

Exchange Student Reports to Campus

3 W-S State Coeds Are Enrolled at SIU

Winston-Salem State College recently began a new phase of their exchange program with Southern Illinois University of Carbondale, Ill. Three undergraduates from State are currently enrolled at SIU and one undergraduate from the university is attending State under the program.

The new arrival on campus is Guy Pearce of Marion, Ill. WSSC exchange students are Adlena Faye Howie of Winston-Salem, Bernice Seward of Wilmington and Gloria Ann Barringer of Huntersville.

Dr. Kenneth R. Williams, president of WSSC, welcomed Pearce to the campus and wished his own students well on their departure.

"We are happy to have you on our campus, young man," Williams told Pearce. "Our staff, our faculty and our student body want you to know that this campus is your home. We shall do our best to make your stay profitable and pleasant."

To the departing students, he said:

"We shall miss you on this campus; but we wish you well in your new adventure. We are certain that you will represent this school well. Our prayers are with you."

Pearce is a junior in the College of Education of SIU, majoring in social studies. He wants to teach on the secondary level. He said he came to Winston-Salem State "to find ways and means of understanding all my fellow men."

The three students from WSSC also volunteered for the exchange program.

Miss Seward, daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Eddie Seward of Wilmington, is a junior with a major in English and a minor in library science. She wants to be a librarian.

She is attending SIU to broaden her study in library science. She also feels that "many academic and cultural advantages are to be gained on my adopted campus."

The daughter of Mrs. Gladys Howie of Winston-Salem, Miss Howie is a junior with a major in English and minor in mathematics. She plans to enrich her study in her major and minor and to participate in drama at SIU.

Miss Barringer is the daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Curlee Barringer of Huntersville, a sophomore with a major in music. At SIU she will center her studies and activities around choral music and other cultural activities.

"I want to take courses at SIU that seem most difficult for our students at Winston-Salem," she said.

UNDERSTANDING SPACE...?

If it costs one cent to ride a thousand miles, a trip around the world would cost twenty-five cents; to the moon, two dollars and thirty-eight cents; to the sun, only two hundred and twenty-five dollars; but a trip to the next nearest star would cost two hundred and sixty million dollars.

"How would your wife carry on if you should die tomorrow?" asked the salesman, warming to his work.

"I don't reckon that would be any concern of mine — long as she behaves herself while I'm still alive."

LIBRARY SUBSCRIBES TO 452 PERIODICALS

The Winston-Salem State College library subscribes to 452 periodicals in virtually every field, Mrs. Lucy H. Bradshaw, librarian, revealed in a report on publications available from its shelves.

In addition to the 452 periodicals, the library also subscribes to 28 newspapers, both daily and weekly. Of the 452 periodicals, 273 are kept in at least a limited number of bound volumes.

Most of the magazines are indexed in the bibliographic index, biography index, library literature, Readers' Guide to Periodical Literature and the Social Sciences and Humanities Index.

Students and faculty members are invited to use the magazines for study or for pleasure reading. The number of magazines subscribed to in various areas include:

Art, 13, including eight in bound volumes; education and psychology, 106, with 75 bound; English, 23 with 19 bound; health, hygiene and physical education, 19 with 12 bound; library science, 32 with 24 bound; mathematics, six with four bound; music, four all bound; religious education, 11 with four bound; nursing department, 43 with 17 bound; social sciences, 106 with 55 bound, and general, 52 with 25 bound.

"We have many valuable professional publications on our shelves that we feel neither the students nor the faculty realize we have," Mrs. Bradshaw said. "We encourage everyone to browse around our periodical shelves and select the magazine that will best suit his or her needs."

STUDENT REPORTERS INVITED TO HELP PAPER

Members of some organization and promoters of various projects on campus often complain that they never see their news in the school newspaper. Your News Argus wants to correct this shortcoming.

Most campus groups elect reporters. These reporters may easily bring stories about their organizations to the News Argus office, located in the Students Lounge.

This office is usually open from 9 a.m. until 5 p.m. each day. Someone is scheduled to be at the office throughout the day.

A staff member will be happy to serve any student or faculty member. If a group wants coverage, a staff member also will be willing to do that, too.

The News Argus staff meets from 3:30 until 4:30 p.m. each Wednesday. Any student interested in working for the newspaper in any capacity — writing, editing, circulation, advertising — is welcome to come to the weekly meeting and let his or her intentions be known.

The News Argus does not have nearly the staff it needs to publish the kind of newspaper that will best serve the campus. It is scheduled to be published once a month.

The next issue is scheduled to come out before the Thanksgiving holiday break. In order for this to be done, all news should be in the office not later than Wednesday, Nov. 17 at staff meeting.

Doctor: Are you sick?

Patient: I certainly hope so. I'd sure hate to feel like this if I was well.

Carolyn Edwards: Miss NAACP

Miss Carolyn Dinara Edwards was elected Miss NAACP for the year 1965-66. Miss Edwards is a native of Winston-Salem, having completed her high school working at Anderson High School. She is the granddaughter of Rev. and Mrs. E. D. Mack of 732 Alexander Street, with whom she lives.

Here at State Miss Edwards is very active in the many activities on campus such as, The Day Student Organization, NAACP and has been appointed student member of the Publicity Committee.

Listed as her ambition, is the successfulness in any job that she may undertake. While visiting her mother this summer in Buffalo, New York, Miss Edwards had the opportunity to work with the Veterans Hospital of that city, and being the only Negro to hold a secretarial position in the hospital.

One of her duties as Queen of the NAACP is to encourage students to take a more active role in the NAACP and to increase their interests, for their membership is important for the success of this worthwhile movement.

She states that, "It is up to the younger generation to find new methods for the future and to carry on whatever is left by the older generation. We cannot overcome anything by sitting down but we must strive constantly for success in the present and future."

As for how she felt about being elected Miss NAACP, Miss Edwards has this to say, "I'm very proud of being the recipient of the honor as Miss NAACP Queen."

Attendants to Miss NAACP are Miss Daisey Rogers of Wilmington, N. C., a graduate of Williston High School. Miss Rogers is a member of the Sophomore Class and is majoring in English with Library Science as her minor. Styling hair and creative dancing rate high among her hobbies.

Miss Mary Cureton of Salisbury, N. C. is a Junior, majoring in Nursing. She is a graduate of J. C. Price High School of Salisbury.
