

Support NCC
Student Scholarship
Fund Drive

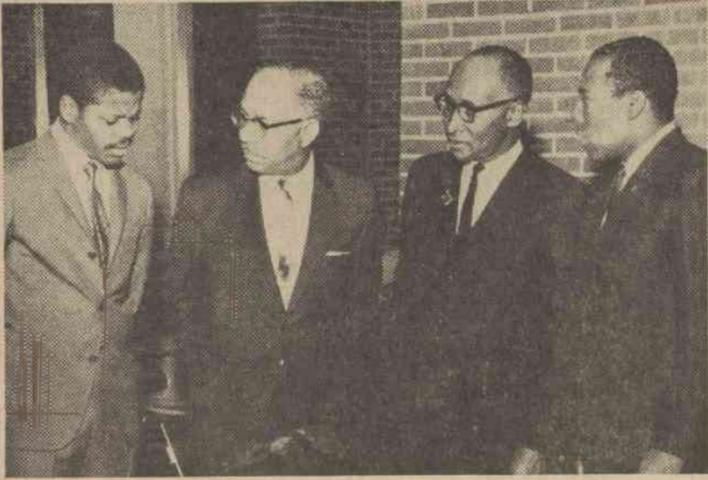

Campus Echo

1910
TRUTH
SERVICE
NORTH CAROLINA COLLEGE AT DURHAM

North Carolina College at Durham

Patronize
Our Advertisers

Durham, North Carolina, Tuesday, January 31, 1967

Dr. Albert Whiting, President-elect of North Carolina College, is shown here (center left) exchanging ideas with Samuel Thomas, left, President of the Student Government Association; William Jones, (center right), the college's Business Manager; and Floyd Hayes (right), Vice-President of the Student Government Association. Whiting visited North Carolina College on the 11th day of January and addressed the Student Body. Whiting will take his post on July 1.

Jones Appointed Vice-President

William Jones, North Carolina College business manager, has been appointed vice president for financial affairs by the board of trustees.

A native of Wilmington, N. C., Jones received his elementary and secondary education in the Wilmington public schools. In 1936 he received the B.S. degree with a major in business administration from Hampton Institute. In 1940 he was awarded the M.A. degree in the same field by Atlanta University.

Jones brings to the position 26 years of service as a business manager in North Carolina state-supported college—eight at Fayetteville State College, from 1940 to 1948, and currently entering his 18th year at North Carolina College, having joined

Athletic Director Earns Doctorate

James W. Younge, athletic director and assistant professor of physical education at North Carolina College, recently completed all requirements for the Ed.D. degree at Temple University. The degree will be conferred on February 11, 1967.

Pursuing a major in educational administration and a minor in physical education Younge presented a dissertation entitled, "High School Preparation and Freshman Failures at North Carolina College."

A member of the NCC faculty since 1949 and athletic director since 1961, Younge is a native of Salisbury, N. C. Holder of the B.S. degree from Virginia State College and the M.S.P.E. degree from Indiana University, he has also studied at the University of Florence, Italy.

He is the author of a book, "Games for Children," published in 1959.

Younge joined the physical education department at NCC after producing championship teams in football and basketball at Morristown College, Morristown, Tenn. Now tennis coach at NCC, he formerly served as line coach in football and as head baseball coach. His Eagle tennis teams won the CIAA championship in 1957, 1958, 1959, and 1963. For the past three years they have earned second place honors.

the faculty in 1948.

He is considered by State authorities as an expert in State budget procedures.

Jones is a member of the American Association of College Business Officers, which he has served as treasurer, vice president, and president. He also holds membership in the National Association of Business Officers and the Eastern Association of Business Officers. He was for three years a member of the board of directors of the National Association of Business Officers.

In addition to his work as NCC business manager, Jones has been chairman of the interim committee administering the college since February, 1966.

A member of Kappa Alpha Psi fraternity, he is the father of two sons—William Jr., 21, a senior at Virginia State College, and Anthony Ward, 19, a sophomore at Hampton Institute.

23 NCC Students Make 'Who's Who'

Twenty North Carolina College students have been nominated for inclusion in the 1966-67 edition of "Who's Who Among Students in American Universities and Colleges."

Their nominations were based on scholastic records, campus citizenship, and other criteria established by the college. Eighteen are North Carolinians, with six representing Durham.

The students are Edna Clegg, Va.; Ray Currence, Gastonia; Judy M. Dugger, Robersonville; Carolyn J. Edge, Rocky Mount; Elizabeth A. Galbreath, Red Springs; Betty M. Harmon, Windsor; Floyd Hayes, Los Angeles, California.

