For The First Time...

Blessings, from the Pope

Graduation Day, May 25, will take away many St. Andrews students who have had a large part in shaping this school.

THE LANCE will miss "our" seniors next year. The fine work of Joe Junod, Linda Susong, and Scott McCrea made it possible for the paper to be named the third best small college newspaper in the state. They devoted many hours a week working on THE LANCE. Their work will be missed.

Next year's staff has a hard act to follow. But we have many capable people ready to fill the roles assigned. Sara Lee and Charlie Pratt will take over the duties of associate editors. Both are excellent writers with many imaginative ideas. In the sports department, Mike Keech has been named to succeed McCrea. Keech is very familiar with sports, and will be an asset on next year's staff. We will have to work hard to continue the tradition of excellence set this year. This we accept.

To Joe, Linda, and Scott, all we can say is thank you for your work and for the challenge you have presented us. Best wishes to you all for the future.

WSAP's 'Big Giv-Away' Enlivens Fling Week

BY DAVID BERRY

"The campus is taking us for granted".

"Dave, we need some way to let them know that WSAP is not just for its members, but for the entire campus".

Hearing these comments from WSAP members, the Big WSAP Three Day Spring Giv-Away was born. We started collecting records, albums and skimming on movie passes, which are normally the only "pay" a WSAP member receives. The remote unit got a change of paint from green to bright orange. We decided it was just the thing to start Spring Fling off right.

So, with cardboard boxes bursting with 2600 45's, 70-some albums, 150 movie passes, 20 Spring Fling tickets, 20 gift certificates, posters and all the rest, totaling well over $2100 worth of prizes, and after an expensive radio, poster, wall-painting and newspaper promotions campaign, at 5:00 on Tuesday, April 15, we were ready to go. And, we did. One contest followed another and prizes went like crazy.

Our scavenger hunt items were found in quick time, with the exception of the American Legion cannon. The cannon, too, was on its way to the school about 10:00 when the Laurinburg police, after following the cannon some 600 yards in confusion, finally decided to stop it and make the scavengers take it back. To top Tuesday night off, WSAP had a briefest bikini contest. Three girls came and so did 150 students to watch the actions as Claire Morgan won.

At five on Wednesday, the remote Giv-Away unit cranked up again. At six the Scavenger Hunt started. At 6:15 it was all over. At 8:00, a Laurinburg policeman was arrested by WSAP in a contest, WSAP sponsored a wheelchair race with two divisions at 8:15. Charlie Pratt won the electric division; and Alan Mason won, after a false start in the other division, after his competitor, Jim Rothrock, took a curve too fast. The conclusion of the night was a go-go dance contest with Barbara Clagett winning.

Thursday night came--with lots of prizes left and they all had to go, and they did. The Scavenger Hunt had "objects", including Dr. Moore, Dean Davidson, Dr. Doubles, Dr. Carver, Mrs. Overholser, and Mr. Davenport, who were all brought to the remote unit.

Sommervilles Return To SA

Mr. and Mrs. Thomas Sommerville will return to the St. Andrews Music Department this fall after advanced study at the University of Southern California.

Mr. Sommerville, who will resume his position as director of the School of Music, completes work this summer for his DMA degree (doctor of musical arts). He received his B.A. and B.M. degrees from the University of Southern California.

Before coming to St. Andrews originally, Mr. Sommerville was director of music at Rose-land Presbyterian Church in Illinois and, later, a member of the Chicago Symphony chorus.

Mrs. Virginia Sommerville will return as assistant professor of voice after doing graduate work in voice beyond the Masters degree. She received the Bachelor of Music degree from the University of Dubuque and the M.M. degree from Roosevelt University in Chicago.

Dean Robert F. Davidson, Dean of the college, in announcing the Sommvilles' return said, "Both Mr. and Mrs. Sommerville made a significant contribution to the music program here before their return to study. I am sure that they, as they rejoin the staff, will help to strengthen the program in the school of music."

Newly-discovered St. Andrews sexpot, Miss (?) Candy Vohs, representing Mecklenburg, reigned over ten other contenders in WSAP's dress-up-like-a-sexy-girl contest. The contest highlighted the third and final day of the radio station's 'Big Giv-Away', and was attended by an hysterical crowd of three hundred students, whose applause selected Vohs as winner.

Candidates For Seminary See Church As "Sleeping Giant" draft. As one might expect, there are differences of opinion on the draft and Vietnam among not only the four speakers, but all twelve men.

The varying degrees of dissent on the war range from George Ducker and Jan Bartlett who said they would probably go and possibly serve in a combatant role, to Pete Cook and Bill Wilson who said they would not serve at all, in any capacity. They are against the system and would refuse induction. The rest feel they would probably serve in the army if drafted, though as CO's and noncombatants. Some of them, Benny Gurley being one, feel that the Vietnam War is not morally justified but would serve as a noncombatant as opposed to five years in prison. More can be done out of prison than in.

Several of the students said they had planned to go to theological school long before the question of the draft came up. David Flucke said, though, that he would have taken a year off first if it had not been for the war. Most of the twelve have or are probably soon to get their 4-D (divinity school) deferments and so have nothing to worry about.

All agree on two points. First of all, none of them are really up for fighting in Vietnam, for whatever reasons.

Secondly, all the aspirants pretty well saw the church as (to coin the phrase Scott McCrea used) a "sleeping giant". Some such as Tom Wood are against today's organized church and feel it has forgotten its mission and needs to be changed much in order to follow that mission. Most want to work with people and see definite possibilities for the church in our society. And Dan Beerman warned that the church should not be an instrument of the status quo. He feels the church can help effect necessary social change and work with the people and act as the sometimes necessary middleman in certain affairs where a communications' gap has arisen.

BOB BREWBAKER

On this subject, Houston Wheeler feels the church could be an instrument of dialogue where it recognizes differences between peoples and acts as a link, of dialogue, between the factions. George Sherrill was brought up in the mountains and is a "mountain people" and feels there is a cultural gap between their society and ours. He wants to work with them and help them bridge this gap through the church.

Dr. Alexander asked the very relevant question in Chapel as to whether one can be anything but a minister and still be a Christian. The consensus was a definite yes. George Ducker later summed up everyone's ideas when he said that he wants to see Christianity in the outside world, not in the Bible-reading world of church-going little old ladies. One can't just hide in church and wallow in God.
