CLASS NEWS

The Freshman Class met January 8 and decided to give a play, "The Fool's Errand." This play has been given at leading houses in New York and has proved to be a sensation. Can the Freshman Class produce something similar?

There was a rumor that the Freshman Department of the Liberal Arts and the School of Commerce would split. After calling the two sections together, they mutually agreed to remain consolidated and work together harmoniously.

The Freshmen are planning to show their abilities and class love at the Freshman--Sophomore Debate. They are making elaborate preparations for same. The debate will be held Friday, Feb. 17, 1928--8 P. M., Avery Auditorium.

The Commercial II Class met Wednesday, Feb. 8, 1928. Mr. L. Alston, the president, presided. A very interesting discussion was carried on.

WHY SHOULD I?

E'en though men shun the poorer class,
And let them wail and cry,
E'en though men tread the shorter pass,
I wonder "why should I"?

If some men live a life of wealth,
While some their lives belie,
And others choose to live by stealth,
I ask you "why should I"?

If some bards have a certain rhyme,
That pleases every eye,
And each one to that rhyme resigns,
Don't ask me "why should I"?

If some men find in great deeds done,
Some faults they must desery,
Do mortals call this joy and fun,
If so, then, "why should I"?

If all bad deeds in human life,
Passed with an unseen eye,
More men would fall within that strife,
But "why," dear friend, "should I"?
