

ELON'S BAND NOW IN TOP CONDITION

The Elon Band, once in the embryonic stage of organization, is now awakening to it's definitely colorful and musical inspiration under the able direction of Mr. E.F. Rhodes, of Burlington.

Another Responsible man is Merritt Foushee, band president, and high stepping drum major, who sees that the parades and maneuvers end with, each member walking in the same direction. He is aided by Bill Stafford, vice president, Ann Darden, secretary-treasurer, and W.F. (Speck) Harper, drum major and librarian, and Evelyn Moore, librarian.

At this date members consist of the following: trumpet players, J.B. Burns, Jack Hunley, Bill Stafford, Jenny Lea, Samuel Vause, Charlotte Matthews, and Glen Harrison. Saxophone; George Shockford Jr., Ann Darden. Clarinet; Ray McKenzie. Baritone; Earl Bolick, Jack Moore, and Jack Castel. Bass; Ted Fernyough, and Paul Shepard. Snare Drum; James Jones, Gene Cox, Tom Saunders Jr., and Jane McIntire. Bass drum; Howard Hodnett. French horn; Andy Meredith. Trombone; Ed Brady. Symbols; Richard Newton.

ADVICE TO THE INFIRM

To those poor souls who coughed and sneezed all last winter we extend our bit of the usually refused advice. There is no reason to accept it as such, but we advise you to reconsider and give a moments thought to what we are about to divulge. Last year, in the interest of all, the medical department of the school informed all students that the school doctor was prepared to administer to all, applying for same, the newly discovered vaccine that in most cases leave the person having had it immune to the winter's machinations toward the bringing down of all who are weak to that terrible malady, influenza. If you are one of the brilliant, apply to the medical department for your inoculation soon. Tomorrow may be too late.

The past two games since this column came to press have seen Elon add another victory to the record and also look impressive in a loss. Back from E.C.T.C., where there are 704 men and 694 women, (that school's really growing) came the Christians with a 7-0 victory that might have been larger but for the wettest field imaginable. And the previous week our Elonites gave the mighty Appalachian a scare in a 21-13 loss. The mountaineers are still unbeaten as a result of a sound beating they gave Lenoir Rhyne Bears last week, and now they have five in a row. Elon came closest of all. However the real powerhouse of the North State Circuit is Catawba. The Indians scored a their 70th straight game as they eat a supposedly strong Western Carolina eleven 44-0 last week. Bet-ha they don't romp through our fine line as they have through the other teams.

