

ood One

They get along better They eat better, and
th is better. Although l bark after being de-ark is not loud.

re made on each dog's d about the condition
h, coat, etc., treatment omments on his general ointed out that within e days after their arnts are usually noted in lth and dispositions of mination determines if dy to be moved to the building, where they minimum of two weeks hirty days. (Some dogs ew building for longer in particular those be-

-term projects such as needed by the investi-

center and the new ng are located within a ance of each other on a and now being utilized edicine.

e building was com-
fall, and just to look observation that lead-at Duke can be a very ce.

runs" offer ample area lazing, whichever the de the cages, radiantly ntain a constant tem-

Other features of the rs (leading from cages designed so that dogs
s in or out, and pans tically with food and es and "runs" are ay.

e other facility, daily n the dogs, and careful o their care.

also contains an examporatory, a special re-ooms set aside for dogs l research projects.

, and it's a good one!

Drs. Sherwood and LeMay . . . in front of the new veterinary quarantine facility.

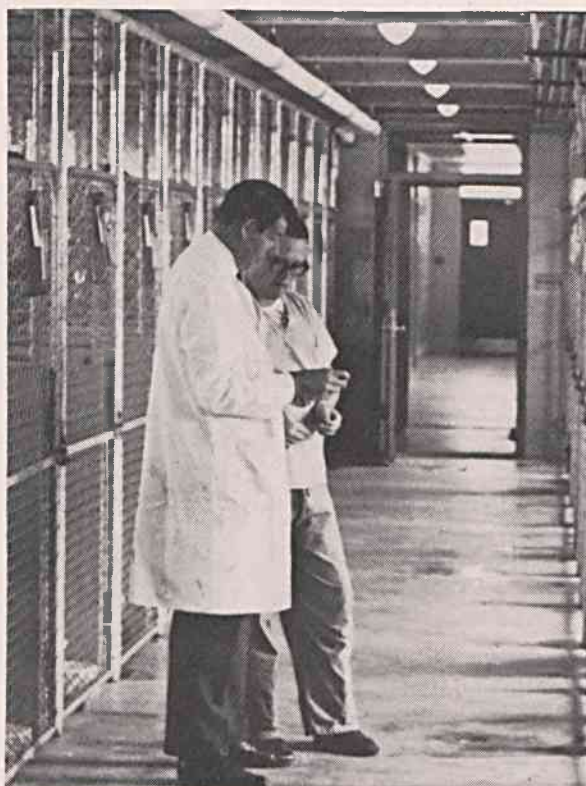

New dogs are carefully examined.

"A dog responds to the care and treatment he receives . . ."

After two or three days health and dispositions improve.

The general health of each dog is checked daily.