Should Methodist College hold classes on federal holidays?

All photos taken by Robin Warrington.

I don't think that they should hold classes on federal holidays because speaking as a single parent, it's hard to find child care and most people are off from work.

Sophomore

No, because everyone else is off. Nobody goes to work. Why should we have classes?

-Kellie McCormac
Freshman

No, because it is designated as a holiday and we should respect that.

-Micheal Cavanaugh
Freshman

No, because federal holidays should be observed by all educational institutes.

-Jeanna Maynard
Junior

No, because if the postal service gets it off, so should we.

-Joey Barnard
Freshman

No, for the most part on federal holidays people don't have to work, so teachers should have it off, too.

-Laura Ratcliffe
Freshman

No, because it's a federal holiday and everyone but private schools have off, and that's not fair.

-Rachel Coles
Freshman

Everybody else gets school off even government officials, so we should too.

-Jessica Harkinson
Freshman

No, we as students have as much of a right to observe federal holiday as anyone else and so do the professors.

-Lillian Bolick
Senior

No, because nobody else has school, everything is closed, and there is no reason to be in school.

-Tasha Washington
Freshman

Of course not! I want to be out of school as much as possible.
