

The Critic

By Charles McNeil

Now that the elections are over, the candidates who won and the fortunate candidates who lost can be viewed objectively without the slightest hint of indignation.

James Bryant, a practical but somewhat cocky administrator sought the presidency for the glory of Gamma Beta Chapter. Lacy Streeter, a reasonable facsimile of Mohandas Gandhi as a leader, sought the presidency for the glory of Tau Psi Chapter. NCC students had a choice between the administrator and the leader. They chose the leader. So as not to slight the Gamma Beta Chapter, Carl High (Alpha) was elected over Timothy McIntosh (Omega) for the vice presidency.

The choice the students had for Campus Echo editor was between a stubborn, non-tactful two and one-half year veteran of newspaper work, the incumbent Thomas Lee Cameron and the unknown, two and one-half month newcomer, with high ideals and little newspaper experience, Cynthia Jarman. The students chose the unknown two and one-half month newcomer. Maybe the students were not voting for Miss Jarman but rather against Mr. Cameron.

Of the "Miss NCC" candidates, with the exception of maybe one, all would have made a representative "Miss North Carolina College"; that is, they all have a supposedly good combination of beauty, grace and brains.

The yearbook editor for 1960-61, Edith Sutton, could be placed in the same category as Miss Jarman—that is, many high ideals, and little experience. That, too, is all well and good except who ever heard of high ideals editing a good publication.

Concluding, the candidates promised the students nothing, with the exception of Mr. High; so what's to be expected.

Going Places

Nat Jones: The Talented Collegiate Music Man

By Cynthia McDonald

A young man who appears to be going places in the music world is Nathaniel Leon Jones. A native of Kinston, North Carolina, Nat graduated from Adkin High School as valedictorian in 1955.

While in high school he was active in the choir, band, and the male octet. Upon his matriculation at North Carolina College he immediately joined the College band and choir. He is now a member of the Music Education Club, Dance Orchestra, and the Woodwind Ensemble.

Nat's musical experiences have been numerous. He has played with some of the major artists in secular music today. Notable are Sil Austin, Lionel Hampton, Clyde McPhatter, The Coasters, Jerry Butler and Dee Clark.

He now manages his own band, which has made quite a name for itself.

As intelligent as he is creative, Nat is a ranking member of the Senior Class. He was recently elected to Who's Who Among Students In American Universities and Colleges. In 1956 he was awarded the Valke-menian Award for having the highest average in science.

In spite of his many musical and scholastic commitments, Nat has many hobbies which include playing all types of sports, swimming, reading "good books," and often seeing a "good movie." Sometimes, says Nat, "I like to ride along the countryside in my car taking advantage of nature's wonderful gifts and thinking pleasant, realistic, and imaginative thoughts." One of his major hobbies, of course, is listening to classical, popular or jazz music with a strong sense of appreciation.
