

Elon Quint Defeats Presbyterian, 80-73

REID THIS!

RED'S HERRING

In evaluating the past endearing 5-3-1 football season, one looks down the bench to a precariously skinny young man from Whiteville, N.C.--one Dempsey Herring.

True, the defensive halfback missed All-This and All-That rating. I doubt if Herring benefited from even partial scholarship. He didn't play very much, and when he did, he hardly shared the headlines with Messrs. Kanipe, McGeorge, Bonnet, Beale et als.

Yet without Dempsey Herring, fulltime class officer and reserve football player, the Fighting Christians would have lacked much at their fight.

Here's a fellow who showed up at every practice, a boy who knew he'd get bumped about at scrimmage but would have remote chance of being knocked on his fannie in a real game where it counted most. Still, he was there at every workout. He was a hallmark of what they call spirit during each varsity encounter.

Teammate Marty Bonnet, the Warwick, Va., Wonder, said, "Man, he'd be out there hollering all the way. That meant a lot, too."

Coach Red Wilson seconds that testimonial.

The real moment for Herring may well have been the Elon-Frederick game. Our hero started early in that one. He played the "monster" position. That is, he was on the speciality kickoff squad and when the Fredsies got the ball, it was up to Herring to see they didn't run it past him. Doubts that Herring was too light also got thrown for losses that day as Dempsey, a knockout on halting end sweep plays, smashed through for a number of convincing tackles.

Which brings me to reminding you all stars... look sharply about you. That thin senior down the line there helped put you where you are. Dempsey Herring is all-everything when it comes to "The Old College Try"--and don't you forget it.

VESPERS

Vesper Services are being held at 6:30 o'clock each evening from Monday through Friday under the sponsorship of the Mathatians, group of ministerial and Christian education majors. The daily services are held in the Prayer Room, and everyone is invited.

The Fighting Christians of Elon, battling for a berth in the Carolinas Conference tournament, lived up to their fighting name as they turned back the Presbyterian Blue Hose 80 to 73 in a crucial battle on the PC court on February 1st.

With Noble Marshall and Henry Goedeck setting the pace in the early drive, the Christians moved to a 37-31 margin by the half-time, and then the entire Christian squad played fine ball down the stretch.

There were four Elon cagers in double figures for the night against Presbyterian, with Bobby Atkins setting the pace with 22 points. Others were Henry Goedeck and Richard McGeorge with 13 points each and Tom McGee with 12 counters.

McGEORGE IS SET FOR REBOUND

Richard McGeorge, a great football end, who is proving himself to also be a great basketball player, has used his football left and strength to great advantage under the boards for the Christian cage squad. He has pulled down 64 rebounds in five recent games, an average of 12.8 rebounds per game, and the picture above shows how he screens an opponent off with his own body to gain position for the loose ball that is coming from the backboard.

The second half the program began with two selections by the Polish composer, Alexander Tansman. The Mazurka by Tansman is one of the most difficult pieces of a guitar repertoire, and few attempt. Fewer still play it successfully, but Guthrie's rendition proved superb.

The artist next played a theme variation by Manuel Ponce, Twentieth Century composer, and played it with great sensitivity. Ponce uses many modern harmonies reminiscent of modern jazz which came forth in manner that was refreshing.

Closing the concert was a series of six characteristic pieces by the modern Spanish composer, Moreno-Torroba, and his impressionistic tones were played with Guthrie's unflagging taste and musicianship.

The audience, though small in number, was highly appreciative, and here's hats off to the hardy souls who braved the sleet. They were rewarded by a delightful

Bowes Is Off Elon Cage List

Bill Bowes, towering 6-7 junior forward from Lenox, Mass., who had been a starter with the Fighting Christians since his freshman year, is no longer with the cagers, having been forced to make a choice last week when a heavy academic load and other interests conflicted with his basketball competition.

With Bowes staying at home for the Presbyterian trip last week, Richard McGeorge and Tommy Davis were the starting forwards as the Elon quint topped the Blue Hose 80 to 73.

East.

DeVoll began his concert career while still in high school in his home town of Rochester, and there the Eastman School of Music gave him his first solid musical background. Enrolled there as a special student in voice, he had many major roles in operas and oratorios with the Symphony at the famed Eastman Theatre.

After coming to New York in 1957, the young artist continued his voice studies with Clytie Mundy and Norman Notley, and during summer months he sang with opera companies through the United States and in South America.

Of versatile abilities and varied interest, he devotes much attention to photography, model railways, various sports such as baseball and boating and to collection of various objects of art. Many of the art objects are displayed in his beautiful New York apartment.

evening, and a delightful

encore, was Guthrie's rendition of Antonio Lauro's Venezuelan waltz.

Surely, Robert Guthrie was one of the finest performers to grace Whitley's cavernous recesses in a long, long time.

What's New?

Senate, let's take into consideration one more. The most recent one is to extend the girls' hours one-half hour on all nights. Since the hours were extended about a year or two ago, the administration says where will this end.

To that I say that times are changing and Elon must change with them. One should keep up with the spirit of the times, and Elon should be no exception. Gone are the days of high button shoes, wide lapels, and horse and buggies which a lot of people around here used to use for transportation. Unfortunately, all we can do is wait and see what develops, but a good deal of talk around campus won't hurt.
