

Netters Display Improved Form

The Elon tennis team, although it wound up its 1966 campaign with a record of three wins in fourteen dual meets, showed terrific improvement over the Christian net record of recent years, for the Elon netters chalked their first record in six years during this 1966 campaign.

The 3-11 record in wins and losses may appear disastrous, but a study of the individual match scores shows the very fine improvement made by the Maroon and Gold racketeers this year, and the fact that virtually all of this 1966 racket squad will be back next year bodes well for the future Elon tennis fortunes.

New Buildings To Be Named On Saturday

Special ceremonies scheduled for this coming Saturday and listed among the highlights of the 1966 commencement at Elon College will bring the official naming of the new student center and the new men's dormitory now rising on the southern edge of Elon's walled campus.

The new student center, located on the traffic oval immediately south of the Alamacence Building, will be named on Saturday morning in honor of Dr. William Samuel Long, who was the founder and first president of Elon College. The citation at the unveiling of the memorial stone will be read by Federal Judge Eugene Gordon, of Burlington.

The new men's dormitory, which is located in the southeast corner of the campus and which features three residence hall divisions in its thoroughly modern construction, will be named in honor of three Elon College faculty members who together rendered more than 135 years of outstanding service to the college.

The three divisions of the new men's dormitory will be named in honor of Dr. Alonzo Lohr Hoke, now dean of the faculty and a veteran of more than fifty years of outstanding faculty and administrative service to the college since he first assumed faculty duties in 1914; of the late Dr. Ned Faucette Brannock, who also gave more than half a century of faculty service to Elon; and of the late Prof. John Willis Barney, who served thirty-three years on the Elon English faculty before his retirement in 1958.

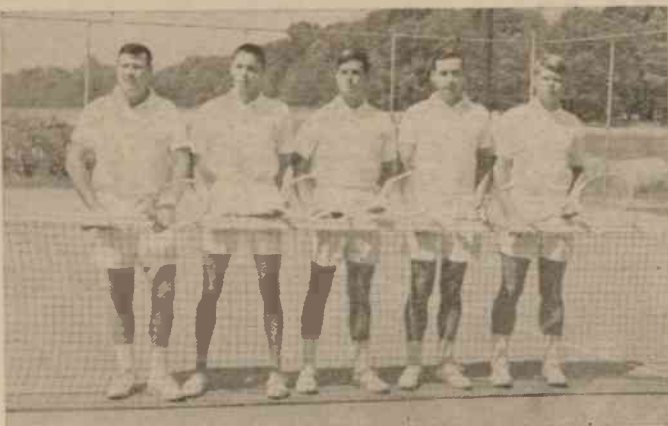

Dr. William Samuel Long, in whose honor the new student center will be named, was a native of Alamance County, where he was born October 22, 1839. He served in public education in the county and was for more than fifty years an outstanding minister of the Christian Church. He became interested in higher education and founded the Graham Normal College in 1865, which was merged into Elon College when Elon opened its doors in 1890. Dr. Long was president of Elon for four years before resuming his ministry. He suffered fatal injuries in an automobile accident in 1924 and died in August of that year.

Dr. Hook, still serving as a member of Elon's faculty, is a native of Winchester, Va., and came to Elon as a student in 1909. He graduated in 1913 and received the master's degree a year later and stayed on to serve the college as professor, dean, registrar and in many other capacities in the intervening years till the present time.

Dr. Ned F. Brannock and Prof. J. W. Barney, both of whom died some years ago, were also veterans of long faculty service, and both were graduates of Elon. Dr. Brannock, who graduated in 1899, returned to give more than fifty years of faculty service; and Prof. Barney, a graduate in the Class of 1910, came back to Elon to spend 33 years on the Elon faculty.

The official naming of the new dormitory in honor of these men will bring back Dr. James Hailey, Dr. Joe Robinson and Dr. Marvin Moss, all distinguished graduates of Elon College, to pay tribute to their former Elon professors during the ceremonies that will bestow the names on the new structures.

WAA Group Has Banquet May 18

The Women's Athletic Association topped off a highly successful year when the members held their annual spring banquet in McEwen Dining Hall at 5:30 o'clock on Wednesday night, May 18th. New officers for 1966-67 were to be announced at the meeting but were not known at this writing.

The banquet was marked by the presentation of intramural team awards to the First Virginia basketball team and to the Second Virginia volleyball team for their championships won in the two sports this year.

There were also individual awards of silver trophies to Carol Popowski and Marion Haffey for having accumulated over 2,000 points in intramural sports and of a WAA charm to Sandy Bergman for having accumulated over 1,000 points.

Leaders of the WAA during the 1965-66 year have been Sandy Bergman, as vice-president; Myra Boone as secretary; Betsy Jones as treasurer and Carol Popowski as reporter.