Carolyn J. Mumford, Kinston; Mary McNeil, Charlotte; Robert Sanders, Clayton; Ella E. Tyson, Greenville; Kathryn L. Wallace, Mount Olive; Georgia M. Williams, Fayetteville; John T. Williams, Rocky Mount.

Durham nominees are Leonard King, Warren D. Leggett, Natalie E. Marshall, Gloria J. Snipes, Sandra R. Wray, and Nettie Young.

President-Elect Calls For Student Involvement

In a January 11 address to the college community, Dr. Albert N. Whiting, president-elect of North Carolina College, urged students to become "involved" in a variety of desirable undertakings. "My plea to you — my plea to all students across this nation" he said, "is to get involved — to seek true 'intellectual involvement.'"

In Durham to attend the mid-winter meeting of the college's board of trustees, Whiting, now dean of the college at Morgan State College, Baltimore, Md., briefly greeted the NCC faculty at its monthly meeting Tuesday evening and spoke to the student body at Wednesday's Forum assembly. He will become the college's fourth president on July 1, 1967.

Speaking on the subject, "The College Culture and the College Community," he discussed the "college culture," defining it as "The way of life in the campus community — what must be done, ought to be done, may be done, and must not be done."

Recruiters Busy On NCC Campus

Forty-one corporations, federal agencies, and educational institutions and systems will send recruiting representatives to the North Carolina College campus in February, William P. Malone, the college's placement director revealed last week.

Malone, who indicated that more than 300 representatives from various firms and agencies will visit the campus this year, said even more recruitment visitation are requested during a school year. Confirmation are often impossible, he said, because of facilities at the college for interviewing, testing and other related activities.

Already confirmed for February are the following, he said: C a m p LeJeune Dependants Schools, N. Y. Central Railroad System, Federal Power Commission, R. J. Reynolds Tobacco Co., Eastern Airline, Kinston Graded Schools, Radio Corporation of America, Atomic Energy Commission, University of Pennsylvania, Naval Research Laboratory (Norfolk, Va.), Baltimore Public Schools, United Airlines, Atlanta (Ga.) Public Schools.

Other companies to send representatives are Cartenet County Public Schools, Beaufort, N. C., Scott Paper Co., The Sherwin Williams Co., U.S. Navy (Norfolk, Va.) The Glidden Co., Camp Minisink (N. Y.), the U.S. Soil Conservation Department, International Business Machine Corp., Omaha (Neb.) Public Schools, the Brunswick Corp., the Job Corps (Univ. of Wisconsin) Agriculture Research Service, Peppler Gas, Light and Coke Co. (Chicago, Ill.) the Tennessee Valley Authority.

A d d i t i o n a l representatives will come from Celanese Corp., General Foods Corp., Forsyth County Schools, Howard University Graduate School, Nationwide Insurance Co., John Hancock Mutual Life Insurance Co., Philadelphia Teaching Project, Prudential Insurance Co., N. C. State University, the National YWCA, and the Corning Glass Works.

Sociologist Whiting described the campus community as a much-stratified society, with each of the many groups on campus playing its own role and pursuing its own function in the life of the society.

The "official" culture, Whiting said, is created by the administration and faculty in the form of curricula, college objectives, rules and regulations, and the means through which the objectives are achieved.

Students and student groups then develop their own patterns, which represent in a sense, Whiting said, "a re-defining of what must be done, ought to be done, may be done, and must be done."

He declared that a college fails "miserably" if students see their education only as a ticket to a job.

"There are great and important questions which man has asked and continues to ask with greater accent as his horizons have widened, and in each age powerful and sustaining insights with reference to these questions have been obtained through the liberal arts," he said.

Describing as the goal of the liberal arts college "a climate involvement," he said students characterized by intellectual should show a desire to learn, an awareness of need, and an

(See President-Elect, Page 3)

Union Bridge Class Commences Feb. 7

Persons interested in learning to play bridge will have the opportunity at their finger tips in February. The lessons will be offered each Tuesday at 7:00 P.M. in the Student Union Building. Coach Robert Heard will serve as instructor for the course. The "learn to play bridge project" is sponsored by the Student Union Recreation Committee which is chaired by Benjamin Carrington.

The Student Union is also planning a project involving some 3,000 paperback books, acquired by the college through the cooperation of a national foundation. Students will be able to check books out and utilize the new reading room in the Union.

PLANNING STUDENT UNION PROJECT—Thurman Prescott, Jr., director of North Carolina College's student union, works with two student assistants on plans for a display by the college's Campus Book Club, to be housed in the union. Some 3,000 paperback books, acquired by the college through the cooperation of a national foundation, will be available in the union for use by NCC students. The student assistants, who will work with the project, are, standing, Betsy Washington, a sociology major from Durham, and Alice Sykes, a nursery school education major from LeGrange.