Newsletter Members Attend C.S.P.A.

Three members of the Newsletter staff, accompanied by Mrs. Edna Mitchell, adviser, attended the 36th convention of the Columbia Scholastic Press Association held on Columbia University campus in New York, New York on March 17-19. Mary Puryear, literary editor; Stewart Vick, sports editor; and Henry Pickett, editor-in-chief served as representatives.

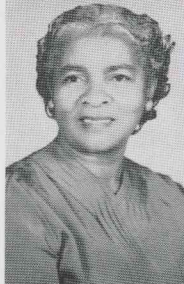

The first place visited on the campus Thursday, March 17, was the Columbia University Library. In the Rotunda of Low Memorial Library were many different publications concerned with Journalism in High Schools, Elementary Schools, Private Schools and Colleges on display. There was also a variety of journalistic material in the Rotunda. Thursday, the teachers College Division held its first meeting. A panel: "News Appeal on the Campus" was presented by Eugene Berg, Assistant Editor Scholastic Magazines; Dr. A. Boyet, State College, Mansfield, Pa.; Delores Rherer, State College, Millersville, Pa.; and Leonard Bader, member of Education News Staff, the New York Times. Other interesting sessions were held on Friday; also a luncheon in J-Hall.

The last official meeting of the Teachers College Division was a business session in the Louis XIV Suite of the Waldorf Astoria on Saturday morning. Officers for 1960-61 were elected, and plans were made for the year.

At 12 noon delegates from the several areas assembled in the beautifully decorated Grand Ballroom for the annual Dinner. Guests were presented by Colonel Joseph Murphy, Director of the association. Sir Hugh Scott Taylor, president of the Woodrow Wilson Foundation, in a scholarly address, urged the young journalists to accept the challenge of today's living even if it means postponing marriage.

Special awards were announced.

Adviser Honored

Variety Show Presented

The variety presented a most enjoyable Variety Show in the College Auditorium on March 31.

Cleve Pettigrew, Director of Education, told the audience that the show would take the staff back to the days "When They Were Very Young." To begin the program, a mixed ensemble sang "It's A Most Unusual Day."

A skit, which was a satire on an 8:00 Class in Social Science, was then given with Mrs. Estelle Eaton in the role of the teacher. This was a typical example of what goes on in many classrooms today, before and after the teacher arrives. Talking, gum-chewing, making-up and even going to sleep, all characterized the lachrymose class.

A trumpet solo, "Danny Boy" was played by Mr. Herbert Bryant. Other solos were "To A Wild Rose" by Tim Womack, "Dear Hearts and Gentle People," Ossie Rayall; "You Belong to Me," Waverly Jones; and "So Tired," Walter Ridley, a fitting climax for this part of the program.

There were other features of interest. Dances enjoyed by the audience were Texas Star, Night Train and the Madson. Three readings, "On Love" by Lil Duers; "When Malindy Sings," Marilyn Carter and "On His Blindness," by Chester Gregory were well received. Garland Kyle entertained with his Romantic "Miscellany" including a song of Hawaii which was accompanied by a dance by Estel'e Eaton in costume. Nina Richardson gave a finger talk, "Boll Weevil" and "Lazy Bones."

A choral ensemble, "There's No Business Like Show Business" was the finale for the variety show.

The audience then sang "Happy Birthday" in honor of Dr. Walter N. Ridley.

WGA Honors Faculty Women

Each year the Women's Government Association has a period of recognition at the end of the Vesper Service. This is for the wife of the president of the college and that person to be the person who has made a contribution and example for the students of Elizabeth City State Teachers College to follow.

This year the students voted to honor Mrs. Edna Mitchell, professor in the English Department, for her contributions as teacher; adviser to college publication, The Newsletter; community worker in Federation of Women's Clubs, local and state; alumnus, and mother of a daughter about to be graduated from college.

Mrs. Ridley was recognized as the active, charming, and busy wife of the president of the college. She was presented a lovely potted chrysanthemum; Mrs. Mitchell was presented a beautifully bound copy of "Leaves of Gold."

Dr. Garland Kyle On Man's Place In Nature

Dr. Garland Kyle made his debut in Moore Auditorium on April 7, by delivering an excellent lecture on "Man's Place in Nature, Time and Space."

With an optimistic attitude, he asked each student to take everything with sincerity and try to use his individual self in doing it. "Some of the greatest things done have been done by young people," elaborated Dr. Kyle. "Will is everything, and we can do everything well if we keep the will," he continued.

In closing, he said if we use our mental faculties, we will be able to reach our goals.

CLARENCE BIGGS

Collins Speaks To Sigma Rho Sigma

"Challenge and Response" was the topic Mr. Brinston Collins, Social Science instructor used in presenting an address to the Iota Chapter of the Sigma Rho Sigma Honor Society, on April 21, in Lester Hall.