PRO GRIDDER

MORRIS THOMAS

Morris Thomas, who hails from Asheboro and who was a co-captain and star tackle with the Elon Christians last fall, has just signed a bonus contract to play pro football with the Ottawa Rough Riders in the Canadian Football League. Thomas played freshman ball at Auburn before coming to Elon to play a fine tackle for the Christians for the past three years.

Art And Photo Exhibit Is Held

A combined exhibit of photography and art by Elon College students was on display in the second floor banquet room of the McEwen Memorial Dining Hall on the Elon College campus from Sunday, May 8th through Tuesday, May 10th. The public was invited to view the exhibits.

The exhibits included work done by students in Dr. A. L. Hooks' photography class and by students in Prof. Edwin Daniels' classes in various types of art.

The exhibit included a total of 150 or more individual exhibits in photography and the various mediums of art, including portraits, landscapes, still life and other items.

the "rats," the faculty. "Howard" (an institution himself here at Elon), the faulty heat pipes with their clanging at 5:00 in the morning, the lack of hot water at 12:00 at night, the new building program and many other items. I'll leave them all to the successor to this editor and column. Good luck to whoever he is!

There's one last mention I must make. As much as he would rather be associated with the Bulldogs at New Haven, he is something of an enigma here at Elon. Next year's freshmen will ask upperclassmen, "Who or what is that?" The answer will be, "Oh, that's Tex." Yes, Sir Robert, as he is known to his friends, will be around next fall. As much as I may not want to hear it, "Model" as "Doc" calls him, is very much a part of Elon. Exactly what part, however, has not been decided. "By the right order . . .!"

Elon Annual Wins Praise For Staff

The 1966 edition of the Phi Psi Cli, Elon College annual, made its appearance on the Elon campus on Monday, May 9th with the delivery of the yearbook to the students completing one of the finest jobs done by a yearbook staff at Elon in many years.

Alex Oliver, Elon senior from Suffolk, Va., has served as editor-in-chief of this 1966 yearbook, and he credits members of his staff with an outstanding job in preparing the copy and making possible the delivery to the students much earlier than has been the case in recent years.

Three associate editors worked with Oliver in preparing the annual for the printers, including Susan Kimball and Fred Bright, both of Burlington, and Robert Jagnell, of Chuckatuck, Va. All are members of the junior class at the college and are expected back in school for another year of service.

Other leaders in preparing the Phi Psi Cli this year included Rita Apple, of Burlington, business manager; Laura Rice, of Burlington, art editor; and Dolly Walker, of Burlington, assistant art editor.

There were also departmental editors who supervised various special sections of the annual, among them Sandra Bueschel, of Graham, organizations editor; Fred Bright, of Burlington, who also served as Greek section editor; and Vickie Riley, of Burlington, who was one of several editors for class sections.

Others who served as departmental and class editors included Stanley Boone, of Durham, sports editor; Nancy Boone, of Plattsburg, N. Y., feature editor; Sue Jager, of Pawtucket, R. I., Greek section editor; and Mary Coolidge, of Amston, Conn., Mary Ann Barnes, of Holland, Va., Claire Webb, of Suffolk, Va., Lydia Ferrell, of Pittsboro, and Sharon Smith, of Merrick, N. Y., class section editors.

This 1966 edition of the Phi Psi Cli is dedicated by the staff to John T. Kernodle, of Richmond, Va., a member of Elon College's Class of 1908, who was for many years engaged in the printing and publishing business in the Virginia city. Mr. Kernodle, now retired from his printing business, was honored as Elon's "Alumnus of the Year." Some years ago he honored his wife, the late Virginia Beale Kernodle, who was also an Elon graduate, when he established a fund in her memory to provide for the upkeep and care of the Whitley Memorial Auditorium on the Elon campus.

ians threatened in the ninth when Marshall Montgomery and Tom Hauser both singled, but a strike-out by a Christian pinch hitter ended the hope.

Jerry Jackson, Elon third-sacker, topped the Christians with a pair of singles in three trips. Herman Eaker, who had a homer and two singles, topped the Falcons.

Year At Boone Linksman Close

The Elon golfers wound up their season with a disastrous showing in the combined Carolinas Conference and NAIA District 26 tournament played at Boone on Monday and Tuesday of last week, when the Christians compiled a four-player total of 668 for the two days of play and finished last in the field of entries.

The Christian linksman managed only five wins in a season schedule of fifteen matches, posting a fine 15 to 9 win over Wilmington in the final dual engagement of the season over the Arrowhead Golf Course at Mebane on May 9th to conclude the pre-tournament season.

Elon Grid Star Injured In Fall

Randy Warren, Elon grid star from Selma, suffered serious and paralyzing injuries when he fell on a flight of steps while visiting at the home of friends in Greensboro two weeks ago, and he has been listed as in serious condition at Cone Memorial Hospital in Greensboro since that time.

Warren is reported to have fallen on a flight of steps, striking his shoulders and neck on concrete walk or steps and shattering vertebrae in his upper spine. The injuries inflicted almost complete paralysis, and his survival was doubtful for several days. His condition has been reported improved in recent days.
