

search was over. He has just been appointed Prof. of Natural Science at N. Carolina State. Randolph McAlpine has been editor of the Afro for two years now; but why should I tell you something you already know?

So you see, Margaret, I actually killed two birds with one stone. Everyone is accounted for and not a single tragedy in the entire period. Wonderful, isn't it?

I look forward to you spending a few days with me when you return from your vacation in Bermuda.

Write me when you can spare a moment and tell me about the glorious time I know you are having.

Love,
Bette

CLASS WILL

Written by Randolph McAlpine '40 — Spencer Albury '40

We, the Senior Class of St. Augustine's College, City of Raleigh, State of North Carolina, being sound of mind and body, realizing that our college days are drawing to a close do take this means of disposing of some of our treasures, which we have laid away in the preceding four years. Realizing the value of these said treasures, we do charge our legatees forever to guard them as they would their lives. In our years of college we have accumulated many of the valuable assets of life and these we do bequeath as follows:

Article 1: Section 1:

To St. Augustine's College, our undying affection, devotion and loyalty.

Article 2: Section 1:

To our faculty, our most sincere appreciation for their patient endeavor to bestow knowledge upon us.

Article 3: Section 1:

To our advisors, Miss Snodgrass and Mr. Cecil Halliburton, our utmost esteem for their sympathetic understanding and helpfulness in solving our problems.

Article 4: Section 1:

To the Juniors, we bequeath our loyalty, service, and well-organized class meetings with hopes that they will profit by them.

To the Sophomores, we leave our high ideals and ambitions, with the hope that at the end of their college career, they will merit the pride of their Alma Mater.

To the Freshmen, we leave our ability to be resered.

To the Freshmen to be, our ability to see it through.

Article 5: Section 1:

The following are gifts made by members of the Senior Class to the various members of the lower classes. However, trivial they may seem, they are the graduates most prized possessions obtained during their college career,—and we hope that they will be received in the same spirit in which they are given:

Joseph Bennett bequeaths his peace-making ability to Stanislaus Solomon.

Walter Durham leaves his "savoir-faire" manner to Robert Alexander.

Jennie Baird bequeaths her aesthetic qualities to Thomascina Duncan.

Jeremiah Heartley wills his place
