DR. ALVIN MARTIN KERR PASSES AWAY

The death of Dr. Alvin Martin Kerr was announced by Dr. Harper Monday morning. Prof. Bennett, a personal friend of Dr. Kerr, spoke in appreciation of Dr. Kerr's life. Dr. Kerr was for many years editor of The Herald of Gospel Liberty, the oldest religious paper in the world, having been founded in September, 1808.

The first statement Professor Bennett made about Dr. Kerr was a striking one. "He suffered more than any other man I have known," he said. He was an invalid for five years. Hardly a day passed that he was free from pain. During his life he had twenty-eight operations for tuberculosis of the bone. I learned of his suffering from others, not from him."

Dr. Kerr came to be a highly educated man even though he never had a formal high school or college training. He was a great reader, a careful student. Dr. Kerr came to be an outstanding preacher and one of the foremost thinkers and writers in our country. God wonderfully used him in the church work of this country.

Dr. Kerr first came to Elon in 1895. Drs. Harper and Brannock were then Juniors and Prof. White was a Sophomore. He electrified the student body with his message. When the faculty chose the speaker to deliver the first commencement sermon in the Whitley Auditorium they chose Dr. Alvin M. Kerr.

MR. STANLEY SPEAKS TO ECONOMICS CLUB Gives Profitable Talk on Automobile Sales Relation

At the weekly meeting of the Economics Club, on Friday, November 2, Mr. Stanley, president of the Stanley H. Motor Co. of Burlington, gave a very interesting and instructive address on "Automobile Sales Relations." Speaking with particular emphasis on the vocational aspects of this field of work, Mr. Stanley pointed out the importance of choosing one's life calling while still in college and then fitting in the best possible way for the task ahead. The speaker gave an account of his own early struggles which now, after many years of hard and discouraging work, have given him well deserved success in his chosen business. After his formal address, Mr. Stanley conducted a brief discussion period.

The meeting of the club which will be held Friday, November 9, will be conducted by members of the class. The program will be posted on the bulletin boards before that date. Students, faculty members, and outside visitors are always welcome, both to attend and to participate in the meetings.

DR. O. G. LANKFORD SPEAKS TO STUDENTS

"The needle has not received proper recognition for the service it has rendered in the world," declared Dr. O. G. Lankford, pastor of the Burlington Christian Church, in his talk on last Friday morning. "We have heard and read much about the sculptor's knife, the artist's brush, the soldier's sword, and the writer's pen, but it seems that the work of the needle has been overlooked." Dr. Lankford mentioned various kinds of needles that render service to mankind. Among these he mentioned the sewing needle, the surgeon's needle, the needle of the seaman's compass, and the Vietnam needle of the scientist, Mr. Edison.

"The make-up of these different needles varies," stated Dr. Lankford. "There are needles of wood, wire, steel, and gold. And, then, there are different ways needles may be made. A needle may have a sharp point or it may have a dull point, such as the knitting needle has. A needle may be made with, or without an eye. That is, the eye may be either open or closed. Each of us are in the making of our characters and destinies. The eye must be open and the point sharp."

"And, now, let us consider the service needles have rendered. Without the sewing needle, the world would not be well clothed. Think how valueless would be the surgeon's knife if he had no needle! The mariner's needle has doubtless saved many lives and untold delay and suffering; it insures safety upon the high seas. In the realm of art, the needle has made some contributions. Beautiful ideas are conveyed through masterpieces in needlework as well as by the artist's brush. And, last, think of the happiness and inspiration the small needle of the Victrola has contributed to the world."

its next regular meeting night. We feel confident that, with this splendid addition to its ranks, one of the best years in the history of the Philologist Literary Society is just ahead.

MINISTERIAL ASSOCIATION GIVES GOOD PROGRAM

Sunday the Ministerial Association of Elon was very busy conducting three programs. The first was given at the First Baptist Church of Wise, N. C. R. N. Moses delivered a very effective and forcible sermon on John 14:19. He presented his thoughts in a most unique and dramatic fashion. H. C. Hilliard also spoke at the same services taking as his subject, "To Whom Shall We Go?" During the discourse he brought out the need of God's infinite presence wherever we may be. He declared that without God we had no one on whom to rely, and no one to whom we may go in the time of trouble and tribulations. Both speakers were complimented and were asked to occupy the pulpit at the evening services. Due to the fact that they had to return to Elon for their classes Monday, they were unable to conduct a second service.

The second program was given at the Whitsett M. E. Church. The speakers were assigned parts by the leaders. The subject for discussion was, "Wasted Time." Mr. Fred Smith, a freshman, spoke on, "How We Waste Our Time." He brought out in his discussion the uselessness of gossiping. The next speaker, J. Howard Smith, talked on, "How We May Use Our Time to the Best Advantage." He cited many men who had used their time in service for their fellowman. These, he said, had received most out of life by having been of some service to his neighbors. People who are selfish never get the best out of life. He closed by bidding each to use time wisely, thriftily, and with purpose.

Daniel Boone was the third speaker at the Whitsett church. He entered into the field of Psychology on wasted time. The meeting was a success, and the speakers were highly commended.

While two other programs were being presented a third one was given at the First Christian Church of Greensboro. Professor Van Cleave presided at the service. A. A. Dofflemyer talked on, "A Christian and His Friends." He brought out in his talk the need of right associates for one who desired to be a Christian.

G. D. Underhill then spoke on, "A Christian and His Thoughts." He declared that a Christian must think of higher and nobler things if he wished to reach his goal. David Sheppard discussed "The Ambition of a Christian." He said that a Christian must have the ambition to move on in life, and to aspire to high things. There is no such thing in a Christian's calendar as to stand still. To stand still is to die. He must have the ambition to move onward and upward.

The three programs were declared successes from beginning to end, and every one spoke of their pleasure at having heard the future ministers speak.
