

JOLTS AND JARS

At risk of losing many of our friends (?) and admirers (?), we are going to attempt again (?) this year to amuse "you all" with our incoherent and pointless ramblings. This was made apparent to us last week when one of our friends (?) said, quote, "That xqox-zxxx (etc.) thing again?" unquote. But being as we probably won't be around much longer we figure that we may as well get our kicks while we can—they're painless this way!

Right now there is quite a stink in the music biz—this said stink being the result of the sudden realization of certain peace (?) officers that some musicians smoke reefer; i. e. marihuana. Also the arrest of Cliff Leemans, drums Charlie Barnet, upon a narcotic law violation—all of this being a result of the death of two Barnet sidemen, "Bus", Tiri and Lloyd Hundling. Now we don't say that Leemans or any other musicians who might be involved with him in this violation should be defended for their action, because they are old enough to know better. But what jars us is the way the West Coast papers played it up. These papers led one to believe that all musicians are narcotic addicts or are dependent upon some sort of stimulant. Now this is definitely a black eye to musicians, and furthermore any one with good common sense should be able to see through this and have gump-tion enough to realize that only a very few musicians use dope. But the movies, books, magazine stories and heresay have done much to bring the public to a point where they believe that all musicians are either dope fiends or drunks. So the next time anyone tells you "Joe Blow" is a dope fiend of something don't forget that in a large majority of musician unions a user of narcotics is permanently banished from the union and most well known musicians are union members who like their jobs. Also bear in mind it could happen to your butcher, lawyer, doctor, etc., just as well.

It is interesting to know the current fav "I Don't Want to Set the World on Fire" was recorded over two years ago by Harlan Leonard and Orchestra, but it never caught on until now.

Jimmy Dorsey is continuing his rise to the top of the band heap by announcing his contract to do a play for Paramount, starring Dottie Lamour and Jimmy's vocalists, Bob Eberly and Helen O'Connell entitled "Fleets In." The salary Jimmy is to draw will be second only to that Kay Kyser and orchestra draw from RKO.

From London comes this piece of advice: "London is still a good place to keep away from in September. Last year it was bombs; this year its the 'Hut Sut Song'".

As a service to our admiring (?) readers we are presenting herewith a few tunes that will probably drive you nuts within the next few weeks or months. Number one on this list is "B-I-Bi"; (2) "Joltin' Joe DiMaggio"; (3) "Isle of Pines"; (4) "Watch the Birdie"—You probably haven't heard some of them now but just wait!

It is past time for all those who expect to get up for classes to go to bed so we may as well close now so we can get some sleep before all the freshmen start getting up for breakfast! In closing we should like to say to our new readers (?) that we usually close with a joke or some witty bit of foolishness. But we can't find our third edition of "Joe Miller's Joke Book" so you tell some upperclassman that you read this column and you liked it.

P. S. You'll get your laugh—

Vogue Announces 2nd Camera Contest

New York: The editors of Vogue magazine have just announced Vogue's Second Photographic Contest for seniors in accredited American colleges and universities. Two career prizes are offered, one for men, one for women, consisting of a six month's apprenticeship with salary, in the Conde Nast Studios in New York. These prizes carry with them the possibility of permanent positions on the successful completion of the trial period. In addition cash prizes will be awarded for the best photograph submitted for each of the problems.

This nation-wide contest consists of eight photographic problems to be presented in the magazine. These cover a wide range of topics, including fashion shots, outdoor and indoor subjects, action and still-life. Winners of this contest will join the staff of the Conde Nast Publications on or about June 15th, 1942. For further information write to Vogue's Photographic Contest, 420 Lexington Ave., New York City.
