Night Owls Sponsor Trip to White Lake

The Night Owl Club will sponsor its annual bus trip for employees and their families Saturday, Aug. 6, to White Lake, N.C.

All Duke employees are invited on a first-come, first-serve basis and are encouraged to take swimsuits, cameras, frisbees, ball-playing and badminton equipment, according to Lucretia McCoy, president of the Night Owls. There is no charge for admission to amusement or swimming areas at White Lake.

A 47-passenger Southern Coach bus with storage space for picnic baskets, games, folding chairs and blankets will leave at 8 a.m. from the parking lot behind Trent Drive Hall (Graduate Center). It will return at about 8 p.m.

The fare is $6 per seat. A child under three years old may go free as a "lap-child." One seat may be reserved for two small children.

The deadline for registration is July 25. For registration or information contact Employee Relations, 684-6037, between 9 a.m.-5 p.m. or the Nursing Office, 684-2432, between midnight and 8 a.m.

A HAPPY FACE—June 30 was Elsie Cooke's last official day at Duke, where she has served tens of thousands of patients and visitors from behind the information desks in the main lobby of the hospital and at the PDC entrance. That afternoon a number of her friends assembled for a retirement party at which she received this framed drawing of the hospital's Woodhall Building. She also received a framed caricature and poem titled, "You've Told a Million People Where To Go." She's planning to return to the hospital as a volunteer with the auxiliary from time to time. ## Dr. Tindall Returns to Air Force

Dr. John P. Tindall, professor of dermatology, resigned June 30 to return to active duty in the United States Air Force as a lieutenant colonel.

Tindall, who joined the Duke faculty in 1966 and has been an Air Force reserve officer since then, will be stationed at the Royal Air Force Bentwaters base in southeastern Suffolk, England.

He will serve as both flight surgeon and dermatologist with the USAF Medical Clinic at Bentwaters.

Tindall said the four-year enlistment will allow him and his wife Daphne, who is a British subject, to be with their two children who are in boarding school in England.

DR. JOHN P. TINDALL

The dermatologist said he met his wife while he was an exchange medical student working in St. Bartholomew's Hospital in London in 1958.

Between 1963 and 1966, the physician spent three years on active duty as a captain in the Air Force at the RAF's Lakenheath base in Suffolk.

Food Co-op Offers Low Prices

Where can you buy tomatoes for 30 cents a pound, peaches for 20 cents a pound and get a three pound bag of whole wheat flour for 76 cents?

At the "Intergalactic Food Conspiracy." Now in its fifth year, the operation, known popularly as the Duke Food Co-op, is expanding into the larger Durham community.

A new storefront will be opened on Broad Street, one block behind East Campus. With its new home, the co-op can serve far more than its presently active 300 members, according to Tom Campbell, research technician in the Department of Medicine.

The co-op handles fresh produce direct from Raleigh's farm market, flours, grains, eggs, honey and cooking oils, a variety of dried beans, fruits and nuts as well as a large selection of imported and domestic cheeses.

Prices are much less than in supermarkets because the members share the responsibilities of the store management and because no profits are saved by the corporation. Weighing, bagging and selling the items requires each member to help for two hours every six weeks, Campbell said. The co-op accepts USDA Food Stamps.

Three members of the board of directors are affiliated with the medical center: Bob Bruce, graduate student in Biomedical Engineering; Gerry McKenzie, Microbiology; and Judy Stafford, Community Health Sciences, who is manager of the membership committee.

Other medical center employees who are co-op members are John Roby, Hyperbarics; Karen Sjostrom and Dr. Ed Cox of Medicine; Cathy Saylor, Blood Gas Lab; Bev Jones, Eye Center; David Robie, Anatomy; Dr. Tom Durr, Pediatrics; Judi Sheriff and "Doc" Muhlbaier of Community Health Services; Neil Sheperd, Physiology; Jennifer Buzon, Jane Crosby, Karen Wacome and Leslie Hanes of the Aging Center.

Among the student membership are Marshall Plotka, Libby Schreiner and Rich Orland, School of Medicine; Al Willistein, P.A. Program; and Dan Harris of Health Administration.

For information on becoming a member call Stafford at 383-7172 in the evening or 684-6734 during working hours.
