Conference On Cities Set To Begin Next Tuesday

A conference on Comparative Urbanization is being sponsored by the Senior C&C program next week. The conference will take place on Tuesday and Wednesday of next week, February 13th and 14th. Three distinguished guest speakers will be featured at the several sessions of the conference. (See schedule) They are the Rt. Hon. Belaunde-Terry, former President of Peru; Dr. Nathan Wright, Jr., civil rights activist and author, and Mr. David Parry, urban consultant in Washington, D. C.

The first speaker, Dr. Fernando Belaunde-Terry, is now living in exile after being deposed by the current military regime of Peru. He was President from 1963-68, and has been compared to this country's late President Kennedy. He is a distinguished architect and has been a guest lecturer and visiting professor at several leading U. S. universities, notably Harvard, Stanford, Cornell, and Duke.

Dr. Nathan Wright, Jr. is the second featured speaker. He is a professor of Urban Studies at New York University, and is author of several books, among them "Let's Get Together" and "Ready To Riot". In 1967, he was Chairman of the National Conference on Black Power, and National Conference on Black Power, and has been a leader in the civil rights movement. He also served as an organizer in the New England CORE program.

Mr. David Parry will be the third guest, and will present a slide show on Tuesday night. He is a consultant to the Washington, D. C. Center for Metropolitan Studies.

Group workshops will also be held on Wednesday afternoon, according to George Fouke, director of the C&C 402 program. He said these groups would provide an opportunity for direct discussion with each of the guest speakers. The workshops, like the rest of the conference, will be open to all students and other interested persons.

'Career Day' Set For Next Week

The St. Andrews Alumni Office is sponsoring the 2nd annual Career Day next Friday, February 16th. This event will give students an opportunity to talk with St. Andrews graduates in various areas of employment they might be interested in pursuing after their own graduation.

Career Day will operate on a more informal basis this year, with the various alumni having tables in the college cafeteria where students interested in talking about these respective fields will be invited to talk during the lunch hour. If any students wish further discussion later in the day, appointments will be arranged for them with the alumni.

Mr. Joe Overton of the Class of 1967 is the chairman for this program, and will direct the inquiries to the 24 alumni who will be present at this time. Areas covered will be social work, elementary education, secondary education, teaching on the college level, design and decoration, theatre, music, law, counseling and personnel, banking, medical technology, radio, newspaper work, advertising, computer work, insurance, career counseling, church work, medicine and related fields.

A more complete list of the names of people to see in these areas will be published in next week's Lance.

Dr. Nathan Wright, one of the featured speakers in next week's Conference on Comparative Urbanization.

Free U.: Your Chance To Teach And Learn

BY BOB CHAIKEN

Many St. Andrews students and faculty, along with Scotland County residents, realize the ever increasing need to join the Town and the College into a unified community. It occurs to us that there is a great wealth of intellectual resources and manual skills available in this town that can provide interesting and educational experiences for young and old alike. The challenge comes in trying to tap these resources. Free University may be a viable alternative!

The Free University Courses at St. Andrews this fall achieved varied degrees of success in terms of leadership, shared experience and enrollment. It is hoped that courses offered this spring will stimulate ever greater interest.

The major feature of Free U is that anyone can start a course about anything and anyone can sign up for the courses at no cost. The College will provide assistance in finding space for the courses and scheduling the first meeting. Though we do not have much money, we will help course leaders try to find any resources they need for their courses.

You don't have to be an expert to start a course. If you want to learn something with a group of others who have the same idea in mind, that is enough. Courses may range from macramé to conversational Swahili.

New courses will be starting on a regular basis in March. A catalog containing all of the course offerings will be distributed around town late in February. If you have questions or suggestions, contact Bob Chaiken (Ext. 342) at St. Andrews. If you would like to start a course, please see Bob Chaiken or Mrs. Ramona Wright in Student Personnel at your earliest convenience.

Students Needed In Archaeological Projects

Students are urgently invited to help in archaeological excavations in England this summer. Deadline for applications is April 1.

American students free from mid-May, and with previous archaeological experience, are invited to join an international team on a dig of the important Anglo-Saxon site at Spong Hill

Other students without experience are invited to join the British Archaeology Seminar Lincoln College, Oxford, organized by the Association for Cultural Exchange.

Write now for further details to Ian Lawson, 539 West 112th Street, New York, N. Y. 10025.

This Friday, the College Union Board is Presenting Darrow Igus, a versatile comedian and impressionist, in two shows at 8 and 9 in the main lounge of the union. He has appeared in several night clubs and on television shows, and also is a talented singer and actor. His act will include impressions of several well known performers and actors. Admission is free and all students are urged to attend to see his fine show.
