

JOLTS AND JARS

By JOHN POLLARD

They say college changes a person, but we weren't aware of just how fast this change takes place in person until we overheard one freshman explaining to another how much he had changed.

"Yeah," he said, "when I first came here I was pretty conceited, but they knocked and cut all of that out of me, and now I'm one of the best fellows in the college."

No doubt you heard about the one that was pulled on Dr. Bowden's Religious class; if not, it went something like this:

Dr. Bowden: What do you think of Buddha?

Guess Who: Oh, it's all right, but I think oleomargarine is just as good.

And speaking of religion, we had the occasion during the holidays to hear a colored preacher attempt to explain the fury of hell to his flock.

"Yo' all is seen meltin' metal runnin' outta da furnace, ain't yo'?"

The flock answered in the affirmative.

"Wal, dey uses dat stuff fer ice cream in de place I's speakin' of."

But to get back to college again, we understand that something like the following was transacted between Prof. Barney and an "embryonic dip-somaniac" member of his freshman English class when they were studying spelling:

Prof. Barney: Spell "straight."

Dipso: S-t-r-a-i-g-h-t.

Prof. Barney: Correct. Now, what does it mean?

Dipso: Without ginger ale.

The other day while breezing through the Biology department, we learned that the difference between a snake and a flea is that a snake crawls on its stomach and a flea isn't so particular.

We certainly were embarrassed when we got caught attempting to slip a piece of toast out of the dining-hall so we could make some charcoal sketches.

Remember when Joe "I Don't Need a Shave" Whitaker was sick? Well, his frat brother Billy "I Don't Need a Haircut--Much" Johnson was worried so he went over to see Nurse Juanita "Band-Aide And Alcohol" Perdue.

"Nursey" wanted to know if he had eaten anything that might have upset him.

"He ate some chicken yesterday," said "IDNAH-M" Johnson.

"Croquette?"

"No, but he's pretty sick."

Now for some questions for the musical intellects among the "poor excuses for morons" who read this stuff. There are three questions--give yourself two cents for each one correct. If you make a perfect score buy two "two-fers" and give us one.

Who wrote the following "tales"?
(a) "Tales of Hoffman."
(b) "Tales from the Vienna Woods."
(c) "Tale of the Invisible City of Kitezh."

There seems to be a little misunderstanding regarding the generosity, etc., of George Bulhard after the following incident:

Margaret: My, those hamburgers from that stand smell good.

George: They do smell good. Let's move closer so you can get a better smell.

We don't say that he is tight, but he keeps five-dollar bills folded so long Lincoln has ingrowing whiskers.

We heard a fellow say the other day that his grandfather lived to be ninety and never used glasses. But come to think of it, lots of people prefer to drink out of a bottle.

It couldn't be that this column is corny, but the Governor of Kentucky has just informed us that we have been made a Kentucky "Kernel."

This Week's Invention:
A hollow piece of soap, so there won't be any little pieces left over after people have used it.

Did you see that visitor on the campus yesterday? Well, that was "Lifebuoy," Charles Boyer's brother.

Well, so long, we have to go check up on the rumor that deaf and dumb guys wear boxing gloves to bed so they won't talk in their sleep.

Dear Diary

By Mary Denson

Br-r-r-r!!! Still haven't recovered altogether from that cold weather! The weatherman certainly has been outdoing himself lately with the signs of spring, and then suddenly "springing" on us with weather something like what we imagine would be at the North Pole. Oh, well, who are we to talk about the weather? What is to be, is to be--or something.

Not much happening lately, Dear Diary, but we'll record a few highlights anyway.

January 20th---One of our annual formal banquets tonight was held in honor of the opera "The Marriage of Figaro," presented to the faculty and student body (and outsiders) in Whitley. Everyone enjoyed immensely the appetizers in the Reception Hall--and the banquet! (The decorations were very appropriate, too!) The opera--and the whole evening--was immensely successful. May we have more like it.

January 30th---One of the big days on our calendar. The Freshman-Sophomore Reception. The Freshmen have been making big plans for it, and I know we'll all enjoy it. There's a rumor that they even may have an orchestra. Everyone is looking forward to this reception--and trying to get dates! Oh, how we envy the lucky ones! The good part of it is, though, that the Freshman and Sophomore girls may also ask the boys, and vice versa. So there's still a chance for us a date, girls!

Now Dear Diary, we'll "bull" a while--and speaking of "bull," those new girls' rules I mentioned before weren't just that but have actually taken effect in a wonderful way, and the results are very pleasing. I know our faculty appreciates the changes in some girls' grades, and so will these same girls when the grades come 'round again. Orchids to the council and the girls for cooperating so well.

... These boys' and girls' basketball games certainly are attracting a lot of interest. The games are really stimulating to watch--and to play! It's really fun to see all our friends playing for their own particular team and to cheer them. We can hardly wait for the tournament to start and see what two teams are the winners. The competition in both the boys' and girls' teams is really strong, so no one can judge who will be on top in the end. But keep it up, all you teams, you're doing swell!

... That dreaded Initiation Week is finally over, and all the pledges are at last breathing naturally again. But we certainly will miss the entertainment presented to us by some of these pledges. It's too bad we can't be honored by those "command" performances" all year--or is it!?!?

... Dear Diary, I think everyone knows about Allen Colenda, our regular linotypist and general flunky (!) of the M. and G., leaving school for the navy. The whole staff, and especially "Chief," was left at a great loss and worried no end, thinking perhaps we had seen our last issue of this alleged paper. But the day was saved when Mr. Robinson stepped in and competently took over. We certainly cannot express our thanks enough to him for doing this for Elon--and us. And hbw about the neat and clean M. and G. room! That in itself is a miracle which no one has ever attempted to do in, say, the last decade or two. So, orchids to you, Mr. Robinson, from Elon student body and Maroon and Gold staff!

... So, no more is left to be said that I can remember at this time, Dear Diary, except perhaps we'll see you later.

NEW CLASS CUT REGULATIONS GO INTO EFFECT AT SPRING QUARTER

Dean Messick has issued the following statement relative to class cuts for the spring quarter:

Class Absences.—Absences are counted from the first meeting of the class in the quarter. Those who enter a course after the first meeting of a class are reported as absent from the previous meetings of the class.

Cuts.—(1) No Freshman is allowed any class cuts his first quarter in school. (2) Any student securing an "F" on a course may not be permitted any class cuts the following quarter. (3) A student making an average of "D" in all work registered for in a given quarter may be allowed two cuts in each subject the following quarter. (4) A student making an average of "C" on all courses registered for in a given quarter may be allowed three cuts in each subject the following quarter. (5) A student making an average of "B" on all courses registered for in a given quarter may be allowed five cuts in each subject the following quarter. (6) A student making all grades of "A" in a given quarter may be allowed unlimited cuts the following quarter. (7) Incomplete and conditional grades are considered as grades of "F" in regard to cuts for the following quarter.
