Dr. Howard J. Chidley Makes Annual Visit Here

Dr. Howard J. Chidley (above) pastor of the First Congregational Church, Winchester, Mass., was honored in Durham at North Carolina College Monday when the college's new men's dormitory was formally dedicated in his honor. Holder of N. C. C.'s first honorary degree, a "D.D." awarded in 1917, Dr. Chidley is also a graduate of Dartmouth College. He has studied at Columbia University and at Oxford University, England. Warm friendship for N.C.C.'s founder and first president, the late Dr. James E. Shepard, continues today between Dr. Chidley and Dr. Alfonso Elder, present head of N.C.C. In the days since North Carolina College was a struggling private school around the turn of the past century, the college has received many contributions from Dr. Chidley and his congregation.

NCC TO BE HOST FOR HEALTH 'EDS'

Several nationally known health educators will be among the principals in two public health conferences at the University of North Carolina in Chapel Hill and at North Carolina College Durham, March 12-14. Holding sessions at Chapel Hill on March 10-12 will be the second joint Conference on Field Training for Public Health Education, Nursing, and Nutrition Counselors. Meeting both at UNC and NCC on March 12-14 will be the seventh annual working conference for Health Educators. At the NCC session on Thursday morning, March 13 Miss Maud Yancey, professor of public health education will preside and present Dr. Alfonso Elder, president of NCC, who will welcome the group. Two speeches are scheduled during the day. Dr. Mayhew Derryberry will talk on "National Trends in Public Health Education" at 10 a. m. and Miss Drenckhahn will discuss "New Patterns in Health Education in Voluntary Agencies" at 11 o'clock. A series of exhibits and discussions on the general theme, "Come to the Fair", will be held throughout Thursday. Reports will be given by the following: Wayne Messick, Public Health Educator, County Health Department, Quincy, Ill.; Miss Elizabeth Davis, State Board of Health, Columbia, S. C.; Mrs. Frances McConnell, Health Educator, North Carolina Heart Association; Miss Maria Zalduondo; Dr. Mayhew Derryberry, chief of the Health Education Division of the United States Public Health Service; Miss V. Drenckhahn, director of health education for the National Tuberculosis Association; and Dr. Martha Eliot, chief, the Children's Bureau, Federal Security Agency, Washington. ### Top Seniors Admitted To "Pro" Schools

DURHAM, N. C. — Two of North Carolina College's seniors received notice here of the acceptance of their applications to two of the nation's well-known professional schools. Calvin H. Norman, Jr., of Jamaica, N. Y., president of the N.C.C. Student Government Association, has been accepted for admission at Meharry Medical College in Nashville, Tenn., in September, 1952. Garland L. Watt, president of the senior class and a native of Reidsville, has been informed that he is being admitted to the Harvard University Law School. Norman and Watt are among the college's top honor students. Both were active in the recent blood drive which was sponsored by the Student Government Association. Among the honors Norman has received at NCC since his matriculation in 1949 are the following: Freshman award for the highest average in science; sophomore award for the highest scholastic average; Recipient of two Student Government Awards of merit; Beta Kappa Chi Honorary Scientific Society; Alpha Kappa Mu Honorary Scholastic Society; Who's Who Among American Colleges and Universities. Norman has received high scholastic honors during each quarter he has been at NCC. Watt is Parliamentarian for the House of Representatives in the State Students' Legislative Assembly which meets annually in Raleigh. Watt is also president of the Alpha Kappa Mu honorary society. He holds membership in NCC's Social Science Club and the Omega Psi Phi fraternity. He is also parliamentarian for the Student Government. Watt will be the first NCC student to study at Harvard Law School. Norman served the Student Government in a number of capacities before becoming its head last May. He is chairman of the editorial board of the Echo, NCC's newspaper, and the "Eagle, the College's Yearbook. Norman is also founder and first chancellor of the NCC chapter of Beta Delta Mu, national interracial fraternity.

Former NCC Student Buried In Asheville, N.C.