In the outset, he gave challenges that will face Social Scientists: "A society of rapid change, not of immediate surrounding, but of the entire world; new concepts; soaring sixties; and a need for understanding."

Mr. Collins asked a question. "What do the new rockets and other inventions mean to you?" In elaborating on the question, he said "There is a call for higher scholarship." The problem of how people will get along with one another during the Sixties was mentioned by the speaker. Social Scientists must study and promote recognition of achievement, cooperation, human relations, and growth and development. In order to solve the problem, said the speaker.

Concluding his address, Mr. Collins said, "The challenge is forever flung across the pages of history. Response has been exceedingly slow and taken up by only a few."

Barbara White and Trumilla Johnson recited Negro poems by James Weldon Johnson, Henry Pickett, president of the Chapter acted as master of ceremony and Mr. C. W. Gregory, advise gave invigorating remarks on Mr. Collins' speech.

Students of Elizabeth City State Teachers College who have proven to be outstanding in various organizations or activities on campus will be honored on Awards Night which is to be held in Moore Hall Auditorium on May 18, 1960.

New Pyramid Catches the Glow Another freshman young lady has watched the glow of Delta women and has made her initial step into Greekdom. She is Mamie Malborn of Princess Anne, Virginia. Delta Chi wishes her luck as she joins the Pyramid ranks.

Ques Sponsor Assembly Delta Dream Comes True

Lambda Gamma Chapter of Omega Psi Phi Fraternity presented Brother John E. Trotman, minister of the St. Stephen Baptist Church, Elizabeth City, as sepa for the regular Assembly on April 28.

The speaker began his message by stating that we take joy ourselves. We should not take just an outward view of ourselves, but, rather, we should take an inward view. Too many times we attribute our shortcomings to someone else. Self knowledge leads us into the real self.

"Preparation is next in attainment," said the speaker. The people who are bored with life are the people who have no goals; they are not making preparation to contribute to society. The cry today is to produce or be left behind.

Rev. Trotman further stated that the only way to judge a person is by his purpose. All college students should ask themselves three questions: Who am I? Where am I going? and What is my purpose? We should take good look at "self" and wake up to self-realization.

Biggs Enters Greekdom

Clarence Biggs, sophomore, recently crossed the burning sands into Omega Land. Lambda Gamma Chapter of the Omega Psi Phi Fraternity is glad to welcome into its ranks this conscientious and industrious student.

Delta Neophytes

MRS. MASON

She related to the audience the incident of the students at Greensboro Colleges knocking on the doors of every Negro family in the area telling and explaining to them the importance of their votes.

Mrs. Mason stated that integration is a state of mind, that there is but one race, the human race. She said that any student who does not believe that integration is the only way of life has gained very little educationally. It was pointed out that segregation is immoral and a poor philosophy of life.

It was also brought out that we, as the future leaders of America, should be determined that we are going to prepare ourselves for the great future that lies ahead. "Students should make up in their minds

Four lovely, energetic young ladies rejoiced with prophesies of Delta Chi Chapter, Delta Sigma Theta Sorority, when they realized that a dream had come true and a journey completed.

For a week they serenaded the campus singing "Delta is my Heart-Set Goal" and many other beautiful songs. Crowds gathered around them daily. Finally, they set their feet in Greekdom with Delta as the home plate.

Those neophytes bring varied talents and outstanding qualities to Delta. Joyce Welch, sophomore of Halifax, is a member of the Dance Group, Thalia Sorosis Club, Dormitory Council, and Alpha Kappa Mu Interest Group. She is also eligible for Sigma Rho Sigma Honorary Society. For two years she has been the highest ranking student in her class.

Gladys Johnson, sophomore, Scotland Neck is a pleasant, conscientious worker. During her two years she has played leading roles in the annual college dramatic performances. She is also secretary of the Sunday School.

Helen Boone, sophomore of Gatesville, is cheerful, friendly and dignified with an interest in campus activities. She is a former member of the Cheering Squad.

Helen Foye, a sophomore of Selma, is a refined young lady who strives not only for the betterment of self but others. Her scholarship is above the average, and she participates in intramural sports.

Zetas Induct Nine

The Alpha Gamma Chapter of the Zeta Phi Beta Sorority recently inducted into the Archonian Club nine young ladies: Olivia Honable, Shirdella Smith, Shirley Sims, Emma Maye, Gloria Joyner, Ernestine Maye, Virginia Simmons, Dorothy Colton, and Minnie Lowe. Other members of the Archonian Club are Aileen Modlin, Carolyn Branch, and Elsie Brown.

"Finer Womanhood" the main objective of the Beta Sorority is what these young ladies are seeking. It is hoped that they will strive to maintain at all times desirable traits that lead to the betterment of the organization.

now that they will not accept second class citizenship in a first class society," said Mrs. Mason.
