

Howard Young Retired, Gough And Wiseman Promoted

Young

Gough

The promotions of C. Dan Gough and Lyndal R. Wiseman to plant managerial duties in the Kernersville plants of Adams-Millis Hosiery Company have been announced by R. L. Boyles, vice president of the Men's and Boys' Division of the company.

Gough, a native of Oklahoma City, was named superintendent of the knitting plant. He succeeds Howard Young who is retiring.

Dan Gough was a fixer trainee in the knitting department of the Adams-Millis hosiery plant in Edmond, Oklahoma while attending Central State University, where he graduated with a degree in business administration and computer science. After graduation, he was transferred to the Kernersville plant as a management trainee. He is married to the former Bobbie Golden.

Howard Young moved from Rockingham County to the Piedmont area of North Carolina when he was thirteen years old. He came with Adams-Millis in 1927 and worked continuously until his retirement. He was first employed as a knitter, then promoted to fixer, head fixer and finally to plant manager. His wife, Mattie Young, also was formerly employed in the Kernersville plant.

An active member of Kernersville Baptist Church, Howard is an ordained deacon and member of the board of trustees of the church. He is also a director of the Kernersville branch of Northwestern Bank and a past director of the Kernersville Y.M.C.A. He is a member of the Lions Club, Woodmen of the World and the Kernersville Chamber of Commerce.

CHECK THOSE FILTERS

Clogged filters make your heating system work harder and consume more power. So clean or replace filters regularly during the heating season; once a month is ideal.

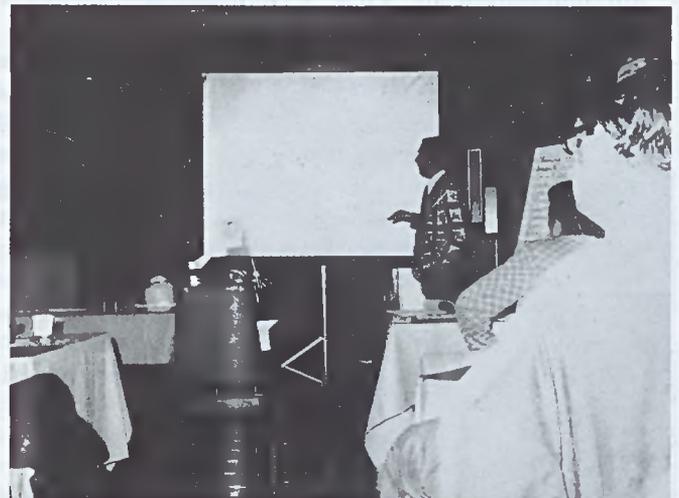

Wiseman

Lyndal Wiseman was assistant warehouse manager in the Edmond, Oklahoma plant prior to his transfer to the Kernersville finishing plant in July. He was promoted to assistant manager of the J. Ed Millis finishing plant.

Wiseman worked in the Edmond warehouse while attending Central State University, where he majored in business administration. Mrs. Wiseman, the former Marsha Pierman, is an Inforex operator in the offices of the Adams-Millis finishing plant.

FABRICS HOLDS SUPERVISORY TRAINING COURSE

George Poovey conducts a course in training and engineering for participants in the Fabrics supervisory training workshop.

In September, October and November, Adams-Millis Fabrics held training sessions for all supervisors of the Fabrics Division. Each session, held at the Ramada Inn in Greensboro, lasted two days and was culminated with a banquet on the evening of the second day.

Training instructors came from within the company. Courses included Motivation and Leadership, Public Speaking and Confidence Building, Planning and Scheduling, Personnel Policies, Departmental Budgeting, Industrial Engineering and Training, Safety, and Product Development.

All participants were awarded Certificates of Completion by Divisional President Jack Shoffner.
