Student nurses attend meeting

The Student Nurse Association meeting for District VI was held at Rex Hospital on Sept. 19. There were 24 members and two visitors attending as Chowan representatives.

There seems to be quite a bit of activity surrounding the various nursing classes on campus. The freshmen are now enrolled in academic courses, and plans are being made for them to visit the Chowan Manor Nursing Home in Ahoskie.

The sophomores are attending lectures and gaining clinical experience as they care for surgical patients at the Roanoke-Chowan Hospital in Ahoskie.

They are planning to visit and observe several health clinics in the community throughout the semester.

Since June the senior students have been at Duke Medical Center and are currently involved in studies of child care.

SNEA begins 1968-69 year with high aims

By ROSE DRAKE

The Student National Education Association has begun its 1968-69 year with high aims. Attendance at our first meeting gives us reason to believe that our organization will be active and responsive.

We do urge every student interested in teaching to come to our meetings which are announced and posted. We have a regular meeting once monthly but other activities include attendance at district meetings (Oct. 8, first one), observation at local schools in grades of one's choice and aiding teachers at grade school and on campus whenever possible and other related activities.

The speaker at our first meeting was Floyd Overton of Ahoskie, president of the Hertford County North Carolina Education Association, and assistant principal of Ahoskie High School.

He discussed the value of education and the role of teachers.

Pam Keyes

Pam Keyes talented folk singer, guitarist

By PAULINE ROBINSON

Out of the nearly 1,300 students Chowan College has enrolled, there are many talented performers.

One of these talented students is Pam Keyes of Petersburg, Va. This blonde performer is an accomplished folk singer and guitarist. Pam, a sophomore, has given concerts for the college and has appeared with Gолlette "Razor" Bryant, an alumnus of Chowan.

Pam stated that before coming to Chowan she had sung for many civic organizations and programs in Petersburg; however, she admitted she had a great deal of stage fright and did not enjoy performing.

Complimenting the Murfreesboro area and Chowan College, Pam said, "the atmosphere here is so different. Here I'm Pam, not 358019 and everyone is extremely friendly."

We hope for other interesting and inspiring lecturers in the coming year.

Again we urge every interested student who plans to teach to come and support the organization for yourselves and your college.

She attributed part of her success in overcoming stage fright to the atmosphere. Now, says Pam, she is more than happy to entertain and really gets a lot of satisfaction from it.

Contradictory to her public image as a folk singer and guitarist, she enjoys the domesticated science of sewing and makes a large portion of her outfits.

She is a drama enthusiast and acted in last year's production by the Chowan Players of "Charlie's Aunt." In high school she was an understudy for the lead in the musical version of "The King and I."

Majoring in elementary education, Pam, an only child, finds children stimulating. The reason she prefers working with the younger set is because in her words "the elementary kids are just opening their eyes to what's going on in the world."

Pam says she would never teach for money but simply for the love of teaching children.

This fall Pam has already performed for the students when she sang her campaign speech for Steve Asiah, newly-elected freshman class secretary.

You name it!!!!

The "Mohawk Haircut" seems to be in style this year, as many freshmen are seen with the new hair style.

Unemployment rate to lowest point in seventeen years

WASHINGTON (AP) — The nation's unemployment rate dropped to 3.5 per cent of the total labor force in August, touching a 17 year low for the third time in 1968, the Labor Department said today.

The number of jobless persons declined 450,000 to 2.8 million. "The unemployment rate once again equaled the Korean war era low reached in January, April and May of this year," the Bureau of Labor Statistics said.

The drop in unemployment, down from 3.7 per cent in July, largely reflected a drop in the number of women and teenagers seeking jobs, the bureau said.

RALEIGH (AP)— North Carolina will furnish its fourth president of the Society of American Archivists when Dr. H. G. Jones, for 12 years Tar Heel State archivist, and newly elected director of archives and history, assumes that office at the society's annual convention in Ottawa, Canada, this week.

Dr. Jones will follow in the footsteps of R. D. W. Connor, A. R. Newsome, and the present writer in heading the society which now includes nearly 2,000 members from the United States, Canada, and a few foreign countries. In case you don't know archivists are historians who specialize in the preservation of archives (public records worthy of permanent preservation) and manuscripts.

A native of Kill Quick in Gaswell County, Dr. Jones received his bachelor's degree at Appalachian State College (now University), his master's at George Peabody, and his Ph.D. at Duke. He also did graduate work at New York University and has taught at colleges in North Carolina and Georgia.

Dr. Jones saw service in the U. S. Navy during World War II in both the Mediterranean and Pacific combat areas.

As state archivist of North Carolina, he heads the largest program of archival and records management of all 50 states of the union. This program, which extends to all public records in North Carolina — state, county, and municipal — won the Society of American Archivists' first distinguished service award.

Dr. Jones is author of For History's Sake (UNC Press), winner of the Waldo G. Leland prize for the best American book in archival history, theory, and practice.

He is also author of The Rec- ords of a Nation, a study of the archival and records management programs of the U. S. government. This work will be published next winter by Athenaeum Publishers, New York.

He has also written Bedford Brown: State Rights Unionist, and various articles in professional journals. Dr. Jones has edited a Guide to State and Provincial Archival Agencies, a County Records Manual, a Municipal Records Manual, and a Union List of North Carolina Newspapers.

Regarding archives and records management programs, he has served at different times as a consultant to the states of California, Florida and Virginia. At present Dr. Jones is an adjunct professor of history at N. C. State University where he teaches one of four year-long courses given in the United States on the history and administration of documentary resources.
