

14 To 6 In Grid Finale Elon Defeats Davidson

The Fighting Christian gridder's tackled a glorious finish on their 1954 football season by defeating the Davidson Wildcats 14 to 6 at Davidson last Saturday. The victory gave Elon her most successful season since 1951 and spoiled Wildcat hopes for the best season in Davidson history.

The Wildcats piled up impressive yardage with their rushing game, but the rugged and alert defensive play of the Elon squad stopped all except one of the Davidson threats. Five times the Wildcats fumbled, and five times the Christians recovered, but that was not the whole story of the Elon defensive play. The Christians also stopped Davidson short of a first down five times by the sheer savagery of their tackling, and three times the Christian defenders intercepted Davidson passes.

Davidson threatened early when the 'Cats took the opening kick-off and drove to a first down on the Elon twenty, but Wildcat backs could only get six yards in four plays, and Elon took over at her own fourteen.

Set back to her own 31-yard line by a holding penalty on the first play of the second quarter, Elon drove to pay-dirt in exactly ten plays. Bill Snyder pitched to Whitney Bradham for 38 yards and a first down on the Davidson thirty-one. Three line plays added first on the seventeen, and Snyder hit Bradham again with a pass that made it first-and-goal on the four. Richards got one, and Bob Stauffenberg bulled through for the touchdown. Jack Simpson's kick was true, and Elon led 7 to 0 after 2:48 of the second period.

The 'Cats surged back from the kick-off for their score. Jim Thacker returned 30 yards and added 28 on an end run to the Elon thirty-two. Seven line thrusts carried to the Elon two, from where Dick Belton bucked over from his quarterback post. Kerry Richards slipped in from his half-back post and blocked Bob Talbert's kick, and Elon was still ahead 7 to 6 at 9:47 of the second period.

That was the score at half-time, but Elon added victory insurance and put the frosting on the cake with a lightning-like aerial thrust for a second touchdown. Set back again by a 15-yard penalty to the Christian twenty-one, Bill Snyder

CUNNINGHAM GOES TO HISTORY MEET

Dr. H. H. Cunningham, head of the Elon College Department of History, attended the twentieth annual meeting of the Southern Historical Association, which was held in Columbia, S. C., on November 11th, 12th and 13th.

Mrs. Cunningham accompanied him to the meeting, which was attended by historians and teachers of history from colleges throughout the southern states. The number present was larger than for any previous year in the history of the organization, which has for its purpose promotion of interest and research in southern history.

Students Hear Forum Program

Members of the Education Club and a group of invited guests attended the eight annual Harriet Elliott Social Science Forum at Woman's College in Greensboro last Thursday, when they heard discussion of the theme, "Forces Underlying International Tensions."

crossed a long pass to Kerry Richards on the Davidson 45-yard line, and the little Elon sophomore was long gone to glory land. The touchdown play covered 79 yards. Jack Simpson booted the point, but Elon was holding and penalized back to the seventeen. Simpson calmly kicked true again from that distant point. It was 7 to 6 at the third quarter, and Elon led 14 to 6.

Davidson threatened twice after that, but a pass interception by Homer Hobgood at the Elon 24-yard line and a fumble recovery by Charlie Michaux at the Elon nine blocked the threats. Michaux, who played his high school ball under Coach Bill Dole at Fayetteville, grabbed two Davidson fumbles during the game to help give his old coach a complete unpleasant afternoon.

There were numerous stars for the Elon squad. Kerry Richards, Whitney Bradham, Bill Snyder and Bob Stauffenberg forming an explosive backfield unit that proved dangerous on offense and brilliant on defense. The entire Elon line played fine ball, with Michaux, Hobgood, Kopko and Varney contributing fumble recoveries or pass interceptions to the Elon victory.

to Jerry Loy for his acting in "Hasty Heart."

Prof. Charles W. Cox assumed the reins as director of dramatics in the fall of 1953, and the 1953-54 season brought forth three long plays and two shorts. The long plays included "The Glass Menagerie," "Pygmalion" and Shakespeare's "As You Like It." The shorter offerings were "The Sisters MacIntosh" and "Abraham and Isaac." Diane Maddox for the second straight year received a leading role award for her work in "Pygmalion," while the other top award went to Jerry Loy for his work in "The Glass Menagerie." Supporting role awards went to Ann Stoddard from "The Sisters MacIntosh" and to Adolph Mellburg from "Pygmalion."

A new year of theatrical accomplishment is already underway at Elon, the Elon Players having already presented in fine style the initial show of the new year, having chosen Noel Coward's comedy, "The Blithe Spirit," for the season-opener that was given earlier this month.

LIBRARY NOTES

Previously Library Notes have reported on many and varied books, but this week's notes will deal with one thing, a very interesting thing—PEOPLE! Of such biographies are written, and the library has acquired several very interesting biographies in the past two weeks.

For lack of space we can do little more than mention the titles, beginning with the lone work about a woman. "Nancy Hanks Lincoln" was written by Harold E. Riggs, a well known scholar in the field of western history, this being one of his studies about women of the frontier, of whom Nancy Lincoln was typical.

There are three of the series on "Makers of American Tradition." This group includes Perry Miller's life of Roger Williams, one who stood near the entrance to American history; I. B. Cohen's life of Benjamin Franklin, whom the author considers a typical 18th Century man and thinker; and H. C. Syrett's biography of Andrew Jackson, who became the embodiment of the political and social changes of his time.

The library also has Bradford Smith's lively and scholarly biography of Captain John Smith, and it has just acquired the fourth volume of the biography of James Madison, carrying on Irving Brant's exhaustive study of Madison and his time, covering the period from 1800 to 1809 when he was Secretary of State under Jefferson.

Last book to be mentioned is one of Frank Friedel's volumes on Franklin D. Roosevelt. His first on the subject was "The Apprenticeship." This one is "The Ordeal," covering the years just prior to Roosevelt's election as governor of New York.
