

Intercom

duke university medical center

Office

VOLUME 17, NUMBER 10

SEPTEMBER 18, 1970

DURHAM, NORTH CAROLINA

Provost Lists 11 Full Professors

Duke University Provost Dr. John O. Blackburn has announced promotion of eleven Medical Center faculty members to full professorships effective this academic year.

Four of the promotions came in the Department of Medicine, two each in the School of Nursing and the Department of Pathology, and one each in the departments of biochemistry-genetics, psychiatry, and radiology.

Named professor of medicine were Dr. Joseph C. Greenfield, Jr., Dr. Kaye H. Kilburn, Dr. John Laszlo, and Dr. Ernst Peschel. All were formerly associate professors.

Dr. Greenfield, originally of Atlanta, earned both his A. B. degree in history and his M. D. from Emory University there. He served his internship and residency at Duke.

Dr. Greenfield retains his title as assistant professor of physiology and will continue as director of the Duke Heart Station.

Dr. Kilburn received his B.A. degree from the University of Utah in 1951 and his M. D. from the same university in 1954. He took a research fellowship in medicine at Duke and a U. S. Public Health Service fellowship in the cardiac department of Brompton Hospital in London.

He will continue as assistant professor of anatomy.

A native of Cologne, Germany, Dr. Laszlo earned his A. B. degree at Columbia University and his M.D. from Harvard Medical School.

He interned at the University of Chicago before coming to Duke in 1960 as an associate in medicine.

Dr. Peschel, originally from Dessau, Germany, received his medical training at the University of Berlin and completed an internship there. He spent several years in private practice in Berlin before coming to Duke.

In the School of Nursing, Miss Gwendolyn Fortune and Miss Wilma Minniear were named full professors.

Miss Fortune was associated with the Frances Payne Bolton School of Nursing at Case Western Reserve University in Cleveland before being appointed to the Duke staff in 1964.

She earned her B. S. in nursing there in 1943 and her M. A. in education from Case Western in 1949. She has also done graduate work at the Teachers College of Columbia University.

Miss Minniear, who began duties as director of nursing service at Duke Hospital in July, was also formerly on the faculty of the School of Nursing at Case Western Reserve.

She earned her diploma from Ball Memorial Hospital School of Nursing in Muncie, Indiana, and then completed requirements for a B. S. degree at Ball State University. She earned her M. S. in nursing service administration at Case Western in 1952.

Dr. Joachim R. Sommer, at Duke since 1958, and Dr. Benjamin Wittels, here since 1961, were promoted from associate professors to professors in the Department of Pathology.

Dr. Sommer graduated from the University of Munich Medical School in Germany in 1950 and did his postgraduate training in Washington, D. C., and Norfolk. He recently completed a post-doctoral

(continued on page four)

PROMOTED TO PCA III—Seven patient care assistants recently completed a two-month course to qualify for promotions to the PCA III level. From right to left, front row, are Lawrence Davis, Rosa Meadows, Marian Gordon, Dorothy Moore, and William Nichols. Second row: Eula Coleman, instructor with Patient Care Education, Sally Davis, Maxine Massey, and Donna Aita, also an instructor. (photo by Dave Hooks)