Be not. . . anxious for the morrow.
(Matt. 6:34)

We live in God's eternity. We have all the time there is. Whenever there is a sense of being rushed, it is well to relax and remember that God blesses us with all the time we require so that we may perform needful tasks in divine order. Do today's work today. Yesterday is gone; tomorrow is yet to appear. God blesses you today.

How To Be Lazy. . . And Love It

It's wonderful to be lazy--if you know how. It spares your heart, saves your energy, relaxes your mind--and you needn't feel at all guilty about it if you confine your laziness to these approved ways recommended by a psychologist:

Be too lazy to frown, fidget or worry.

Don't wear yourself out carrying the needless weight of grudges, prejudices and envy.

Listen more than you talk, and see how much better you feel after almost any meeting or gathering.

Don't rush for a bargain that takes more out of you than it saves for your pocketbook.

Don't knock yourself out trying to park your car in a space too small for a scooter. Better to pay a parking fee at a lot than a bill at a hospital.

Don't bother to quarrel over small things--like a card game. Let the other fellow think he's right when it really doesn't matter.

Conserve your mental muscles for things that count, and never bother to wrestle with the inevitable, the imponderable, or the insignificant.

Never fear criticism when you are right; never ignore criticism when you are wrong.
