Biggers Named Dean Of Women

By ROSELINE MCKINNEY

An N.C.C. woman's dress, ideals and principles "should be like an address on an envelope—something to direct the message to where she wants it to go" is the philosophy of Dean Alma F. Biggers.

Mrs. Alma F. Biggers, Dean of Women, is an N. C. C. alumna. She received her B.A. and M.A. degrees in Counseling and Guidance.

She has worked actively in counseling centers and in the Equal Employment Opportunity Program for at least five years. She taught English one summer at Mary Potter High School in Oxford. In the summer of 1966, she worked at Robbins AFB in Macon, Georgia.

After working at the Employment Security Commission for a number of years she decided to return to Counseling and Guidance.

She also received a grant from the American Association of University Women in Washington, D. C. to attend George Washington University one summer.

Dean Biggers has been working with students practically all her life. Aside from serving as dean, she is closely connected with the school choir. Feeling that "all things are possible through God," she invites all young men and women to come and worship with her each Sunday.

Students Faculty Visit Art Show

An unique exhibition entitled "The Great Age of Fresco Giotto to Pontormo" will be on display at the Metropolitan Museum of Art in New York on November 7-15.

This show brings to America for the first and only time works which exemplify one of the greatest periods of Western art in a medium which is almost completely without representation in American collections and museums.

The works were lent as a generous gesture by the Italian government to acknowledge outside aid in the aftermath of the disastrous flood which swept Florence in 1966. Fine pieces by Giotto, Pierdello Francesca, Andrea del Sarto, Fra Angelico, Andrea del Castagno, Jacopo Pontormo will be shown.

Instructors and students going from NCC are Miss Lana Thompson, Mr. Sam Moline, and Mr. N. E. Pendarf of the Art Department, and Marilyn Alston, Bobby Jones, Franklin Beuvell, James Biggers, Ledell Flynn and Diane Speas, all art majors.

They will leave September 7 and will tour the Guggenheim Museum and the Whitney Museum.

STUDENTS FOR HUMPHREY

Students Attend Rally For Humphrey

Hands swinging and students singing were symbols of the all-out efforts of a contingent of 400 NCC students to back Vice President Hubert Humphrey. The students loaded seven buses October 2, enroute to the Charlotte Coliseum where they participated in the Humphrey-Muskie campaign. The rally was termed "the biggest thing that has ever hit the Charlotte Coliseum."

Officers of the Student Organization for Humphrey-Muskie are: William Murphy, president; Wayne Roberts, vice president; Delores Benton, secretary; Yvonne Myers, assistant secretary; Chappell Felder, treasurer; and Perry Massey and Earl Leatherberry, public relations agents.

WALLACE RALLY HELD IN DURHAM

By ESTHER SILVER

George Wallace, the American Independent Party's presidential candidate, brought his campaign to Durham, Thursday, October 24, and was greeted by a crowd of supporters and dissenters.

Among the dissenters gathered in the parking lot of the Durham City Police Station were about 300 NCC students.

Wallace began his traditional speech by lashing out at college students, professors, his opponents, Richard Nixon and Hubert Humphrey, the federal government, and the hippies. He gave the students and professors his favorite label "anarchists" and stated, "The anarchists had better have their day now because after November 5, they're through."

He continued his remarks

Boycott Effects Not Revealed

A representative of the Durham Merchants Association recently said that no one person would be able to give the Echo an official report on the effects that the current boycott in Durham is having. This is the only answer that we have received from "the man."

Whether or not the effects have been too small to be tabulated remain to be known.

Since the Eagles were asked to support the boycott, it may seem discouraging that we cannot find out how well we are doing. Lacking official word on the boycott's success or failure, we can be sure that somebody knows, whether that somebody lets us know or not. If no one person will let us know, and we certainly will not be able to attend a meeting of the entire Merchants Association, there is only one way to be absolutely sure of the boycott's effects and its success: SUPPORT THE BOYCOTT.

aimed at these groups — "I don't know what they teach in the colleges now, but they ought to teach them how to behave in a crowd," — "I am going to get rid of professors, some preachers and some bureaucrats that look down their noses at you and say you don't know where to send your child." He also remarked that a few of the students would end up being dragged by the hair to a good jail where they belonged.

At this point, some of the crowd shouted, "We want Wallace," and others shouted "Seig Heil," and NCC students waved their placards saying, "Wallace Got Soul," "Wallace is Black" and "Wallace is our Boy!"

A scuffle erupted after this demonstration. NCC students complained that someone, apparently Wallace supporters, sprayed them with mace.

Wallace evoked much approval from the crowd when he aimed at "the Establishment," the Republicans and Democrats, the Supreme Court and gave his pledge of law and order and (See Wallace Rally, Page 4)

Morehouse Prof. Lectures At NCC

Dr. Samuel W. Williams, Professor of Philosophy and College Minister at Morehouse College, will deliver a series of lectures at NCC, November 18-20 on "The Role of Religion in Human Affairs." Dr. Williams will appear before class combinations, conduct seminars, engage in dormitory discussions, and deliver a main lecture. There will also be luncheons with students and faculty.

Professor Williams will address himself to such themes as "The Black Man's Religion," "Christianity, Communism and the Demand for Social Change" and "Questions the Present Generation is Asking About Religion." These lectures are being sponsored by the Religious Activities Committee.
