

Who wouldn't lose their head over these two? Miss WSSU-Darlene Sewell and Nadine Edwards hold up a creation of the Art Department. Why isn't this clown smiling? Perhaps he does not want these two lovely young ladies to leave. Both coeds are seniors.

Play Highlights Montage

By James Sanders, Jr.
Staff Reporter

Montage 1979 was held September 20, in the gymnasium. It was a most beautiful affair. There were merchants exhibiting their wares and artists exhibiting their talents. It's hard to say who stole the show, but the North Carolina Repertory Company definitely made a lasting impression.

Could Americans survive without its Black population and to what extremes would they use in order to get them back. This is what the play, "Day Of Absence," directed by Larry Hamlin, was all about. Just picture all of the barges that wouldn't be toted, the bales that would go unlifted. No water would be drawn and no wood would be hewed. In a tragedy of comedy, the actors performed in white-face.

Their grasp of the characters is to be commended.

One actor, William Kennedy (who played John and the Announcer), is a recent graduate of North Carolina's School of the Arts. He plans to further his education at Howard University. William expressed disenchantment with the schooling he has received.

He felt that the School of the Arts was trying to separate him from his audience. In his own words, "talent...isn't nothing unless there's someone to appreciate it." From that we can conclude that the Day of Absence was a gift of love.

Although the acoustics were terrible, the actors/actresses poured out their hearts and made the play worth seeing. Mrs. Elaine Browne and all her co-workers deserve a standing ovation.

Dr. Lockett Sets Goals

By Debra Forlest
News Argus Reporter

Winston-Salem State University (WSSU) has a new Vice-Chancellor for Academic Affairs. He is Dr. Arnold Lockett. Dr. Lockett was chosen in July to succeed Dr. Lafayette Parker, who retired after 15 years of service at WSSU.

The new Vice-Chancellor comes to Winston-Salem State from Lincoln University, where he held the positions of Assistant Vice President for Academic Affairs, Professor of Biology and Coordinator and member of the Advance Institutional Development Program.

He did undergraduate studies at Youngstown State University in Ohio where he was a member of the football team and also a most outstanding biology student.

After receiving a B.S. degree from Youngstown, Lockett went on to earn his M.A.

degree in science education and his Ed.D. in curriculum leadership from Wayne State University in Detroit.

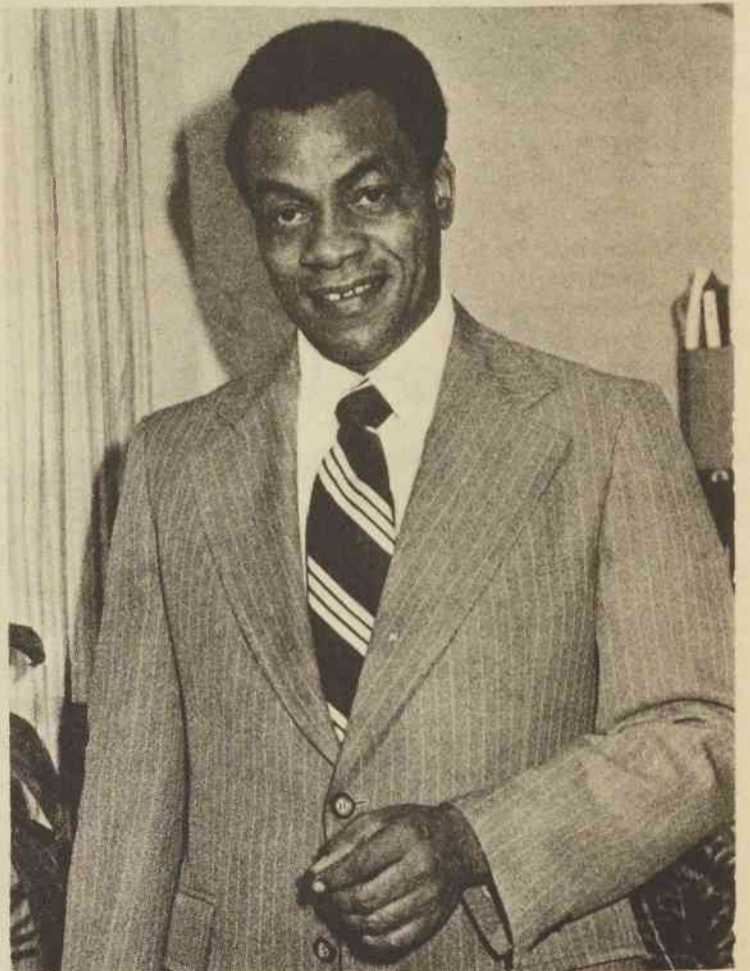

Dr. Lockett has also been employed at Wayne State, Temple University in Philadelphia, Pennsylvania, and Rutgers University in New Brunswick, New Jersey.

At 42, Dr. Lockett has numerous affiliations such as: the National Science Teachers association; Citizens Committee on Public Education in Philadelphia; and Board of Trustees, Schuylkill Valley Nature Center.

The new Vice-Chancellor has a zest for involvements such as fund raising drives and participation in conferences. His accomplishments include memberships in Phi Delta Kappa, Graduate Honor Society for Biology Majors, Youngstown State University.

Dr. Lockett's publications in the field of science are as follows: The Science of Biology; Understanding Living Things and Related Careers; Science of Life Processes; Ecology and Conservation; and Human Reproduction (Female) and Childbirth.

The new Vice-Chancellor expresses great concern for the curriculum at WSSU. He feels that a lack of state support is still a problem. He also has hope and confidence in the improvement of scores on the licensing examinations

Dr. Arnold Lockett, the new vice-chancellor for academic affairs is concerned about the curriculum at WSSU. When asked about the nursing program here he said, "I have hope and confidence in the program and its efforts to improve scores on the licensing examination for nursing students."

The News Argus

Editor-In-Chief William S. Fulton

Assignment Editor Viveca Thomason

Sports Editor Everett Jackson

Business Manager James Sanders Jr.

Editorial Assistants Brian K. Washington
Jacqueline Lane
Faye Vernon

Reporters Debra Forlest
Nineta Crockett
Sheila Monroe

Cartoonist El Patterson

Faculty Advisor Ms. Felecia Jones

Staff Consultant Dr. Hazel Harvey

PROBLEM PREGNANCY?

Call us for information and assistance for all alternatives to unplanned pregnancy. Free pregnancy testing. Arcadia Women's Medical Clinic, 721-1620.