

Smith Returns from South; Looks to North

S. Douglas Smith, who held administrative positions at the medical center from 1966-71, has returned to Duke Hospital as an associate administrative director.

In announcing the appointment, Administrative Director Richard Peck said Smith's primary assignments over the next two years will involve pre-operational activities of Duke Hospital North, scheduled for occupancy in the spring of 1979.

For the past four and a half years, Smith has been associated with Humana, Inc., and during most of that time was Southwest regional manager in Dallas with responsibility for operation of eight general acute care hospitals in Texas.

Prior to that, in 1971 and 1972, he was associate administrator of Greenville (S.C.) General Hospital.

A native Texan, Smith earned a B.S. in business administration at

S. DOUGLAS SMITH

Abilene Christian University in 1960 and a master's in health administration at Duke in 1966.

He remained here as administrative assistant in the office now known as that of the vice president for health affairs, and in 1969 transferred to Duke Hospital where he was assistant director until 1971.

"We are very fortunate to have Doug Smith back," Peck said. "His familiarity with Duke, plus his experience in the multiple-hospital system at Greenville and the proprietary hospital arrangement more recently, will be very valuable as we embark on the multiple hospital system at Duke University Hospitals."

Smith and his wife Nan are the parents of triplets - two boys, Bryan and Troy, and a girl, Jane - who were born in Duke Hospital 10 years ago this May, and a 5-year-old son, David.

Applications Open For Faculty Club

The Duke Faculty Club is now accepting applications for membership. A non-profit organization, the club offers its members and their families a year-round program of recreational and social activities.

Facilities include a clubhouse with men's and women's locker rooms, two swimming pools, 12 tennis courts of which four are lighted, and a snack bar. The club offers a complete program of professional tennis and swimming instruction for all ages.

Duke employees who are compensated on a monthly basis and house staff are eligible for membership. The Faculty Club has members from all areas of the university.

Application is made by writing a letter to the Executive Director stating a desire to become an active member. For more information, call 684-6672.

Symposium Topics To Include The Pill, Obstetrics Advances

Current concepts on use of the pill and new advances in obstetrics are among the topics of the 13th annual E.C. Hamblen Symposium beginning here this morning in the Hospital Amphitheater.

The symposium on reproductive biology and family planning is named for the man who founded Duke's interdepartmental Division of Endocrinology, Dr. Edwin C. Hamblen. He died in 1963.

Today's first morning session is "Physiology of Menopause and the Later Years," by one of the two guest faculty members, Dr. Edward E. Wallach, professor of obstetrics-gynecology at the University of Pennsylvania. Dr. R. Herbert Wiebe of the Duke faculty will then discuss "Therapy of Menopause."

Two Duke physicians will conclude the morning session with Dr. William T. Creasman discussing "Natural History and Pathology of Adenocarcinoma of the Endometrium" and Dr. Charles B. Hammond talking on "Estrogen Therapy and Endometrial Cancer."

Two films of symposiums, "The Normal Healthy Woman" and "The Woman at Risk," both dealing with current concepts in oral contraceptive treatment, will be shown and discussed this afternoon.

At Saturday morning's Newer Advances in Obstetrics session, the second guest faculty member, Dr. Roy M. Pitkin, professor of Ob-Gyn at the University of Iowa, will talk on "Nutrition During Pregnancy." Later in the morning he will discuss "Autoimmune Diseases in Pregnancy."

Other Saturday morning speakers, from the Duke faculty, will be Dr. Jane E. Brazy, "Perinatal Aspects of Beta Strep Infection," and Dr. Stanley A. Gall, "Current Management of Rh Sensitization."

Change of Plans

If you looked for Dr. Mohamed B. Abou-Donia on "60 Minutes" last Sunday, you were disappointed.

After Intercom went to press last week the story on research by the assistant professor of physiology and pharmacology was rescheduled by CBS-TV. The network expects to air the story this Sunday barring unforeseen changes in the news.

Low Prices Offer Live Performances

Do you remember when you could enjoy a live performance by musicians or dancers of international fame for $1.25?

Well, that is still possible through a season membership in The Friends of the College.

Individual memberships are $10 each, and are now available for the eight performances of the 1977-78 series.

Opening the season, Oct. 22-23, will be the Royal Philharmonic Orchestra of London. This will be followed by performances by an operatic trio, the Scots Guards and Grenadier Guards, the Jose Bailes Espanoles and the Columbus Boychoir.

Completing the series will be the Buffalo Philharmonic, a performance of "Swan Lake" by the Pittsburgh Ballet and a bonus concert, Mahler's Eighth Symphony, which used a thousand artists in its premier performance.

All performances will be given at Reynolds Coliseum, North Carolina State University. Admission is by season membership only.

Tickets and information on group ticket purchases may be obtained from Mrs. H.S. Perry, 489-6982.
