

Scholars Overcame Obstacles

APEX — Deaf mute Virgil E. Jockish Jr. of Apex and busy pastor's wife Margaret Shores Farley of Coveseville, Va., overcame obstacles to become Chowan College's top scholars.

Graduating from the famed Chowan College School of Graphic Arts, Jockish helped pay his educational expenses operating heavy equipment, painting houses and printing. He was previously an honor student and winner of the vocational medal at the North Carolina School for the Deaf, where he also studied printing.

Recording the college's top grades for 1967-68, as she had since becoming a Chowan student, Mrs. Farley commuted from Franklin, Va., where her husband was pastor of Franklin Presbyterian Church. The talented dramatist and orator, winner of numerous awards and honors, graduated with the class of 1968. She and her husband, the Rev. Ben W. Farley, are now serving several Presbyterian churches in the Coveseville, Va., area and she is pursuing further studies at the University of Virginia.

Mrs. Frances T. Parker of Ahoskie, graduate of the college's unique 33-month program of education for nursing, and Mrs. Betty Spring of Murfreesboro were among housewives named to the college's president's list for recording Chowan's most outstanding grades. Mrs. Parker won numerous awards for excellence in accomplishments as a nursing student. Another nursing graduate, Rena Diane Taylor of Smithfield, Va., was also named to the president's list.

There were 24 other students named to the dean's list for recording outstanding grades and 68 honor roll students during the college's spring semester.

SCHOLAR AT WORK — Overcoming obstacles that would defeat lesser men is an everyday occurrence for deaf mute Virgil E. Jockish Jr. of Apex, a recent graduate of the Chowan College School of Graphic Arts. He recorded higher scholastic grades than any other male student at Chowan College during the 1967-68 school year and was among the college's top scholars each semester since entering the college as a freshman. The outstanding scholar is seen working with equipment in the Chowan College School of Graphic Arts.

VIEWING EQUIPMENT — People from throughout the world visit the famed Chowan College School of Graphic Arts to view the most modern printing equipment, much of it computerized, that makes up its tools for preparing young people for challenging and exciting careers in one of America's best-paid industries. Seen guiding visitors on a tour of facilities is Eddie Keeter of Roanoke Rapids.