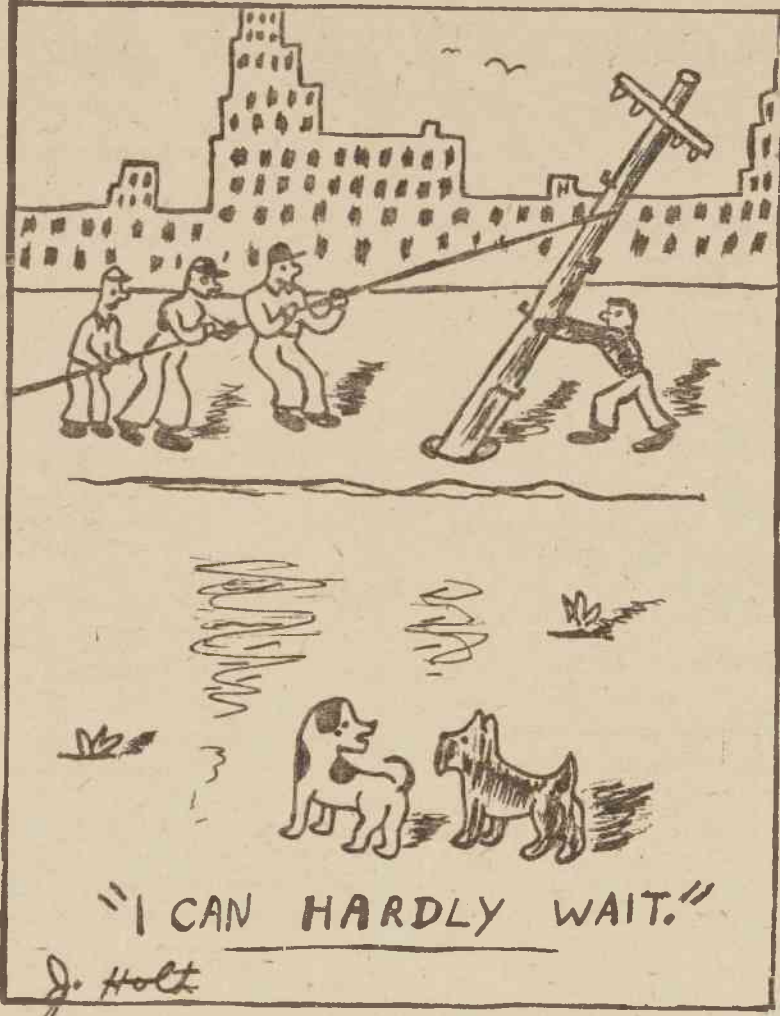

This corner as yet has not missed a prediction on an Elon football game in two years, but to-night the average really stands in jeopardy. The Newberry club is good and it should be a whale of a game. Newberry bowed to Appalachian also by an 18-7 margin. But comparative scores mean little. We are going to stick by our earlier guess. Victory for us by one point. C'mon out and pull your head off. We have a good team, let's show some appreciation.

For seven days there wasn't much getting accomplished between 1:30 and 4 o'clock each afternoon. Who could work with the Brooklyn Dodgers and the New York Yankees locked in breathless struggle every afternoon? Our friends from other lands must have been considerably puzzled by the madness that overtook us all last week said the New York Times. But if they would understand us, they might start with a serious study of baseball and it's fans. It is a typically American game. And the reaction to baseball is typically American, we like to think. Other countries have favorite sports -- cricket, jai alai, polo, horse racing. We have them too. But baseball is our very own. Nearly every American plays baseball at some time or another. Thus nowhere is there a more critical or more expert audience than at an American baseball game. Nowhere is expert play more keenly appreciated.

This World Series just concluded was more than just another set of games however, because one of the teams was the Dodgers. They are more uniquely American than any other sports team we can think of at the moment. This year more so than usually. Their roster was a cross section of American national background given little chance to win the pennant, they scrambled to the National League leadership in July and held it to the end. Almost disgraced in the first two series games by an admittedly more expert Yankee team, they fought back to tie it at three all. Every game was out of story book, a scenario written by Dick Merriewell.

Perhaps it is just as well they did not win. As one harassed policeman said during the celebration when the Dodgers won the pennant, "Think what this is going to be like if they win the series!" Reason totters. But in Brooklyn there is always next year. What has all this to do with Elon? Well, Brooklyn practically lives for its baseball team. We are a small more compact college. We see no reason why that spirit can't be found to a small degree about our teams. That's our pet peeve. We think the Elon spirit stinks! Blunt language but never-the-less that's how we feel about it and our ambition is to change it. For the second time in one column we urge you to get out and play the game with the guys on the field even if only in your mind.

Carolina has proved to be one of the most overated teams in the nation out State fans have reason to be proud of ex-Elon coach "Peathead" Walker's Wake Forest eleven. The 19-7 victory over Carolina was ample proof that the Demon Deacons are a fine team. They may not go undefeated but they'll do well.

The intramural touch-football league moved into full swing once again after an idle week in which the heavy rains all but washed the goal posts away. Results of games played since October 1, show South Dorm winning two close games, defeating Veterans Court 12-0, and South North 12-7, then South held the highly regarded Oak Lodge outfit to a thrilling scoreless tie. East Dorm ran over I.T.K. 21-3 and Kappi-Psi won by forfeit over North Dorm.

Rumor has it that we may play some of the "Big Five" teams in Basketball, we can't confirm this as yet. Also there are about 12 Junior Colleges in this state. We would like to see the Elon J.V. basketball team play a full schedule with these Junior Colleges and High Schools.

GRID GAB CHRISTIANS FACE SIX MORE ROUGH GAMES

Six more gridiron contests are on the card for Elon after the Newberry game. Everyone of them appears to be a tough one too. Next Saturday Night the "Fighting Elo" travels to Salisbury to play what is considered by many to be the best small college eleven in the nation. The Catawba Indians, who are fast closing in on Yales's record in 72 straight games, are the opponents and Elon is determined to gain some revenge for a 40-0 pasting taken last year. A chartered bus will take a large number of students to the game.

