

In memory of all the trees who died in vain.

A Public Service of This Newspaper & The Advertising Council

You're mad at your boss, worried about money, and you think you might be pregnant again.

Bad days. We all have them. And on those bad days good parents will sometimes lash out at those they love most. When troubles pile up and push you to the brink of child abuse—stop.

Take time out. Punch a pillow, not your kid. Phone a friend. Take a shower. Do some sit-ups. Don't take hold of your child until you get hold of yourself.

Take time out. Don't take it out on your kid.

Ray Charles has a disability. Yet his abilities have enriched us all.

"35 million disabled Americans want the same things you want out of life."

We want to use our abilities to the fullest. We want to participate. That means being able to get in and out of places you want to go if you use a wheelchair, having signs in braille, getting extra help to do the job you really want.

Because this is the Decade of Disabled Persons, the National Organization on Disability urges us all to lend a hand right in our own community. Let's put our abilities together so all Americans gain.

"I'm sick of her ruining our lives."

When confronted with a mental illness, families experience a wide range of emotional responses. From outrage to shame and denial. They often blame victims for causing worry, embarrassment, family strife. And they often blame themselves.

But mental illness is no one's fault. Least of all those afflicted. It's a serious medical illness.

Recognizing the warning signs and seeking treatment for your loved one can be the first steps to reducing family fears and confusion. And to actually healing the sickness. Today, mental illness need not be hopeless.