Janet King was buried on Sunday, February 24, seven days after her death. Death did not take a holiday when it came to lovely Janet King, former student at North Carolina College who transferred to Howard University to complete her education in the school of Pharmacy. Janet, who allegedly met her death at the hands of a school mate Donald Tyler, was slain on Monday February 19, and buried at her home in Asheville on February 24. Janet was a student at North Carolina College for two years. While here she was an Honor student and very active in extra-curricular affairs. During her Freshman year she was elected treasurer of the Freshman Class and Freshman representative to the Women's Steering Committee of the Sophomore class in 1950. Janet was elected secretary and was a member of the Ivy Leaf Club of Alpha Kappa Sorority. Janet was a well liked student by all that came in contact with her. She had a friendly disposition and made an ideal room-mate says her roommates of 1950 and 1951, Johannie Mae Green, and Hannah Logan. Janet left NCC to go to Howard University in Washington, D. C. in order to study pharmacy. While at Howard she was said to have made all A's and to be active in many extra-curricular affairs. Janet who lived in Wheatley Hall on Howard Campus, was said by her dormitory mates to have left the campus in the early part of the afternoon. It was also stated by the Dormitory Directress that Janet did not sign out, which is a requirement of all resident girls. Her dormitory mates also stated that they did not know Tyler, but that she had dated several other students whom they did know. Janet's bullet riddled body was found around 8:30 on Monday evening. All clues led to Donald Tyler also a student at Howard University. The alleged killer was said to have borrowed a friends car, Elliot, a pharmacist in the Nations Capitol. When Elliot returned to his apartment he found signs of a definite struggle in the apartment. Tyler was not there. Tyler's books along with some of Janet's clothing was found in the back of Elliot's car. Tyler had been found in Chicago after a 13 state alarm had been sent out for his arrest on suspicion of murder. Tyler confessed to the killing pleading that he had accidentally shot her. Janet, a resident of Rutherfordton, N. C. is the only child of Mrs. Bessie King, a school teacher of the same city. The funeral was held on February 24, 1952. Dr. Mordecai Johnson, president of Howard University, sent condolences to Mrs. King and stated that Janet had been an exceptional student. The Junior class of NCC sent flowers to the funeral along with Rush Hall junior resident dormitory in which Janet resided last year when it was a sophomore-junior dormitory. Other classmates and friends of Janet's, both here at NCC and at Howard, also sent letters of condolence.

STUDENTS MAY GET STEAK, ROOM AND MAID SERVICE IF POCKETBOOKS ALLOW IT

By M. D. THORPE
On February 6, 1952 this writer had the honor and privilege to discuss freely some of the facts and figures that keep NCC an up-to-date college. President Elder revealed that the students of NCC pay less than half the cost of running the school yearly. He expects the total cost for this fiscal year to be $1,475,693.68 with the students paying only $656,671.68. The remainder of this expense ($819,022) to be paid through the aid of the State Legislature. To date, (excluding new buildings) NCC has spent $659,067.04 for the total cost of this years operation while the students have paid only $325,146.84. Prexy was quick to add that this institution as a whole is a non-profit organization. Commenting on the fact that some of the students at NCC, who are on work scholarships feel that they should receive more pay and less hours, prexy said that "We want to get as much out of every dollar as possible." "The reason for this," added President Elder, "is to be able to help as many under-privileged students as possible." When asked what index he used to determine the number of under-privileged student, prexy answered, by asking, "Did you ever see or notice the line in the student loan or pay extension offices?" The next questions that I asked Dr. Elder were, why does this school not have a third meal on Sunday; why aren't students allowed to visited their friends in the infirmary, and what was the outcome of the recent request for room and maid service here? To these question Prexy smiled and nearly laughed out loud. After composing himself he replied, "As for the Sunday third meal, we try to give our dining hall staff a little time off. We don't allow students to visit their friends in the infirmary, not because of social reasons, but because of social reasons." (Please turn to Page Four)

Honor Students Spark Tutoring

Tuesday, February 12, marked the inauguration of one more attempt by the powers that be here on the NCC campus to provide tutoring services for scholastically deficient members of the student body. The ECHO should like to add its emotions to the mixed ones which inevitably greet any project of this nature, and wholeheartedly congratulate the sponsors of the program, Guidance Director R. D. Russell and Dean A. E. Manley along with the benevolent student tutors who are so graciously making free time available for the instruction of interested students. This entirely voluntary effort by representatives of Alpha Kappa Mu, Beta Kappa Chi, and students on the Dean's List is a most noteworthy exemplification of the spirit of service which everywhere pervades the demeanor of the typical North Carolina College students. Congratulations, tutors and sponsors. May your project be long-lived, successful and rewarding.

