

Garrison continued

schedule as junior college programs began to disappear.

Looking at his final season at the JUCO level, Garrison will be operating under new guidelines. This year's freshmen class was recruited in accordance with NCAA Division III regulations in order to become a full fledged member of the NCAA at the earliest date.

By being under the Division III umbrella, which offers no athletic scholarships, the Braves no longer are able to draw some of the blue-chip athletes that they have had access to in the past. The end result will be that this year's program, as we start a new beginning, will not be as strong as in past seasons.

One of the effects will be felt in the depth chart as there will be fewer people in the program, so injuries in key positions are a cause of concern to the coaching staff. Offensively, the Braves will have less experience returning in more than a decade as only one veteran linemen returns. Spring practice produced some positive results but the Braves will have to go with inexperience along the line which will create problems early in the season until they can learn the system and gain confidence.

A solid receiving corp returns, while a host of talented student-athletes will be counted on to compete for starting positions at runningback and quarterback. The Braves defense will center around veterans returning at linebacker and in the defensive secondary and end positions. The question mark, as in the case with the offense, is inexperience along the front four.

Coach Garrison is in his 35th year of coaching at Chowan. This is his final season under the junior college football program. He has an impressive 186-141-12 record, good for third place among all active coaches in the National Junior College Athletic Association.

Mr. Dwight Collier, right, presents Mr. Bill Sowell, long-time professor in the Krueger School of Graphic Communications, with a densitometer. Collier, regional technical manager for Hoechst Celanese Corporation, gave the instrument as a personal gift. A former student and professor at Chowan, Collier's company made a major gift of a Pressmatch Color Proofing System.

The President of Chowan College, Jerry F. Jackson, encourages all of Chowan's alumni who are Baptist messengers to vote in support of the Institutions Relationship Study Committee's report at the Baptist State Convention in Winston-Salem, November 10th at 8:50 a.m.

Dear Alumni:

This is an urgent call for your assistance in support of Chowan College.

We are asking our North Carolina Baptist alumni to become messengers to the Baptist State Convention in Winston-Salem, November 9-11. We need your vote supporting the "Institutions Relationship Study" recommendations, parts of which require a two-thirds majority vote.

To put it simply, the recommendations—if passed—will provide immediate or future options for all Baptist institutions, not just the colleges and universities.

These options will expand our freedom to select and nominate trustees and will open new doors for seeking funds for Chowan.

The options will also enhance and guarantee continued freedom of thought and a strong healthy relationship with the Baptist State Convention.

You have the power to help six colleges, three social institutions and three agencies with your "Yes!" vote on the ballot.

Tuesday, November 10 at 8:50 a.m., the report will be presented to the Convention. Please talk with your pastor today about volunteering to serve as messenger.

If you cannot attend, please show this letter to someone who can and ask them for their support.

Thank you,

Jerry F. Jackson
President

The art department has a full year of art shows. September 7-30 in the large gallery is the faculty exhibition. In the small gallery Ralf Cowan's "Princess Grace" is being shown. Elizabeth Michael Vick is shown here with her "American Gothic," a piece shown in New York City.