

EVERY TIME I HEAR YOU BEEP—The Finale of the annual Medical Student-Faculty Show paid tribute to the "plastic beeper, loud and gray." The program saluted a number of distinguished faculty and many aspects of medical center life with similar irreverent dignity in such songs as "Follow the Color Code Signs," "Yore in Pain," and several others which were equally entertaining and some unprintable. The show, "Zen and all the beer you can drink," was staged April 23 in Card Gym. (Photo by John Becton)

Upjohn Sets Up Grad Fellowship

The Upjohn Company has given the Duke University Medical Center $5,000 to establish the Upjohn Graduate Fellowship in Endocrinology.

Beginning this fall, the money will be used for a stipend and supplies for a student working toward the Ph.D. degree, according to Dr. David W. Schomberg, associate professor of obstetrics-gynecology.

Upjohn is a pharmaceutical firm. Schomberg was chosen by the company to select the student and administer the funds.

This Week on TV

Dr. Joseph A.C. Wadsworth, professor and chairman of the Department of Ophthalmology, will discuss childhood eye diseases on Channel 5's (WRAL) "Good Morning Five Country" show Monday, May 16, at 7 a.m.

The interview was prompted by a workshop on cancer of the eye and surrounding tissues that Dr. Wadsworth led at the Eye Center last month. He is a member of the Comprehensive Cancer Center.

New Book Fund Enhances Medical History

A new book fund for the history of the neurosciences will serve as a focus for studies in the neurosciences at the medical center.

The fund has been established in memory of Dr. Irwin A. Brody, an associate professor of neurology who died in October 1976.

In addition to book purchases, each year a medical student or member of the house staff will be named the Irwin A. Brody Scholar and will be invited to make special use of the collection for writing a paper or organizing a symposium on the history of the neurosciences, said Terry Cavanagh, curator of the History of Medicine Collection in the Medical Center Library.

The Brody Book Fund will add "a new dimension to the great History of Medicine Collection in the Medical Center Library," commented Dr. William G. Anlyan, vice president for health affairs. "Private institutions like ours are greatly indebted to this kind of generosity."

"We are deeply interested in Irwin's special hobby of the history of the neurosciences," Anlyan said, "and will cherish having his name associated with the university in this immortal way."

First Purchases

Three books have been purchased so far:

— Raymond Vieussens' Neurographia Universalis (Lyon 1685). This book was based on 10 years of work and dissection of 500 cadavers.

Vieussens' investigation of the white matter of the brain was the best that had been carried out at that time.

— Carlo Matteucci's Traite des phenomenes electro-physiologiques des animaux (Paris 1844). Experimenting with electric fish, he found that the electric discharges were due to impulses in the brain.

— Sir David Ferrier's The Croonian Lectures on Cerebral Localisation (London 1890). These lectures, delivered at the Royal College of Physicians, greatly refined knowledge of cerebral localization and mapped the entire motor cortex.

A committee to administer the fund will consist of Dr. Simon Brody, father of Dr. Irwin Brody; Dr. Albert Heyman, professor of neurology; Dr. Allen D. Roses, chief of the Division of Neurology; Dr. Robert H. Wilkins, chief of the Division of Neurosurgery; Warren Bird, director of the Medical Center Library; and Terry Cavanagh.

Women's Legal Rights

The changing legal rights of women in North Carolina will be discussed tomorrow in a Law Day program sponsored by the Office of Continuing Education.

Fourteen women attorneys will speak on a wide range of legal topics confronting people in everyday situations, such as buying and selling real property, sex discrimination in employment and higher education, family law, equal credit and landlord-tenant housing problems.

The program will begin at 8:30 a.m. in the Moot Court Room of the Law School and will be coordinated by Betty Gervais, a retired attorney, who is active in Duke's Institute of Retired Persons.

Registration is $17, but scholarships are available. For more information call 684-6259.

Events on Campus

Summer Session I
May 13-June 12, 1977

Event and Time	Place
PERFORMING ARTS (684-4059):
Fri., Sat., Sun. (5/20-22) and Fri., Sat., Sun. (5/27-29), 8:30 p.m. Summer Theater: "Butley" (Admission Charge)	E. Duke Music Rm.
Fri., Sat., Sun. (6/3-5) and Fri., Sat., Sun. (6/10-12) 8:30 p.m. Summer Theater: "Loot" (Admission Charge)	E. Duke Music Rm.
MUSIC (684-4059):
Sun. (5/22), 3 p.m. Concert by Robert Parkins, chapel organist, on Benjamin N. Duke Memorial Organ	Chapel
Sun. (5/29), 3:30 p.m. Vocal recital: Annette W. Hook, soprano, accompanied by Kathryn P. Huestis	1803 Woodburn Rd.
RELIGIOUS (684-2572):
Sun. (5/22), 11 a.m. Worship service: Rev. A.J. O'Brien, Catholic student chaplain	Chapel
Sun. (5/29), 11 a.m. Worship service: Rev. Robert Johnson, regional director, National Institute for Campus Ministers	Chapel
Sun. (6/5), 11 a.m. Worship service: Rev. Robert T. Young, university minister	Chapel
Sun. (6/12), 11 a.m. Worship service: Rev. Robert C. Johnson, Jr., minister, St. Luke's Episcopal Church	Chapel
OTHER:
Sat. (5/14), 9 a.m. Continuing Education: Law Day for Women (Admission Charge)	107 Bivins
Sun. (5/15, 5/22, 6/5), 1:30 p.m., Continuing Education: Workshop: The Woman Alone (Admission Charge)	107 Bivins
Sat. (5/21) 9 a.m. Continuing Education: Values Clarification Workshop (Admission Charge)	107 Bivins
Mon. (5/30 and 6/6), 7:30 p.m. Evenings with Prominent Duke People	FF Lounge

FILMS: Tues. (5/17), 7 and 9:30 p.m. "Night at the Opera;" Wed. (5/18), 7:30 p.m. "His Girl Friday" and "It Happened One Night;" Tues. (5/24), 7 and 9:30 p.m. "Tom Jones;" Wed. (5/25), 7:30 p.m. "Auntie Mame;" Tues. (5/31), 7 and 9:30 p.m. "Arsenic and Old Lace;" Wed. (6/1), 7:30 p.m. "Blue Angel" and "Shanghai Express;" Tues. (6/7), 7 and 9:30 p.m. "McCabe and Mrs. Miller;" Wed. (6/8), 7:30 p.m. "Little Women" and "Adam's Rib;" All films in Gross Chem. Aud. (Admission Charge)

NEW OLD BOOK—Terry Cavanagh, right, curator of the History of Medicine Collection in the Medical Library, shows one of the first books purchased by the Irwin A. Brody Book Fund to Dr. and Mrs. Simon Brody, parents of the late Dr. Irwin Brody, and Hilda Brody, center, his widow. Published in 1685, Neurographia Universalis was based on dissection of 500 cadavers. (Photo by Ina Fried)