

Work with Students Accents Long Career

By John Becton

After 40 years of nursing, Mary B. Campbell says, "The greatest satisfaction has been working with students."

For the past 25 years, Campbell, who is retiring today, has been director of the Anesthesia Program for Nurses.

She began her nursing career at Duke as a general duty nurse 1937-39.

"They were adding the wing between the hospital and Baker House at that time," she recalled. "I've seen every wing added. I grew up with the place."

Alumna and Director

Campbell returned in 1942 to enter the nursing anesthesia program and was a staff nurse anesthetist until her appointment as director of the training program.

In 1962, she founded the Anesthesia Alumnae Association and has served as president, secretary, treasurer and trustee at various times.

The association sponsors a homecoming weekend every two years, featuring workshops, seminars and renewing of old acquaintances. The weekends are "very well attended," Campbell said, and draw former students from across the nation.

Good Reports about Grads

Since the program began in 1931, there have been 281 graduates, and 194 of these have completed the program during the years Campbell has been director.

"We get many compliments on the work of our graduates," she said. "We have a good program because we have so much to offer at Duke. Students get to observe many kinds of cases, we have a good nurse anesthetist staff, and we have good facilities such as the medical center library and the bookstore."

She explained that these facilities were especially important because the anesthesia program includes a significant amount of didactic work.

Growth of Program

The program has grown in size and scope over the years, Campbell noted.

"We have more students than we used to," she said. "And now they rotate through the Eye Center, OB and the VA, as well as the operating rooms."

Campbell also has seen changes in her profession.

"We used to give a lot of ether. Now we give halogens, such as halothane, and intravenous muscle relaxants," she said.

A past president of the North Carolina Association of Nurse Anesthetists and of the Carolinas-Virginias Assembly of Nurse Anesthetists, Campbell now looks forward to moving into a new home she recently built on the Chowan River near Edenton.

Art Is Hobby

She also will have more time for her hobbies.

"I like to draw, paint and knit. I will do a lot of each when I retire," she said.

Because of her interest in art, a special invitation was designed for a retirement party being given today in honor of Campbell and Frances R. Perry, former technical supervisor in anesthesiology, who retired Aug. 31.

The invitation featured a cover drawing done by Mary Campbell.

BOGDONOFF

BRAUNWALD

Special Broadcast Set on Cardiology

A live closed circuit television program entitled "Beta-Adrenergic Blockade: A New Era in Cardiovascular Medicine" will be broadcast at Duke and the VA Hospital on Tuesday, Oct. 4, at 3 p.m.

The telecast will be shown in the Hospital Amphitheater and room D3008, VA Hospital.

Chairman for the program is Dr. Eugene Braunwald, Hersey Professor and head, Department of Medicine, Peter Bent Brigham Hospital, Harvard University. Braunwald will lead a panel of five physicians who have been selected to provide summaries of a one and one-half day meeting which takes place immediately before the telecast.

The panel for the telecast includes: Dr. Morton D. Bogdonoff, executive associate dean, Cornell University School of Medicine. He was formerly professor of medicine and assistant dean at Duke.

Dr. Edward D. Freis, senior medical investigator, Veterans Administration Hospital and professor of medicine, Georgetown University.

Dr. Albert A. Kattus Jr., professor of medicine, Division of Cardiology, University of California at Los Angeles.

Dr. John H. Laragh, master professor of medicine and director, Cardiovascular Center, New York Hospital-Cornell Medical Center.

Dr. David G. Shand, professor of medicine and pharmacology, Vanderbilt University School of Medicine.

Continuing education credits are available from the American Medical Association and the American Academy of Family Physicians for viewing the telecast.

The program is sponsored by Excerpta Medica International and the New York Academy of Medicine, under a grant from Ayerst Laboratories, New York.

History, Art Displays

An exhibit focusing on the history of Duke University and another featuring Islamic art are on display in campus libraries through early October.

"The Leaders of Duke University and Its Predecessor Institutions: An Exhibit Prepared by the Duke University Archives" is on display in the gallery of the Perkins Library.

The East Campus Library is showing an exhibit of Islamic art in recognition of the experimental course on Islamic history and civilization being given for the first time this fall by Prof. Bruce Lawrence of Duke's Department of Religion and Prof. Herbert Bodman of U.N.C.'s History Department.
