The house has the capacity to set 175 people comfortably for dinner.

This year, Orange Grove will last from 6:30 until approximately 11:30 depending on the length of permission granted.

Dress is semi-formal with special Orange Grove corsages available at the local florist.

A dinner, show, and dance will highlight the event. The buffet spaghetti supper will be served from a central location to six different dining rooms.

There is a spacious ballroom which will be the scene of this year's entertainment. Mr. Robert F. Davenport will be the Master of Ceremonies. One of the main features will be a "jug" band, one of the country's newest rages, consisting of jugs, wash-tubs, guitars, kazoos and anything that can be used to produce a musical note. Robert Frothingham will be the "band leader."

Due to the excellence of last year's entertainment, this year's Orange Grove will bring back some of the enjoyable talent, including the Orange Grove chorus girls, that were the highlight of last year's performance.

Following the entertainment, a discotheque dance is scheduled, featuring 45 records played on a complex stereo with speakers in all corners of the ballroom.

There are only 85 couple tickets available at four dollars per couple due to the amount of space available in the house. The tickets will be sold in the main lounge of Orange dorm to members of Orange first. Early next week, they will be opened campus-wide.

Watch for further announcements concerning this year's Orange Grove A-Go-Go.

Vocational Rehabilitation Gives St. Andrews One Year Program

St. Andrews Presbyterian College has been selected for a one-year grant by the U.S. Vocational Rehabilitation Administration in a pilot study of programs for handicapped students, it was announced today by President Ansley C. Moore.

Notification of the grant of $30,533 as recommended by the National Advisory Council on Vocational Rehabilitation was made by Commissioner Mary E. Switzer to Dr. Moore. The college will add $9,025 to make up the total cost of the project, which begins November 1.

Taking part in the project will be 13 St. Andrews students with physical limitations, each of whom will have a student "aide" as counselor and helper.

Major aim of the project is to discover what academic programs, sociological factors, and admissions requirements will enable the student to plan for a rewarding longevity after college.

The St. Andrews study will also make use of aptitude and personality tests, interviews, regular counseling periods, and conferences weekly with a college in Georgia.

When the regular "College Day" programs are completed, the staff will be visiting other states on the Eastern seaboard. The work of the admissions staff is done mainly through the Presbyterian Churches and school guidance counselors.

In a typical day, 12 different high schools are visited and this goes on for 40 weeks. Thus many people in many different areas are reached by the St. Andrews Admissions staff.

Data from these and other phases of the program will be used to develop case studies on individual adjustments to college life. The first annual report on the entire project will be prepared during 1966.

Project director is Dr. Ralph Hester, dean of students at St. Andrews. On a recent tour he studied programs for handicapped students at the University of Missouri and the University of Illinois, which have also used VRA grants in this field.

Robert A. Lassiter, director of the North Carolina Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, will be a consultant to the program.

Serving as medical consultants will be Dr. L. L. Schurter, medical consultant for the state's Division of Vocational Rehabilitation, and Dr. Robert Gregg, head of the Department of Physical Medicine and Rehabilitation at Duke University.

Four faculty and staff members at St. Andrews will assist with the project: Rodger W. Decker, assistant dean of the college and dean of admissions; Dr. David B. Hawk, professor of sociology; Dr. Alvin H. Smith, associate professor of psychology; and Robert M. Urie, vocational guidance counselor at the Presbyterian Guidance Center.

Local medical consultants will be the two college physicians, Dr. Hugh McArn, Jr., and Dr. David Williams, as well as Dr. George Shannon, urologist. St. Andrews has two staff nurses - Mrs. Selah Stephens and Mrs. Ruth Eidson.