The following week, on homecoming night, Erskine plays here. Erskine has defeated Atlantic Christian 27-0 and Rollins 19-0. Rollins the very next week thrashed the University of Richmond which gives us some idea of the tough opposition to expect. As if these two opponents aren't tough enough, the next game on November 8th is at High Point with the powerful Purple Panthers, one of the finest teams in the North State Conference. High Point has also defeated Atlantic Christian and by a 33-0 count. But this writer saw High Point in it's 0-0 tie with Duke and believes that Elon is capable of pulling an upset and rolling up another win.

Lenoir-Rhyne is met at Hickory on November 15th and will also prove a capable opponent. The Bears defeated Eastern Carolina by 27-9 and bowed to Newberry 19-3. Then a week before Thanksgiving Elon gets another home game when the soldiers of Fort Bragg travel up thisaway for battle. Little is known about the doughboy eleven, but last year Elon defeated Fort Bragg 7-6 in a thriller when Bobby Harris skipped over for a score in the final period to save the day.

The last game of the season of course is Thanksgiving Day when the annual "Turkey Squabble" is held at Greensboro. Guilford is our biggest rival and to date has the same record as Elon, two wins and two losses. Doc Newton's boys have been getting a great deal of publicity from the Greensboro newspaper, but judging from their 23-13 down by Appalachian they are no more deserving of a high rating than Elon. Both colleges have good teams, but the plugs for Guil-

Elon College won it's second North State Conference football game of the current season Saturday Night by defeating Eastern Carolina Teachers College 7-0 before a small turnout at Greenville.

A slick muddy field and a heavy drizzle turned the game into a dull defensive tussle as fumbles and penalties constantly marred the performance. Lou Savini scooted off tackle from the E.C.T.C. 32 yard line in the first quarter for the only score in the ball game.

Elon cashed in on one of the many breaks during the evening. Attempting to kick from his own 40, Darby picked up a low pass from center and managed to bring the ball back to the 43 from where Elon went over in three plays. Savini picked up seven yards on an end run and Murray missed a first down by inches, but on the next play Savini went off tackle for 32 yards as the Fighting Christians scored the lone tally of the game. Jim Huyett place kicked the extra point.

The Fighting Christians had scoring opportunities in each of the three final periods, but failed to hit pay dirt. Gentry recovered a fumble on the E.C.T.C. 14 but an Elon offside penalty followed by a backfield in motion penalty halted the scoring threat. Bill Perry set up the same situation immediately after the second half began with a recovery on the E.C.T.C. 30 yard line, but four rushing plays failed to produce more than 9 yards and the future teachers took possession of the ball. De Simone recovered another fumble on the E.C.T.C. 21 midway in the final period and again the Fighting Christians were stalled as E.C.T.C. took over on the four yard stripe.

The statistics themselves give a good account of the game. The Fighting Christians had five first downs on 184 yards rushing and only 18 passing for a total of 202 yards. Braxton and Siler averaged 36 yards on kicks.

For Elon Lou Savini was the big gun on the offense along with Hugett Braxton, and Pete Marshburn. Arnold Melvin featured on the line for the Fighting Christians along with Claude Gentry, Hank De Simone and Johnny Zurilis.

Guard Hank De Simone injured his ankle again and may be laid up for some time. Guard Claude Manzi turned up with a bad knee and did not dress for the game.

ord and the scanty space allotted Elon would lead one not acquainted with the two teams to think the Quakers a far superior eleven. Jot this down in your memorandum Elon is going to beat Guilford Thanksgiving day! Last year's Elon club lost a 14-13 game to Lenoir-Rhyne but was a much better club, this year the luck is due to change. That team of last year also played Guilford to a 14-14 tie. Guilford no longer has Art Faircloth who was virtually a one-man offense in himself.

And so our Elonites go into preparations for six tough ball games. With the breaks and the right spirit we stand a chance of winning every one of them with the virtual exception of the Catawba game. But we don't give up there. We have a great line and once our offense starts clicking! Well--an upset of Catawba really would make the Headlines and we think Elon is due (attention Smith Barrier) to hit the top of the sports page. Go fellas!
