International Relations Club Plans Programs

Accounts of the activities of Friends' Service Camps in Europe, social experiments in Sweden and present conditions in Spain will highlight coming meetings of the International Relations Club, according to Henry Wentz, vice-president of the group.

Baxter Twiddy will describe the Friends' Service Camps at the regular meeting on Monday evening, November 28th, and Dr. W. W. Sloan will speak one week later on December 5th, discussing the Swedish labor and cooperative movement and trends in Swedish education as he studied them at the University of Upsala last summer. Mrs. Sloan will appear later on January 9th and give an account of her experiences in Spain last summer.

The International Relations Club, which is currently conducting a membership drive, was organized in October, 1946, to acquaint Elon students with important trends in international affairs through the medium of informed speakers, debates and round table discussions. All programs have aimed at that goal.

The 1947 club balloted the student body on universal military training and then conducted a round table discussion on that topic under the chairmanship of Alton Wright, president. Last year's program was climaxed by two debates with the IRC of Greensboro College on aid to Nationalist China and withdrawal of United States troops from Korea.

Early programs this year featured Bob Byrd, field secretary for the United World Federalists, who described the work of that group; and Mrs. Frondt, of the World Council of Churches, who discussed the problem of Germany, as she studied it during an extended stay in that country.

MISS GROOMES HURT IN FALL

Miss Virginia Groomes, of the Music faculty, suffered a cracked vertebrae on Saturday afternoon, November 12th, while taking a horseback ride at the Saddle Club near the campus and has been confined to her room in West Dormitory since that time.

She was adjusting a strap on her bridle when she lost her balance and fell from the saddle to the ground. Not realizing the extent of her injury, she continued her ride and did not learn of the fracture until later. She is said to be recovering satisfactorily.

Male Quartet Offers Fine Program Here

By BOB WRIGHT

Four virile-voiced he-men with particularly good solo voices, blended into an outstanding quartet which sang with gusto and artistry for a large audience in Whitley Auditorium last Friday night.

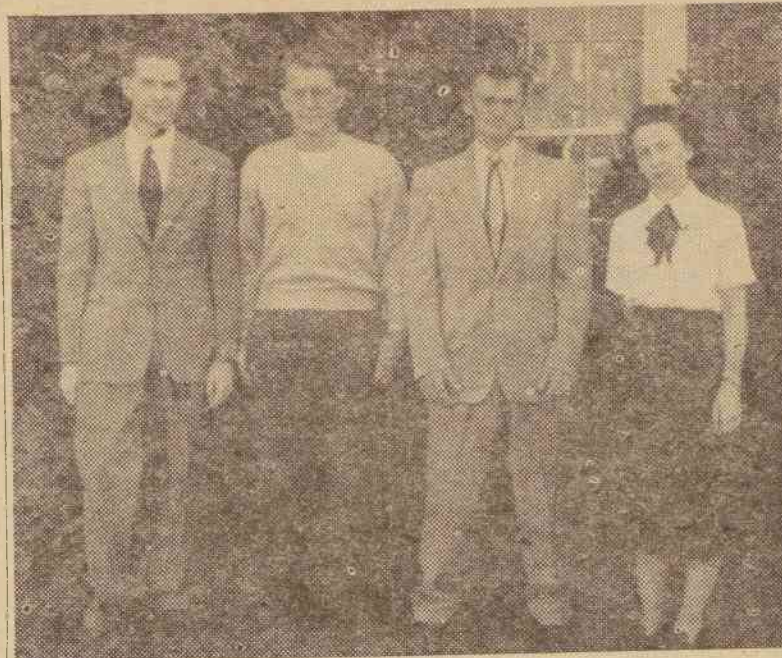

The quartet, composed of Attilio Baggio, Gene Tobin, Vernon Sanders, and Bruce MacKay, paired off for duets in addition to their four voice singing. Messrs. Sanders and Tobin sang Solenne in quest' Ora, from "La Forza del Destino" by Verdi, and Baggio and MacKay sang the first act Duet between Faust and Mephistopheles from "Faust" by Gounod. Both duets were effectively sung, with Baggio and MacKay singing with a bit more dramatic insight.

Probably the outstanding personality of the quartette was Attilio Baggio, who has a wonderful presence and a flair for the dramatic. We would like to see Mr. Baggio in a comic operatic role. His diction was a feature of his solo work.

Mr. Walter Hatchek, the accompanist, provided a brilliant piano interlude, playing two Chopin selections and the "Ritual Fire Dance." The audience demanded an encore, and Mr. Hatchek obliged with a delightful playing of "Music Box."

The well-known selections on the program were distinguished by their unusual arrangements, and The National Male Quartet sang them with rich harmony. "The Road to Mandalay" and "The Big Brown Bear" were notable audience pleasers. Singing with good control, the quartet was capable of the power of a full choir or the soft touch of a zephyr, whichever was needed. It was an enjoyable evening of fine music for Elon College.

VETS' APARTMENT NEWS

By RAY HAYES

Not too many people showed up for the meeting of Vet's Apt. this week, they like everyone else at this time must be very busy. Due to the small turnout for the meeting, it was decided by those present to postpone the business session until the next meeting the second Wednesday night after the Thanksgiving holidays. There will be several issues of importance at this meeting and every resident is urged to attend. One of the major issues is the top surfacing of the roads with gravel or cinders. Incidentally, the cinder pile is growing, and we should have something ready for work.

We are proud to say we now have our street lights, and that is indeed a great help. So, fellows, you see the old saying still holds true, "United we stand, separated we fall." Or, maybe I should say, if you don't succeed, try, try until you do. I know that is what Jim Hayes did, as I am sure would be confirmed by Duke Power Co.

ELON PLAYERS

Herries of her senses and her wealth. He is aided in this plot by Jerry Allen, who manages to be a villain and still add comic touch to the play.

"Kind Lady" was written as a play by Edward Chodorov from a story by Hugh Walpole, and has been successfully performed by professionals and amateurs. In 1935 Grace George received much acclaim for her performance of the Mary Herries role during the long Broadway run.

Although the villainy in the play is performed with drawing room manners, it has an undercurrent of suspense. Mary Herries is permitted to see people, but her story is so fantastic that she can find no one who will believe her. She is reduced to a pathetic old woman by the pressure brought to bear by Henry Abbott and company.

COLLEGE NURSE

For actual records show that during the months of September and October she administered treatment for 371 students for ailments that ran the scale from just plain sniffles to "flu" itself.

The statistics gleaned from the nurse's report up to October 31st are an interesting commentary on the health of the student body, for the 371 students treated represent 46 percent of the Elon enrollment. Slightly over half the students treated were boys, the records showing 195 boys and 176 girls, but then there are more boys enrolled than there are girls.

Almost half the student ailments reported have been plain colds, with 40 such cases in September and 123 in October, making 44 percent of all treatments. Fifty-two of the cold patients were in bed. Twenty-eight cases of sore throat have been listed, all except three in October. Up to the last of October there had been 109 absences due to sickness.
