

New Freshman Officers Pledge Support

The Freshmen class at N.C. W. C. recently elected officers to fill those positions vacated this semester. Those elected were Barry Stallings, president, George Watson, vice-president, and Claire Anderson, secretary. Returning as treasurer from last semester is Marty Sarra. President Barry Stallings hopes to promote more social life and activities on campus while in turn producing more spirit among the student body itself.

At this point, Barry feels that the class is divided into too many separate groups or cliches which does not, in his opinion, constitute a class. As president, he hopes to promote those activities which will bring the students of Wesleyan closer together. The Hayride sponsored by the Freshmen Class is the first attempt in this direction. "I want to help make this a college instead of an academic institution" says Barry, and thus, sums up his ideas and hopes for the Freshman class and the student body as a whole.

George Watson, as vice-president, supports Barry Stallings to the fullest and plans to do all he can to aid the class in any ideas toward unity that can be originated. "It is hard to get a class to act together as a group with the students taking such a shallow attitude toward functions on campus and the campus itself," George feels that the promotion of the previously stated ideas will in some instances aid to solve this critical problem on campus.

George was also recently elected to serve on the Judicial Board of the Student Life Association.

Serving as Secretary for the remainder of this year is Claire Anderson. Claire hopes to install a sense of cooperation between all the classes with more unity with the Freshmen Class as part of the school. "As it stands now, it is the Freshmen Class and the rest of the school as two separate groups. I would rather see the Freshmen Class be a part of this school instead of a separate entity."

One of the main ideas of the class, although still tentative, is the organization of a social Fraternity on campus which will work co-ordinately with the Social Commission to provide activities for the students.

The Fraternity would organize projects to earn money to sponsor these activities while the Social Commission is hampered by the lack of funds necessary to promote activities every weekend. It is hoped that if the idea of a Fraternity is passed, that in a few years a Fraternity house could be constructed on campus to provide a place for such activities as well as watching television, shooting pool, etc.

This idea is fully endorsed by the Freshmen Class officers and partially has the backing of the class.

N. C. Wesleyan Students Teach Sunday School

Sixteen North Carolina Wesleyan College students are presently participating in a service project of teaching Sunday School each week at the Eastern Carolina Training School, under the direction of Rev. John White, pastor of the Battleboro Methodist Church.

Each Sunday afternoon, the Wesleyan students lead the boys in a worship service and then divide into small groups for a lesson.

Participating in the program are: Pete Blood, Ginny Brietenbach, Dennis Dagenhart, Donald Dare, Kay Daughtry, Ed Maddox, Allen Martin, Jimmy Perry, Kay Radford, Jay Smith, Della Reeves, Bryan Stearns, Jane Stone, Barry Stallings, Ted Turner, and Joe Weatherly.

The Social Commission of the Freshman Class will sponsor a hayride, Saturday, April 3, depending on the weather, for the students of Wesleyan and their dates. The trucks will leave the campus and head out to the roads behind the campus leading to Red Oak. Arriving at the home of George Watson, the students will enjoy a bonfire and folk singing session presented by Tom Garlow and John Reid, known as the "Northside Singers."

Tickets were on sale originally for Freshmen and their dates only, but are expanded to a limited number of upper-classmen and their dates.

Members of the Social Committee are Tess Ledford and Ann Chafin, co-chairman of this event, Doug Windes, Kay Churchill, Ruddy Griffith and Jeff Wilson, while working with the officers of the Freshmen Class.

Plans for Carnival

The Freshman Social Committee is working productively

on the Carnival scheduled for April 10. Sponsoring three booths, the committee is having a dart game in which students may "gracefully" throw darts at pictures of the professors on campus. A second booth will consist of "Dunking Anne Van Wagoner" which will comprise a bench over water which can be released by a baseball thrown at a target. The last booth consists of a Slave Sale with members of the class sold as slaves so far are: Richie Uhrin, Ernie Watson, Doug Windes, Rick Huff, Jerry Wineberry, Jerry Harritt, Dick Ernstes, Marty Lang, Bill Stellhorn, Ernie Church, and Joe Weatherly representing Edgcombe Dorm. From Nash Hall will be Stephanie Flether, Linda Walls, Mary Kay Kolas and Sally Kolas. Those people sold as slaves will be required to work for their "owner" on the Sunday following the carnival from 10:30 A.M. to 10:30 P.M.

College Support Put At 99 Pct. For Year Now

Ninety-nine per cent of the $50,000 continuing support for Carolina Wesleyan College for 1965 has been paid or pledged to the Rocky Mount Area Wesleyan College Foundation, reports the college's bimonthly bulletin.

Foundation directors learned this month that $49,442.28 of the $50,000 goal was pledged by 480 persons and organizations during the campaign. Part of the money — $32,017.54 — has been collected. The balance must be collected before the campaign can be declared a success.

Foundation directors are charged with collecting $50,000 annually for the college's operating budget. The commitment was made by the Rocky Mount-Nash-Edgcombe community in 1956 when it sponsored the founding of the college.

Archie W. McLean, foundation president, has expressed appreciation to the community for its support in the campaign. He also has paid tribute to the work of Jasper L. Cummings, campaign chairman, and fellow foundation directors.

The campaign began in November. November was proclaimed "Wesleyan College Appreciation Month."

"The success of our campaign gives concrete evidence of the appreciation by the community," Cummings said.

Most of the contributors make annual donations to the foundation, and they have been recognized as "honorary alumni" of the college. Honorary alumni of the Class of '65 will be recognized on Founders' Day Oct. 25, 1965.

In addition to the campaign for continuing support, the foundation also is responsible for collecting the area's capital pledges for constructing the college.

A report to directors showed $1,635,407.35 has been collected from 3,513 original pledges. Unpaid balance on 1,580 pledges amounts to $564,631.04. The balance is being decreased as pledges are paid.

Circle K Plans

Active Spring

N. C. Wesleyan's Circle K Club has a variety of activities planned for this spring semester. The club, whose motto is: "Build Personal Understanding", will have its first supper meeting on Wednesday, March 24, at 6:00 p. m. at Melton's Barbeque. The purpose of this meeting, aside from eating some of the best Bar-B-Q in the state, is to welcome in the club's ten new members which brings the total membership to 34. Also, at this time new membership cards will be issued. It promises, from all reports, to be a gala affair.

Aside from this, Circle K plans to send Bill Duke and Steve Petnitz to the Annual Carolinas Circle Convention at East Carolina College on March 25, 26, 27. Twenty-four colleges from North and South Carolina will participate in this convention in Greenville. On the agenda for this important occasion are speeches, entertainment, voting on news officers, and the achievement award. Last year Wesleyan tied with East Carolina College for honorable mention in this award. Wade Register of the Wesleyan Club will be running for the office of Leut. Governor of the Eastern district, a position which is now held by Melvin Gay. It is apparent that Circle K at Wesleyan has made great strides since its founding a few years ago.

Included in future Circle K plans are a clothes drive (soon), a car smash (April Carnival), and a car wash near the end of April.

It is evident that Circle K is rapidly becoming one of the most industrious and active clubs on our campus.
