

A Visit To Hong Kong, Perhaps?

By King Fun Ho

Feeling hungry a bit? Then why not step into the door of any restaurant that happens to strike your fancy, and gallantly order some food to be brought to you. Wait, before you make your choice at random, I would like to give some suggestions:

(1) "Chow Fang"--fried rice with chopped meat, shrimps, mushrooms and eggs.

(2) "Fin's soup" --with fish's fin, chopped chicken meat, egg white and chopped parsley.

"But I am a connoisseur of seafood," you may complainingly argue. Then, my connoisseur, take heart. "Aberdeen Bay"--the famous site for floating seafood--restaurant is only 45 mins. drive from where you are. (By chance, some of you might have heard of it in the M.G.M. production, "THE WORLD OF SUZY WONG"). Two restaurants of this sort imposingly take their stands amidst the ripples and waves. They are modeled after the oldest traditional Chinese style, with green tiled-roof and red cylindrical poles. The latter have golden dragons engraved on them. Inside the restaurants, all sorts of sea-delicacies, (some, whose existence may even be a surprise to some biology-major students here) will be served to you. (With U.S. $3.00, you and your friend will be able to eat to your hearts' content). And don't forget, when you are not in a hurry, you can have the fun of choosing your own fish, clam, crab, lobster straight from the sea. In order to enjoy your food to the full, you should get used to picking up food with chopsticks. (Ah Hah! speaking about chop--sticks--- Betty Chang's roommate Miss G. is an expert in it. And Betty Chang herself can perform a very sophisticated and intriguing Chop-sticks-dance too!). Undoubtedly, everyone knows that chop-stick demands a certain manoeuvring technique, whereas anyone with enough common sense can handle a fork and a knife. (No offense to the knife - and-fork eaters. I hope?)

When you have had your fill of stomach, you will probably like to have a look around in the city itself. If you have a desire to swim or fish, there are a dozen accessible, beautiful beaches to choose from. However, if you are an esthete, then "City Hall" is just the right place for you. Inside this building, various kinds of painting, antique and interior-decorations' exhibitions are being held, as well as play and drama performances--sufficiently enough to entertain you for the rest of the day.

Veils of darkness soon prevail as the sun sets behind the hills about seven p. m. Now is the best time for you to get on board a ferry heading for Kowloon. (another section of Hong Kong). Leisurely surveying the island from the deck, you will be confronted with the most enchanting view the world could possibly offer. There, slowly unveiling before your eyes, is the magnificent diamond with its dazzling neon-lights reflected from within.

Should any of the above paragraphs move you to come over there for a visit, just be sure to drop me a note beforehand. And you'll be guaranteed a most rewarding and unforgettable tour.

Aspects

We, the staff of Aspects, feel that many members of the college community are unaware of our relatively new publication, the purposes of this publication, and the role we are expecting from you to make this publication a success.

Aspects is a literary magazine with the purpose of publishing the most successful efforts of our students and faculty toward work of a creative nature. This work ranges from creative poems and short stories to genuine research articles. Needless to say, ASPECTS WILL play a major role among campus publications because we feel such a work is necessary to encourage and present to the public creativeness on our campus.

We would appreciate an increased interest on your part in Aspects in order that our publication this year may be successful and rewarding, one which Wesleyan College can be proud of. If any of you feel that you would like to contribute an essay, poem, short story, etc. for publication in Aspects, see Bryce Cook, Eddie Hopkins, Tommy Inscoe, Hilda Floyd, or Mr. Garmon, and we shall be glad to cooperate with you in any way possible.

S. U. Bullentin Bd. Speaks

On November 3, the day after the election, this paper appeared on the Student Union bulletin board (you know, the one that is supposed to be for student announcements but is always cluttered with church news, "youth opportunities", archeological discoveries, etc.?). At any rate,

Sleeping University

By Frank Perez

The University of Havana used to be the lighthouse of freedom and the supreme example of political honesty. Many of the men that became presidents of the Republic had been presidents of their colleges or presidents of the federation. (F.E.U.) However, the University beheld that many of these men who were honest and idealist in their youth became dishonest and opportunistic when they were chosen to govern the nation.

The University raised the spirit of freedom and justice many years before the independence from Spain. In 1871, she saw eight students die. They were the example that Spain had chosen to show the students that they should keep their noses out of politics. The example was not very successful. In the war of 1895 there were a lot of leaders from the student body who decided to fight for freedom. The early result was jail, exile and death. Later the dream of independence became a reality and the University beheld with pride the Republic built by the contributions of many of its sons.

The Cuban Constitution acknowledges the University of Havana as an autonomous institution.

some sly satirist managed to shift all the junk around and make a place for his little "article". The results were phenomenal! Various comments, reproduced here, were written to the author and aroused quite a bit of controversy throughout the day. Although most of those who wrote answering comments completely missed the point, at least it can be said that they showed some interest. Someone, some several persons, finally showed some interest in something! Perhaps----just perhaps their lies

This fact makes it possible for students to take direct intervention and protests against the behavior of the governments and to assume that the rebellions did not become tyrannies and military coups.

During the seven years of the dictatorship of Batista, the University of Havana led the people. The eyes of the whole nation were on the "Redentory Hill", (a name that was given to U.H. because of its surreptition). Again many students fought in all possible ways for independence.

Castro was a student of the University and he knew that there he would encounter a difficult enemy to get along with. At that time, running for the leadership or presidency of the F.E.U., was Pedro Luis Boitel and Comandante Rolando Cubela. His plan was carefully studied. He wrote an article the first thing in the morning to the elections asking the students to elect, or better, to nominate only one president. Boitel was asked to decline and so he did. Many of us asked him to run against everything and he did. The election, although honest in appearance, was fixed and the president elected was as expected; Com. Cubela.

hidden here, somewhere, some spark of critical interest!

Suppose we have a board for this sort of thing--a board upon which students could place ads, "for sale" signs, "ride wanted" signs, vital student announcements, or any other matters of strictly "student" interest--- would we use it? If not, we'd be fools! Perhaps this is just what is needed to further student interest and to display student information. Think it over--and then make your decision.

Since that moment the University lost all its prestige in the sight of the people. It became an organism of the governments.

Boitel, the "defeated," continued to attend the University but he was dangerous because of his influence upon the student body. He was accused of distributing arms and rebellion pamphlets. Now, he is paying his "crime" in jail for 30 years.

Anti-communist students decided not to attend the University of Havana. Their places were filled by students from Latin American countries who had received scholarships. To attend the U.H. today, you need only to be "clear". It does not mean one has to be brilliant or smart; it means one has to be a Communist or a slave of the tyrants.
