Class Visits Art Museum In Raleigh

Raleigh is becoming a lecture hall away from campus for the humanities class.

Under the leadership of Dr. Harwood, Dr. Sasser, and Dr. Moore, the humanities class took a field trip to Raleigh to the North Carolina Museum of Art and then heard the Leningrad Philharmonic Orchestra perform.

The trip provided a good opportunity for cultural enrichment and made the week of Oct. 28 very interesting.

The week began with a lecture on art by Charles W. Stanford, curator of education at the North Carolina Museum of Art. Stanford illustrated the main ideas of his lecture with slides.

The following day the humanities class left for Raleigh where they were taken on a tour of the museum by Stanford, after which they ate dinner in downtown Raleigh.

Later that evening, the group went to North Carolina State College to hear the Leningrad Philharmonic Orchestra. The class then returned to the Wesleyan Campus with a better understanding of both art and music.

Harrison And Laughton Give Their Opinions On Wesleyan

Woodson Harrison, professor of Spanish, shows the trend of his interest by the large bull-fight pictures exhibited on the wall of his office. He said he has personally carried those pictures over three thousand miles.

Harrison has studied for a year at the University of Madrid as well as having done graduate work in Mexico City. Preceding his work in Spain, he taught at several colleges, Staunton Military Academy, the University of Virginia, and Virginia Military Academy.

He said, "I like Wesleyan very much; it is a very good school."

Finding it hard to adjust to the slower pace of life again, Harrison is pleased with the friendliness exhibited to him at Wesleyan and in Rocky Mount.

French Instructor

Peter Laughton, French instructor, carries out the policy of education influencing the creation of varied characters. Majoring in history and French at Marlboro College in England, his favorite pastime consists of music, operas, concerts, as well as reading. When asked what he thought of Wesleyan his reply was, "I find Wesleyan delightful."

In discussing his opinion of America he mentioned that the informal attitudes of Americans greatly impress him. An example of the difference in Englishmen and Americans is shown in the matter of speaking to an acquaintance; in London he would not attempt to call someone by their Christian name for at least two years, whereas in the States he is requested to call persons by their Christian names after only a short introduction.

Undecided about the length of his stay in the States, he spoke favorably of Rocky Mount, and stated that he enjoyed teaching.