B. K. C. Initiates

Pi chapter of Beta Kappa Chi Scientific Society initiated five NCC honor science students here on February 21. The initiates are Jeanne Elizabeth Morgan, Kings Mountain; Leo Lavetrice Oliver, Danville, Va.; Gloria Frances Roberson, Delray Beach, Fla.; Malcolm Bushrod Templeman, Orange, N. J.; and Sarah Watkins; all juniors.

Boys And Girls Set One Another Straight On What Is Happening

Six men and six women students in conjunction with the Personnel Deans at NCC discussed six topics of boy-girl relations in Duke Auditorium. The topics were selected from more than two-hundred questions which had been submitted at the men's and women's assemblies earlier in the quarter by the student body at-large. The topics discussed were "The Basic Common Courtesies in Boy-Girl Relations," Cecelia Isham and Moses Burt; "Should Students in College seek to Broaden Friendship with the Opposite Sex, or Should They Concentrate on Finding a Mate," Patricia Jones and Earl Whit-tude; "What is The Proper Attitude to Take Toward The 'Dutch Treat' idea," Pearl Weaver and Floyd McKissick; "What Kind of Gifts Should Young Men and Young Women Give Each Other and What Should the Giving of Fraternity Pins and Engagement Rings Mean," Katherine Caldwell and James Atwater; "Problems of Proper Social Relations Between The Married Students,"

AKM Taps Eight

Kappa Gamma chapter of Alpha Kappa Mu National Honor Society initiated eight NCC honor students here on February 8. The initiates are Joyce Alethia Daughtrey, New York, N. Y. senior; Delores Jacquelyn Dyson, Greensboro; Jeanne Elizabeth Morgan, Kings Mountain; Sarah Watkins, Rockingham; James Leon Atwater, Chapel Hill; Joseph Battle, Rocky Mount; William Alfred Lewis, Warsaw; all juniors; and Calvin Haines Norman, Jamaica, N. Y. senior. (Please turn to Page Four)

UMT Holds Key To NCC's Draft Eligible Males

Future actions of the U. S. Congress will greatly affect the collegiate careers of N.C.C.'s dwindling male segment. According to Mrs. Frances R. Eagleson, NCC Registrar, legislative action concerning UMT holds the key to how soon the average NCC draft eligible male may expect to receive notice of induction. Mrs. Eagleson also indicated that as far as present regulations are concerned students will be inducted or deferred at the discretion of their own local boards. One student, she said, was ordered to report for induction after having received three student deferments. Another young man in similar circumstances and also in attendance here, received a deferment for the rest of the academic year. The major difference in their respective cases was that they were subject to different draft boards. Current Selective Service (Please turn to Page Four)

S. W. Hill Presents Widely Acclaimed NCC Choir; Men's, Women's Glee Clubs Featured

The widely acclaimed seven-ty-voice North Carolina College Choir under the direction of Samuel W. Hill presented its third annual Winter Concert in B. N. Duke Auditorium Thursday Night, February 28 at 8:15 P. M. The men and women's choirs were also featured. The Thursday program began a series that will carry the group to cities throughout North Carolina and South Carolina and on a tour of eastern cities in the Spring. The mixed chorus sang "Allelujah" by Randall Thompson; "Kyrie and Gloria" from "Missa Brevis", by Zoltan-Kodaly; "Sinner, Please Don't Let This Harvest Pass", "Let Us Break Bread Together", and "Joshua Fit De Battle of Jericho", arranged by J. Harold Montague. Following intermission the Women's Chorus sang, "Let There Be Music" by Frances Wilbain; "May The Good Lord Bless and Keep You" by Wilson Stickle; and "Malaguena" by Lecuona-Warnick. The Men's Chorus sang "Hallujah" from the moving picture, "Hit The Deck", by Youmans-Reddick; "Two

BOSTON POPS' SOLOIST HERE

DURHAM, N. C.—Mrs. Marion McCree Rucker of Boston, Mass., soprano soloist formerly heard with the Boston Pops Orchestra, was the featured vocalist during North Carolina College's fourth annual "Co-Eds Night" in Durham last Sunday. "She is the daughter of Mrs. Hazel McCree, house directress in NCC's Annie Day Shepard Dormitory. Mrs. Rucker was scheduled to sing at several cities during her Southern tour. Shaw University, Raleigh, was on her list of engagements. Two hundred-twenty seven NCC women were honored at a dinner ceremony Sunday night, by Mrs. Rucker's singing was the highlight of the evening.
