

Elon S.A.M. Chapter Is International In Scope

The Elon College Chapter of the Society for Advancement of Management, which has just elected Michael Wood, of Gibsonville, as its new president to succeed Fred Busick, of Reidsville, is now entering into a new type of international competition with other S.A.M. chapters in both this and other nations.

This new international competition will be in the areas of programming, publicity, organization and finances. Norman Ward, of Burlington, has been named chairman of the committee to direct the new competitive program.

The Elon College group became affiliated last spring with the International University Division of the Society, which has 210 chapters in leading colleges and universities in the United States, Canada, Puerto Rico and Iraq. The Greensboro Area Chapter of the senior division of the organization is composed of business executives, and this group led by Jack C. Rothrock as president has been of great help to the Elon student chapter.

Special features of the S.A.M. program at Elon this year has been a meeting with Dr. Philip M. Webster, of the Federal Home Loan Bank in Greensboro, as speaker; a tour of the American Tobacco Company plant in Reidsville; and attendance at some of senior chapter meetings in Greensboro.

Again this year the Elon S.A.M. members helped sponsor the annual data processing and computer sym-

Three Students Hurt In Wreck

Thomas Clayton, Elon student of Roxboro, was reported recovering last weekend in North Carolina Memorial Hospital at Chapel Hill from injuries sustained in a car wreck which occurred on Highway 61 near Gibsonville on Friday night, March 3rd.

Thomas Milton and Don Goldberg, also Elon students and both from Suffolk, Va., were passengers in the car with Clayton at the time of the accident, but they received only minor injuries.

gymnasium and classroom-office projects would cost an estimated total of more than half a million dollars, and he stated both would be partially financed by Federal grants which are in process.

While listing proposed physical improvements, Dr. Danielely assured his hearers that Elon College expects to maintain a corresponding pace in improving its instructional program through a constant study of needed changes in curriculum and educational practices.

In this connection, he announced the authorization by the Board of Trustees for a 15-member Long Range Committee of trustees, faculty, students and administrative officials to study proposals for Elon development.

posium on the campus. This event was presented by Worden Updyke, head of the college's data processing department, and by Prof. Allen B. Sanders, of the accounting faculty. Also present to answer questions was Darrel Brittan, educational representative for the IBM Corporation in Greensboro.

The chapter also held a dinner meeting this week at the Arrowhead Restaurant at Mebane, with John R. Markley, project engineer for the Vick manufacturing division of Richardson-Merrell Inc., of Greensboro, as guest speaker. The group will also sponsor again this year the Dudley Watson Award, given in memory of the late Prof. Dudley Watson, who founded the Business Club at Elon. That club is now the S.A.M. chapter.

In addition to Michael Wood as the new president, other new officers include Patrick Collier, of Graham, vice-president; Bernice Page, of Ruffin, corresponding secretary; Bonnie Page, of Elon College, recording secretary; and Michael Hudson, of Burlington, treasurer. Prof. James Toney is faculty advisor.
