"Players" Present Giraudoux Play

THE MAD WOMAN OF CHAILLOT by Jean Giraudoux is a mixture of poetic drama, satirical fantasy, and literary improvisation that commends itself to playgoers as a theatrical fable.

In MADWOMAN, Giraudoux heaped scorn on the predatory aspects of modern European society but added fantasy to his disapproval, taking delight in imagining how gratifying it could be if the cold, materialistic intelligence of modern enterprise could be routed by noble irrationality. His play, in brief, is a poetic social drama written with whimsy, self-conscious artfulness, and wishful thinking.

The Chailot district of Paris is an area of many colorful characters, such as: The Sewer-Man, Joe Mitchell; The Ragpicker, Jeff Alhelm; The Flower Girl, Carol Fetter; The Deaf-Mute, Beth Valentine; and Dr. Jadin, Jim Carpenter. These are the carefree common folk of the district.

The first setting of the play is in a cafe in this district. Among the characters here are: The Waiter, Rute Righton; and the Shoelace Peddler, Suuzie Mowrey. The cafe has been invaded by a group of men dedicated to stamp out beauty: The Prospector, Bill Bradley; The President, Pat Siddall; The Baron, George Sherril; The Policeman, Bill Hitt; The Sergeant, Marshall Krug; and Ladies are Sally Syphrit, Sally Carlson, and Barbara Olson.

To the rescue of Chailot, and the saving grace of the play come the four Madwomen: Countess Aurella, Mary Linda Key; Mme. Constance, Elaine Elwell; Mlle. Gabrielle, Phyllis Dieth; and Mme. Josephine, Nancy Young. Luckily, their highlevel conference on the future of the human race saves the day.

Of course, every comedy must have its lovers and THE MADWOMAN OF CHAILLOT is no exception. Irma, Kathy Levitt; and Pierre, Ed Minnich; play these heart-throbbing characters.

Mr. Dub Narramore, chairman of the Department of Drama, is directing the play. Dolly Galloway is his assistant, and Jo Wakefield is the prompter. MADWOMAN will be presented on Oct. 11-14.

Lettermen Take Squires For Ride Ending Week of Labor

With the trip last night, the Letterman's Initiation is almost over for thirty squires. These squires (perspective lettermen) will soon join ranks with the twenty-five present lettermen.

This whole week, squires have had special requirements that set them apart from the ordinary St. Andrews student. All squires were required to wear a coat and tie between the hours of 7:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. every day of this week, unless given specific orders not to. Shoes must be shined for flag raising and lowering each day. No squire is allowed to smoke in public for his entire period of servitude. Squires may not leave campus unless given WRITTEN PERMISSION. Finally, squires will walk everywhere unless otherwise ordered.

Sunday night the inductees met at the flagpole promptly at 11:15 p.m. At this time teams were selected--seven teams with four boys each. The squires were paraded about the girls' campus where they serenaded various dorms. After the singing game, came pall games (from the windows of Wilmington and Concord dorms) and leap frog. At this time the point system was announced. Squires are given points by lettermen for various "unnecessities." If a squire were to accumulate more than fifty points he would not be able to become a member of the Lettermen's Club.

Throughout the week a great variety of activities were included in the Squires' plans. Squires were to be present at the flagpole for ceremonies at 7:00 a.m. and 7:00 p.m. every day. Tuesday night the group was sent on a wild scavenger hunt, and Wednesday they were allowed to perform certain labors for the betterment of the campus.

Clad in nothing but sweat suits (minus waist strings) the squires were taken out and dumped in desolated areas within a thirty mile radius (as the crow flies). The activities for that evening were full of surprises.

Tomorrow the squires will be hired out to faculty members for labor with a minimum price of fifty cents an hour. The money earned will be added to the club treasury. Dressed in their very best the Squires will be honored at a dinner Saturday night. At this time the "Best Squire" will be selected and sweaters will be presented.

Present cheerleaders Salli Chapin, Todd White, and Becky Suddreth practice flip so that they can demonstrate to the newly elected how to go about boosting "The Knights" onto victory in our varied sports.

Legislation Begins For 67-68

The St. Andrews Senate has begun another year of legislation for the student body.

At the first meeting on September 4, the Senate set up a temporary traffic committee to function until a permanent one is established by a rules committee resolution, which will soon be voted on by the Senate.

Cheerleaders Add to Ranks

The dates September 4-8 marked five days of hard work for some of S. A.'s peppiest co-eds. These were the days they jumped, yelled, and in other similar ways trained for the cheerleading try-outs held on Monday, September 11. During the try-outs each girl was required to perform three cheers and four jumps. Another very important part of the judging, says Pat Cooney, included teaching each girl a new cheer on the spur of the moment.

Those girls who cheered last year will automatically lead our yelling at the athletic events this year also if they choose to do so. These include Todd White, Peggy McCulloch, Becky Suddreth, Sally Chapin, and Marsha Hill.

The new regulars chosen include senior Jo Ellen Schild, sophomore Barbara Moore, and freshman Sally Edmonds. Janice Wells, a junior, and Rolverta Levitt, a freshman, will serve as alternates on the squad.

Also, two amendments to the Constitution were discussed. These amendments will be voted on by the student body on September 19.

One amendment concerns the election of appointment of any person on any type of probation to any office in the student association.

The other amendment concerns the academic classification of dorm Senators.

The food committee, headed by Pete Peery from Winston-Salem dorm, gave a report on their consultations with Mr. Hulka and the cafeteria staff.

The next Senate meeting will be Monday, September 18.

Attends Conference

Miss Mary W. McNeill, Associate Dean of Admissions, will be attending the 23rd National Conference of the "Association of College Admissions Counselors" October 5-7.

The conference is being held in the Leamington Hotel in Minneapolis, Minnesota.

The major purpose of this meeting will be to give college admissions officers the opportunity to meet guidance counselors in the secondary school system.

Miss McNeill will also be attending sessions on "Data Processing's Place in Admissions," "Private and Public Higher Education," and "New Patterns in Admissions," with particular emphasis on the common application form.

According to Miss McNeill, this conference will be a "college day in reverse."
